Economy limping at full tilt

By CAROL GOAR
FP News Service

OTTAWA — The Bank of Canada says the national economy is running almost flat out — which may come as a surprise to the 950,000 Canadians listed as unemployed.

The bank's annual report says factories are pushing their men and machinery to the limit.

It says that even though the country's output has been stuck at the same disappointing level all winter, industries are churning out all they can.

It says that even though Canada has resources in the ground, thousands of unemployed looking for work and willing buyers lining up for its goods, the country cannot now produce any more than it is already turning out with the capital equipment available.

For this reason, the bank believes it makes little sense to come up with clever schemes to sell more — programs to make Canada more competitive abroad or to entice consumers into buying more. The only way out of the mess is to build new plants and buy new equipment.

This is the key premise in the annual report which the bank is worried people are failing to recognize in today's economic mess.

So determined is the central bank to preach its gospel that it broke a 45-year tradition of taciturnity Wednesday and invited journalists into its vault-like headquarters across the street from Parliament Hill to explain its views.

The central bank, an institution known around Ottawa for its impenetrability and jargon-infested announcements, released its yearly report to the minister of finance Wednesday with more noise and flourish than it had ever shown before.

Puzzled reporters were welcomed, given coffee and offered background information. The bank summoned its top officials to explain the report and give lessons in monetary policy.

The new openness came after months of adverse publicity. Gerald Bouey, governor of the bank has been unhappily in the public eye since mid-summer because of the hardship created by his frequent interest rate hikes. Now the bank is looking for every available chance to defend its painfully tight grip on the country's supply of money.

Bouey's position is that he has to keep the screws on. With the economy already producing practically all it can, it would be folly to encourage people to spend more money. They would merely end up paying more for what they're already buying.

He is concerned that Canadians seem to expect prices and production to surge ahead every year. This leads workers to push for higher settlements, consumers to buy like crazy before prices go up again and producers to keep raising prices. If the situation continues, says Bouey, inflation will never go away.

The bank, unlike many institutions, remains convinced that inflation not only can be beaten, but that Canada is on the path to doing it.

Although there may appear to be little reason for rejoicing with inflation running at 9.2 per cent and wage settlements running at about 10 per cent, the situation is a lot better now than during the country's last inflationary peak of 1975 when prices were rising by 10.8 per cent, explained a bank spokesmen.

Bank rate 14.79%

OTTAWA (CP) — The new Bank of Canada rate is a record-high 14.79 per cent, up from 14.19 per cent last week, the bank announced today.

The rate, pegged one-quarter of one per cent above the average interest paid at the weekly auction of 91-day treasury bills, reflects the continued rise in short-term interest rates in North America this week.

The new average yield paid on $650 million worth of three-month bills is 14.54 per cent, up from 13.94 per cent last week.

Analysts expected a higher bank rate — the interest charged on infrequent loans to chartered banks — because the central bank had been influential earlier in the week in pushing up the interest paid on treasury bills to 14.60 per cent from 13.94 per cent last week.

Normally, Canadian short-term interest rates are higher than those in the U.S. to attract foreign funds and to pay for the country's $5-billion deficit in international payments.

However, U.S. one-to-three-month commercial paper rates — paid on business borrowings — currently range between 17.25 per cent and 18 per cent compared with a range in Canada of 13.75 per cent and 15 per cent.

Bank of Canada governor Gerald Bouey said Wednesday interest rates are high in nominal terms — which include inflation — but not in real terms which exclude price rises:

"To arrive at the real cost of credit and the real return to savers these nominal interest rates must be adjusted to take account of the rate of decline in the value of money as the price level rises."

Thus, a consumer loan costs 16.75 per cent, for example, but with inflation of nearly 10 per cent, the real cost is 6.75 per cent.

"Interest rates that provide a real return, as they now do, are historically normal and are necessary to achieve and sustain stability in the value of money," the governor said.

Bouey warned in the report that price shocks such as sharp increases in the price of oil must be contained by shift in demand for other goods so that the over-all rate of inflation does not rise.

Norm got his card 47 years too soon

Seniors card ages youth in a hurry

Norman Gabriel would like to thank the human resources ministry for the nice, green-colored Pharmacare card they sent him.

It isn't often an 18-year-old is treated like a senior citizen.

Norm's father, Kenneth, who is in his mid-40s, is a bit miffed. But he'll just have to wait another 25 years, like most of us.

Norm, who is an apprentice meatcutter with Graham Meats, says the card was mailed to his home at 4957 Cordova Bay about three weeks ago.

It was stuck to a notice instructing him to throw away his old, blue Pharmacare card and keep the new one in a safe place.

"Please sign it at once," the message ended.

Norm said he did.

Who's to refuse such an order from on high?

He says the card contained his proper social insurance number and correct address and postal code.

It erred in only one respect. The card was made out to N.N. Gabriel. Norm's middle initial is J for Joseph.

Norm says his friends have just laughed but his mother told him he should send it back.

The problem is where?

"I've asked around and no one seems to know where I should go," he says.

Meanwhile, he's waiting . . . and perhaps musing, too 'Will they still want me, will they still need me when I'm sixty-four (or five)?'

Juvenile letter pulled

By DEREK SIDENIUS

The corrections branch has withdrawn a controversial letter which asked Greater Victoria government agencies for the names and addresses of known and suspected juvenile offenders.

Hal McGillivray, director of the southern Vancouver Island region, admitted today he erred in asking for the information and apologized if it had offended some people.

He said another letter was sent out 10 days ago asking for only the numbers of known and suspected offenders and their general areas of residence.

The data is for a demographic survey to find out where problem youths live and what resources are available to help them.

McGillivray said he sent out his first letter Feb. 20 and wanted names and addresses for cross-reference purposes to prevent duplication.

He promised the information would only be used for the survey and that the lists would be destroyed after the data was recorded.

But that wasn't good enough for Jacob de Villiers, president of the Victoria Bar Association.

He called the letter sinister and said the request was highly improper.

"Once such information gets into the hands of any government agency it is open to abuse," he said.

De Villiers said today he's pleased the letter has been withdrawn but said the incident points out the need to be vigilant of civil liberties.

McGillivray maintains however his motives were honorable and that there was nothing sinister about the survey.

He said the corrections branch is hoping to expand programs and services in areas where problem kids live.

"The difficulty is identifying the areas where the need is greatest," he said.

McGillivray noted many of the juveniles who cause problems in the city are from outlying districts and municipalities.

The branch feels one of the reasons the kids flock to the city is a lack of facilities for them closer to home.

Won $1M but lost the ticket

BURLINGTON, Ont. (CP) — Gary and Barbara Hackett have been tearing their hair and their apartment apart since they discovered they won $1 million in the Super Loto draw Sunday — but can't find the ticket.

The couple has been searching since Monday morning with no luck.

"We haven't found it yet and we have no idea what to do," Hackett said.

An Ontario Lottery Corporation spokesman said the winning ticket must be produced to get the prize.

All the couple knows is that Mrs. Hackett wrote the number down on a piece of paper and then put the ticket in her wallet.

As she walked by the television during the draw, she thought she heard her number being called and a check of the newspaper proved her right.

If the ticket cannot be found, the couple has to put in a claim at the Ontario lottery offices in Toronto. The board of directors will rule on the claim after a year. If someone else claims the money it would be held in trust until the courts decide ownership.

$10 tickets may replace lot towaways

Gordon's Towing went to city hall today to ask for an increase in the parking lot towaway charge from $16 to $25 but the finance committee voted instead to investigate ways to end entirely towaways from commercial lots.

A motion by Ald. Robin Blencoe was passed instructing the city administration to look into ways of replacing towaways with a system which would have commissionaires place a $10 ticket on offending vehicles.

The owner and general manager of Gordon's Towing, Hans Hartwig and son Gerald, appeared before the committee to plead their case.

Gerald Hartwig said Victoria now has the lowest towaway charge of any Canadian city and a $25 fee would help eliminate some of the complaints about his company.

When questioned on this assertion by Ald. Frank Carson, he said that the tow-truck drivers — who now work a straight commission and get $4.25 for every towaway — would be more careful in their work.

The general manager said a higher towing charge would also discourage the large number of drivers who repeatedly refuse to pay for their parking in commercial lots.

Mayor Bill Tindall said council needs more information on the whole issue, especially concerning the extra cost to the city of hiring more commissionaires to work evenings. Now they work only in the daytime, ticketing cars for parking violations only on city streets.

Red ink for credit union

Surrey Credit Union — the second largest in the province — lost $29,411 last year and for the first time, in its 33-year history is unable to pay members a dividend.

However, Vancouver Island's two largest credit unions — Westcoast Savings and Saanich Peninsula — will report profit positions although Westcoast's net earings show a $400,000 dip because of spiralling interest rates.

Saanich Peninsula, the second largest on the island, recorded an increase of $40,000 more in net revenue for a total $280,000.

The Surrey organization's 1979 balance sheet shows a deficit of more than $250,000 at two of its eight branches and more than $500,000 at its administrative office.

Its annual report attributes the loss to members investing short, at high interest rates, and borrowing long, at lower interest rates.

The credit union lists assests of $6.6 million, almost double the previous year's estimate. Personal loans came to almost $21 million while mortgage loans rose by more than $30 million to $225.6 million.

The credit union reported a profit of $1.1 million in 1978 and paid a dividend of 8 per cent.

West Coast, ranked third in B.C. and sixth in Canada, had a net return of $1.1 million in 1978, compared with $765,559 last year.

Vogel cleared and back at work

By JAKE BANKY

Deputy Attorney-General Dick Vogel is back at his desk in Victoria today after being cleared by the government of allegations that he interfered with the justice system in order to help out his friends.

Vogel was put on indefinite leave following a March 6 CBC television report accusing him of unwarranted interference in three court cases.

His boss — Attorney-General Allan Williams — personally undertook a review of allegations made by CBC reporter Chris Bird.

In a lengthy statement to the legislature Wednesday, Williams completely exonerated his deputy of any wrongdoing and said he has asked Vogel to resume his duties.

Williams said he will also make an official complaint to the federal minister responsible for the CBC, Francis Fox, and to the Canadian Radio-Television and Telecommunications Commission.

"The allegations, inferences and innuendoes in the CBC evening news telecast of March 6, 1980, constitute a direct but unwarranted attack upon the integrity of Deputy Attorney-General Vogel," Williams stated.

Indirectly, these same allegations constitute a similar attack on the integrity, performance and responsibility of those judges, Crown counsel and members of the ministry also involved in the three cases, he said.

Even more serious, said Williams, is the possibility that those who saw the telecast or heard about it afterwards may have, as a result, a lower opinion of the administration of justice in B.C.

Vogel has said he intends to sue Bird and the CBC for libel.

Williams said there was no connection between his report in the house and Vogel's announcement a few hours earlier that a libel suit would be launched.

NDP critic Gary Lauk, however, said Williams' statement will not completely reassure the public.

"It is clear that full public confidence in the administration of justice has not been restored by the attorney-general's assurances," Lauk said.

"The only way it can be restored is through a full public inquiry, where evidence is tested by cross-examination under oath."

Lauk said the Williams

Dipping into fund not wrong: Regan

OTTAWA (CP) — Labor Minister Gerald Regan believes he did nothing wrong by accepting money from a trust fund while leader of the Nova Scotia Liberal party and says he needed the money because his public salary was inadequate.

The former Nova Scotia premier, speaking to reporters for the first time since the existence of the fund was revealed two days ago, said he is "morally certain" there was no impropriety in receiving the extra payments.

Over 14 years, spanning time served as premier and opposition leader, Regan received about $142,000 from the fund.

Payments began at $6,000 a year shortly after he was elected provincial Liberal leader in 1965 and increased to $10,000 a year when he became premier in 1970.

Since 1976, he had been receiving $13,000 a year on top of his premier's salary of about $42,000. The payments continued at $13,000 when he became leader of the Opposition in Nova Scotia — at roughly the same public salary — in October, 1978, he said.

Regan said he is satisfied there was no conflict of interest in accepting the money, which he declared for tax purposes.

He said the fund was established in 1955, 10 years before he became party leader. There were no further contributions to it while he was leader.

He added that he had no knowledge of the donors. The fund was administered by Senator Henry Hicks, also a former premier of the province, lawyer Frank Covert and Senator A.I. Barro.

REGAN
. . . took $142,000

Regan was critical of reports linking the supplements he received with an investigation into Liberal party fund raising from Nova Scotia companies.

"I know nothing of any suggested irregularities in party collections and I have never been contacted by the RCMP in the course of their investigation," he said.

The existence of the trust fund and the investigation into party fund-raising were both revealed in search warrant documents released by an order of the Nova Scotia Supreme Court earlier this week.

The document naming Regan does not accuse him of any wrongdoing. Other documents indicate the RCMP had been investigating allegations that some companies doing business with the provincial government contributed to the Liberals a percentage of their gross sales to the government or to goverment agencies.

According to the Toronto Star at least $4 million in government contracts went to companies contributing money to secret funds organized by the Nova Scotia Liberal Party over an eight-year period.

6-month term on mortgages

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Canada Trust is introducing a six-month residential mortgage at 15¼ per cent starting today, the company said Wednesday.

Renewals will be made at whatever rate is effective on that date.

"With the flexibility of an open mortgage and the shortest term available in the marketplace, we feel many borrowers will find this an attractive alternative," Bill Thornhill, assistant vice-president said.

Residential mortgages now available are for one to five years.

Interest rates on such mortgages have been rising recently, with most rates for five-year loans at 15¼ per cent.

Rumors push gold up $40

Gold prices soared by more than $40 U.S. an ounce today on rumors that South Africa had reduced its gold sales.

The U.S. dollar fell against all major currencies. In New York, the Canadian dollar was up 3-50 at 84.85 cents U.S.

The closing gold price in London was $561 ($660 Canadian) compared with a midmorning price of $550 and Wednesday's closing of $519.50.

London silver prices also advanced sharply, gaining $2 an ounce to $22.25 (U.S.) at midmorning.

A-G to launch complaint with CBC on Vogel report report is selective and simply reinforces the view Williams took at the outset — that Vogel is not implicated in any wrongdoing.

"I do not want to suggest the attorney-general's report is wrong. I am saying the public must be satisfied it is right."

And the public won't be satisfied, Lauk said, unless a full public hearing takes place.

However, Williams rejected the call for a public inquiry and said the matter is now closed.

He vehemently denied the suggestion that Vogel's interventions in the three cases were evidence of an "old boys' network" in action.

In the case of Kootenay lawyer Mickey Moran — charged with impaired driving, then with dangerous driving, then given an absolute discharge — Williams quoted senior Crown counsel Robert Moffatt:

"I have never spoken to Mr. Vogel, to my knowledge, in my life. I spoke to nobody else in Victoria about the matter either."

Williams said regional crown counsel Brian Weddell also told the CBC reporter that Vogel did not intervene to prevent an appeal being launched against the dismissal of a drinking charge against the 17-year-old son of Dr. Michael Rigg, of Vancouver.

Williams said after meticulous investigation he found Vogel and Rigg were barely acquaintances.

The suggestion that their wives played tennis together was also untrue, he said.

"This is denied by Mrs. Rigg and Mrs. Vogel advises she does not play tennis and does not know Mrs. Rigg."

The third case deals with the complaint of Vancouver senior prosecutor R. Bruce Donald, that Vogel prevented former B.C. Supreme court Justice John Farris from being called as a witness in the prostitution case against Wendy King.

Farris resigned from the bench after King was charged.

Williams said his inquiry showed no such interference took place.

In fact, he said, Farris was served with a subpoena although he was never called.

Further, a senior Vancouver police officer stated Vogel was an honorable man who had no intention of interfering with the administration of justice.

The CBC based a good deal of its case on a letter written by Donald Nov. 15, 1978, complaining of Vogel's interference in the Rigg and Farris-King cases.

However, the CBC reporter apparently was unaware of two subsequent letters written by Donald in December, 1978.

Those letters stated Vogel may have made errors in judgment and the timing of his remarks may have been unfortunate, but Donald agreed there was no intent to interfere with the administration of justice.

Why, then, did Donald not tell the reporter of this conclusion?

"You'll have to ask Mr. Donald," said the attorney-general. Donald is on vacation in the Caribbean.

Bird apparently had access to only the first of the three Donald letters.

Williams said that letter apparently was taken from an open file in Donald's office and photocopied. The other two were in a confidential file kept under lock and key.

The attorney-general said it is not possible to identify the person who made the copy and handed it over to the CBC. Donald himself denies doing so.

Williams said it is easy to second-guess and — with hindsight — Vogel might have acted differently.

However he said Vogel did not overreach his authority and it was all a "management problem" which has since been straightened out.

It is too soon to judge the effect of the CBC program on the justice system, Williams said.

But, said the minister:

"It will cast upon me a heavier burden in all my dealings with the elements of criminal justice — the police, Crown counsel, my senior staff — to ensure the opportunity for any such criticism doesn't arise again."

Leaper's life saved

A tug crew is credited with saving the life of a 63-year-old man who jumped off the Johnson Street bridge early today.

A police spokesman said Seaspan tug Capt. Barry Fairall and deckhand Jan Helverson saw the man plunge over the railing and pulled him from the water.

The man, whose name has not been released, was taken to Royal Jubilee Hospital and later admitted to Eric Martin Institute for treatment.

The incident occurred about 12:30 a.m.

Payoffs? What else is new?

OTTAWA — It was Angus MacInnis, one of the founders of the CCF, who once said that to understand Canada you had to understand that in British Columbia politics is entertainment; on the Prairies, a religion; in Ontario, a business; in Quebec, a way of life, and in the Maritimes, a disease.

That goes a long way to explaining the eyebrow-raising in the rest of Canada (and the blase non-concern in Nova Scotia) that Gerald Regan, now Canada's minister of labor, was receiving money from the provincial Liberal Party before and during the time he was premier of that province. The party in turn was raising money in donations from principal Nova Scotia companies.

That's the way things are done in the Atlantic Provinces. Always have been, they tell us.

When you ain't got nothing but cod and apples, who offers to pave your driveway just before an election can mean something that a very snooty representative of democracy from Vancouver's Kerrisdale or Toronto's Don Mills dosen't quite fathom.

If anyone is seriously interested in what still goes on in 1980 politics, someone should get into the story of the skidoos, cases of beer and driveways involved in the futile — but suprisingly effective — Quebec machine-directed attempt to get Robert De Cotret, Joe Clark's resident economic genius, elected in Berthier-Maskinonge, a spectacle that may still end up in court.

The changing mores of politics

But the case here is Regan, a charming and engaging fellow, and what is most useful about it is how it will force our attention to the changing mores of politics.

The concept of a neat little slush fund to make life easier for (and to induce into public life) certain prominent and talented men of course is not restricted to the Maritimes with its long, hard experience of you-get-a-buck-where-you-find-a-buck.

Despite all the Liberal slavering and clucking over the funeral-train revelations about the quiet fund set up for John Diefenbaker, the Liberals don't like to talk about the fact that a similar operation was set up for Lester Pearson, by friendly bodies, when it was determined that he would give up the certainties of foreign service for the vagaries of politics.

Dief, being Dief, was so wise not to touch it, therefore having not only the backstop but also the moral superiority he so cherished.

When Davie Fulton, humiliated by Dief by being canned from justice all the way down to public works, decided to bend his lance by going as new leader of the B.C. Tories, up against the evangelical speed freak, Rev. Phil Gaglardi, a group of prominent B.C. Tories established the "Fraser Trust," a fund to guarantee Fulton an income of $25,000 a year — something considered respectable in those days before hockey louts broke the bank.

One of the moral blinkers worn by Mr. Trudeau is the belief — even though he doesn't know the names — that the fact a number of wealthy fans built him a swimming pool at 24 Sussex Drive does not somehow impair his interity.

It does. If he needs a swimming pool (and he does), let the taxpayer pay. Forget Tom Cossitt. I'd pay my share just to remove the taint.

It's the same with the Regan situation, the first little embarassment (and not the last) of the stretch run of P.E. Reincarnation.

There's an absolutely divine quote from one Fulton Stoddard, a retired general manager of a Nova Scotia appliance company and one of the men involved in the slush fund from big companies to aid Tory eminences.

Professing amazement at the fund, Mr. Stoddard said that all the donations were "made freely" by the companies.

What's wrong with the Red Cross?

Lovely! So Burns Bros. and Denton (who presumably do business in Nova Scotia and not Patagonia) gave freely, as if absent-minded when they could have had the Red Cross in mind.

Standard Paving Maritimes Ltd? Hudson's Bay Wine and Spirits? Chateau-Gai Wines Ltd.? Corby Distillers? Alberta Distillers? The McGuiness liquor people? Who wouldn't give "freely" when the competitors have to?

The thing that might interest Mr. Trudeau, lost in the fastness of the Liberal hegemony, is that the public perception of how political parties ought to be financed is finally slowly changing.

People laughed when it was announced Teddy Kennedy had to slash his staff drastically because his campaign was running "out of money." There are now laws. Daddy can't fuel a presidential campaign all by himself any more.

The Liberals, to their discredit, had to be forced into introducing decent campaign election laws that had been in force elsewhere — for example, in Quebec — for some years.

Mr. Trudeau may come to regret some of the more bizarre aspects of his cabinet-making.

Builders firm on AIB stand

VANCOUVER (CP) — The president of Construction Labor Relations Association vowed Wednesday he will not be pressured by the plumbers union into dropping possible court action that could prevent the union from recovering money its members lost under the federal Anti-Inflation Board.

Chuck McVeigh, head of the bargaining association for contractors, said it has not yet decided whether to appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada a recent decision by the Federal Court of Appeal concerning AIB rollbacks of construction contract increases.

The Federal Court of Appeal recently referred the matter back to the AIB for reconsideration, which the plumbers hailed as a victory since the board administrator already has ruled in favor of the union on one of two contracts in dispute.

About $6 million is involved in the attempt by the Plumbers and Pipefitters Union, Local 170, to recover funds rolled back by the board from the 1976-77 and 1977-78 contracts because they exceeded wage guidelines.

The plumbers entered negotiations with the association warning that they won't settle on a new contract this year unless the employers agree to drop any court actions.

McVeigh said the association is not as concerned about the money as it is about "the effect that this would have in relations with the other trades" in the 17-union industry-wide bargaining council of which the plumbers union is a member.

McVeigh said he doubts that the other unions would accept the plumbers' victory without also demanding more money.

Which policy was that ...

Two key points made in the B.C. government's energy policy unveiled earlier this year were that henceforth no private hydro-electric developments would be allowed on the province's rivers and that a new review system including public input would be created to analyse proposed hydro-electric projects.

In light of the announcement this week that a mining company has been granted a licence to dam and flood part of the Goldstream River north of Revelstoke, it seems that either Energy Minister Bob McClelland must be rewriting the policy or it was prematurely released. Since the policy was made public nearly a year later than promised, the more likely explanation is that it is being rewritten.

Under questioning from Bill King, NDP MLA for Shuswap-Revelstoke, McClelland told the legislature yesterday that despite the fact Noranda Mine Ltd.'s $62 million dam proposal to power a new copper and zinc concentrate mine was a private development and that it was proceeding without the new review or public input, the development was indeed within the province's energy policy. Have we missed something?

McClelland said that the policy now makes provision for small hydro-electric developments that are outside B.C. Hydro's power grid.

But as King points out, B.C. Hydro's 500 kilovolt transmission lines from the Mica Dam run close to Noranda's mine site. It seems sensible in light of B.C. Hydro's heavy investment in large hydro-electric projects that companies should pay the crown corporation for their power rather than flood, as in this instance, acres of the Goldstream River watershed. Why the exception in this case?

The energy minister also said that in the case of small private power projects supplying less than 20 megawatts of electricity, the approval procedure can differ from than that which applies to larger power projects. Presumably approval for the project can be granted without public input or hearings. That is in sharp contrast to the open and thorough review of power projects and their environmental impact as promised by the energy policy.

B.C.'s Water Rights Branch said that public hearings on the Noranda proposal were unnecessary because there was little interest in the project. That seems a fair assessment as the area MLA was not told that the company had even applied for the licence. Perhaps there would have been more interest if the company's plans were better known.

As McClelland seems to be in the process of rewriting the month-old energy policy, he should at least add a section requiring that MLAs and residents of affected areas be informed about proposed power projects. He might also state which of the other sections of the energy policy meant what they said.

When Pierre Trudeau appointed the same old faces to his cabinet earlier this month, the suspicion arose that the Liberals were just trying to wipe out the previous eight months, the interregnum of Conservative rule.

Now, listening to federal Energy Minister Marc Lalonde, it seems that they were perhaps trying to erase all memory of the previous 11 years of Liberal rule as well.

Lalonde, visiting B.C. yesterday, said his government would work to convince the U.S. government of the foolhardiness of the Northern Tier tanker-pipeline route for the transport of Alaskan oil, and to win support for the all-land Foothills route.

"I would like us right from the start to stake our grounds and clearly state our position," he said.

Excellent sentiments. The only problem is that the start actually occurred more than five years ago when the U.S. government agreed to work to develop a route to get Alaskan oil to the southern 48 states, and when the Northern Tier route was first proposed.

There was at the time absolutely no sign of the Canadian government — which just happened to be Liberal and include Lalonde as a member of the cabinet — staking any ground, or even doing much to state its position. Nor did the government take a strong stand during the intervening four years as more and more work went into route selection — or as more and more tankers began to move through the Strait of Juan de Fuca carrying oil to Cherry Point and other smaller refineries.

Lalonde may think the game is just beginning, but in fact it is almost over. President Carter chose the Northern Tier route last autumn. If financing cannot be put together for it, the Trans-Mountain route will be taken.

Lalonde won't do any harm by raising the subject one more time with U.S. officials, but it is unlikely our neighbor to the south will agree to rewrite five years or more of history for the benefit of B.C.

Carter baffles diplomats

WASHINGTON — President Carter is going to have a garden party on the White House lawn next weekend to celebrate the first anniversary of the Camp David Israel-Egyptian peace treaty. It's no wonder that this will be a special occasion for the president, for looking back on the last three years this event was undoubtedly Carter's most impressive achievement in the field of foreign policy.

The question now is what he can do in a presidential election year, if anything, to sustain his success at Camp David and bring about some kind of settlement or at least compromise on the question of Palestinian rights on the West Bank in the next critical phase of negotiations between the Israeli and Egyptian governments.

The answer is probably not much, but the information here is that Carter is going to risk the political problems of the campaign and press the Israelis to come to terms with President Sadat on some kind of limited freedom for the Palestinians on the West Bank and Gaza, if not in Jerusalem.

Sadat pleads

Sadat is not urging Prime Minister Begin in Jerusalem or Carter in Washington to agree to the formation of a Palestinian state. He is asking that the Palestinians have full autonomy over their civil rights, their lives, land and water in Israel, but not over military defense or foreign affairs, and he is pleading with Carter to agree with this compromise.

The Israelis, on the other hand, are worried about the revolutionary events that have convulsed the Middle East since the Camp David peace treaty with Sadat and Carter. The Ayatollah Khomeini in Iran is supporting and has radicalized the Palestinians. The Soviet Union has pushed its military power into Afghanistan, and what worries the Israelis in private more than they are willing to admit in public, is that the United States has not been able to deal effectively with these regional crises in Tehran or Kabul.

The confusion of U.S. policy at the United Nations in voting to condemn Israel's settlements in Jerusalem, and then repudiating its own vote, has startled the Israelis, infuriated the Arab states, and weakened allied confidence in the leadership of the Carter administration.

The incoherence of American foreign policy in Washington is now troubling its friends and adversaries. Helmut Schmidt, the chancellor of West Germany, has been in Washington recently, wondering about what is going on in the foreign policy control in the United States. The president of France has recently come back from the Middle East, supporting the Arab states and defending his country's interest in petrodollars and Middle East oil.

And this is not all. The foreign minister of Japan is coming to Washington this week, and his advance men are asking, with the greatest courtesy, what is happening to the U.S. economy, and whether Japan can really count on the defense commitment of the United States.

In short, it's hard to remember a time since the last world war when the ambassadors of the major nations in Washington were more anxious about the American economy or the administration's handling of foreign policy than they are now.

Carter would probably be astonished if he could read the reports going out from the elegant diplomatic triangle of northwest Washington to the major capitals of the world about his conduct or misconduct of U.S. domestic and foreign affairs. They make his newspaper critics seem almost mild.

The presidential election campaign in this country has baffled every ambassador in Washington. They simply don't know what to make of it. Inflation rates, interest rates at 18 or 19 percent, but still Jimmy Carter is presiding over this disaster and leading all the rest. To the diplomatic reporters in this town, all this is a puzzle. Gerry Ford, leading everybody in the popularity polls, pulling out of the race; Teddy Kennedy being mocked even by his own liberal Democratic friends; John Connally, the conservative hawk losing the support of both the conservatives and the hawks; and some character called John Anderson winning Democratic votes in Republican primary elections — all this gives the foreign ambassadors here trouble in explaining what is going on in the United States.

When the Illinois primary election was over, the foreign ambassadors had even more trouble in reporting what had happened than the newspaper reporters. They had to explain the difference between the popularity votes and the delegate results in Illinois; why the lady mayor of Chicago used to be for Carter and then switched to Kennedy; and what the governor of Illinois down in Springfield thought about all this.

And meanwhile, before these diplomatic reports could get to London, Paris, Bonn or Tokyo, all the candidates had run off to New York for next week's primary election, where the mayor and the governor were for somebody else, and Jack Javits, the senior Republican senator, wasn't playing tennis anymore, but might be re-elected anyway.

Accordingly, worried about the Jewish vote in New York and his troubles in Iran and Afghanistan, Carter will have his garden party on the White House lawn anyway, and if it rains, he will have as it is announced in the official invitations a "reception in the president's residence."

Then he will talk about the first anniversary of the Camp David treaty between Israel and Egypt. No doubt he will say, and quite rightly, that this was the most important political development in that part of the world in the century — that Begin and Sadat had made a treaty of peace that would make war between the Jews and the Arabs impossible — and that they should now carry on and make a compromise with the Palestinians.

Final test

This will be the test of Carter's Camp David treaty. And he means it. Even if his political advisers tell him — and they will — to leave all this alone during the presidential campaign, he will still try to bring the Camp David treaty to its conclusion, and hope for a Palestinian settlement, with the support of the Begin government, or some other Israeli government of national unity.

However, and finally, the ambassadors here will be sending back to their capitals a somewhat gloomy report: namely, that the outlook is that the United States will have to chose in November between Jimmy Carter on the Democratic side, and Ronald Reagan on the Republican.

... AND WHAT SHALL WE CONCERN OURSELVES ABOUT TO-DAY?... .. HIGH INTEREST RATES?.. THE RISING COST OF LIVING?.. GOLD PRICES?.. NATIONAL UNITY?.. OR THE QUEBEC REFERENDUM?.....

Sewage treatment

How much longer are the taxpayers of this area going to stand for the nonsense coming from the Capital Region District's Solid Waste Disposal committee? We are told that the Clover Point outfall will not be extended to the originally proposed length but it doesn't really matter. Environment Canada's study, which says it does really matter, is ignored.

Now we read that this committee has recommended that the board ". . . approve hiring a consultant to design an outfall and comminutor, provided there is assurance by the time $60,000 has been spent that the outfall price will not exceed the $2 million mark."

Ray Le Noury of Willis, Cunliffe and Tate outlines horrific problems that will be encountered in building the McMicking outfall. Consulting engineer William Straub, of a Texas consulting firm, says studies show there will be no real problems with coliform levels and trash (we all know what "trash" is) once the outfall is installed. However, he is also quoted as saying there will be a rising sewage plume that would spread to a 40-foot diameter on the surface before tidal currents move it downstream. Downstream to where, pray tell? He goes on to add that the wind could conceivably move the sewage onto the shore ". . . much less than 50 per cent of the time."

Well, isn't that dandy! How much less, or does anyone know? Does this mean our children are going to swim in you-know-what on the few beaches left that don't already have you-know-what spread all over them?

When are the people of this, one of the most beautiful areas anywhere in Canada, going to demand proper sewage treatment? We do know it will cost a lot, and we are prepared to have out taxes go up, if it means this disgusting, not to say dangerous practice is stopped. Let's stop it now, before the politicians waste another $2 million of our money on something that does not work. — F. D. and M. L. Cooper, 134 Linden Avenue.

Island park

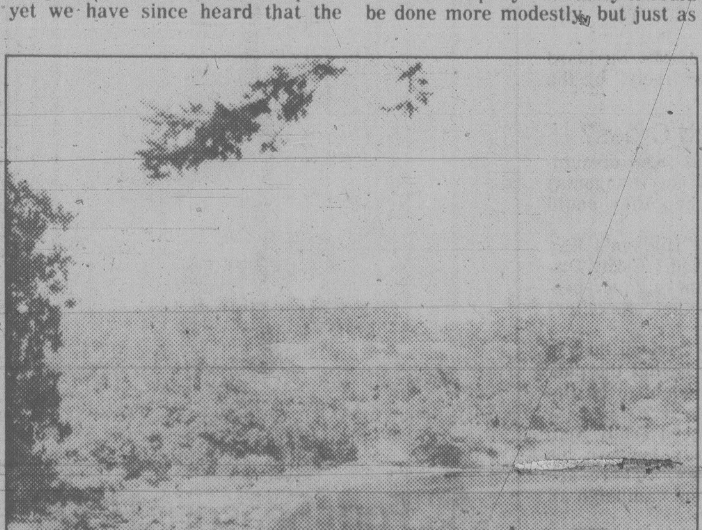
The Sidney Island Committee is not satisfied with the government's recent acquisition of 105 acres adjacent to the already existing park. Since that time we have received considerable support. In September the B.C. Council of Yacht Clubs supported the proposal for the whole island to be made a provincial park. The Canadian Nature Federation passed a resolution at their annual general meeting recommending the entire island be turned into a provincial park encompassing two ecological areas.

All my correspondence indicates the government's resistance to price yet we have since heard that the Minister of Lands, Parks and Housing, Mr. Chabot plans to spend $5,000,000 on developing Lakelse Hot Springs between Terrace and Kitimat. This really does not make sense as this area is quite distant from the heaviest population areas in B.C. It might bring a few tourist dollars in the summer but I question the wisdom of using the taxpayers' dollar in this way, especially as a study funded by federal and provincial agencies indicates that Sidney Island provides six of the top 10 recreational activities most sought after by a cross sample of the Victoria-Vancouver populace based on 1,590 persons. (By Philip A. Meyer.)

Incidentally the price paid for 105 acres of $300,000 — $150,000 from Devonian Foundation and $150,000 from Lottery Funds amounts to a little more on an acreage basis than the asking price of $3.5 million on 1,785 acres. Hardly consistent with the original complaints on the part of government that the price was too high. Especially when one considers that price was negotiable.

The Federation of B.C. Naturalists supported the proposal and that amounts to 5,000 people throughout the province apart from others.

My understanding is that the government has never really negotiated. I believe that Mr. Todd would not wish to be paid the sum of $3.5 million in one sum but that figure finally agreed upon would include a down payment plus payments over so many years that $2 to $3.5 million could not be required initially. Other parks have been purchased this way, why couldn't Sidney Island? — Pamela Brown, Sidney Island Committee.



Sidney Island is a better buy than a northern resort, says reader.

Glossy report

I recently received a copy of the 1979 Annual Report of the B.C. Telephone Company and was concerned at the extravagance shown in its preparation. It consists of a most elaborate cover and 40 pages on the best paper, containing more than 30 photographs in full color. Even the charts are colored and there are other pictures as well. It will surprise me if this is not very expensive to produce.

The directors of the company are well looked after, also, as the shareholders are asked to vote them a salary increase of 66.7 per cent, plus a 20 per cent increase in the fees paid for each meeting attended. It makes some of the unions look like pikers! To complete the waste, shareholders are supplied with envelopes measuring 6½ inches by 11½ inches with which to return their proxies. Most firms manage quite nicely with envelopes half that size even though it means folding the proxies before sending them back.

Shareholders are quite entitled to receive information on the progress of their company but surely it could be done more modestly, but just as effectively, on a few sheets in black and white on ordinary paper. The trouble is that some companies vie with each other to see which of them can put out the most elaborate and artistic reports. All very fine but in this case it is the telephone users who foot the bill. Restraint should be applicable to the private as well as the public sector. — F. L. P. Anderson, 490-2174 Cadboro Bay Road.

Motor sports

I was suprised to discover Victoria City Council's attitude toward the use of Clover Point and/or Mayfair shopping center as a location to hold organized motor sports events. I would like to say that as a spectator and competitor in these events. I am sure that council, if they were to attend one of these events, would discover that there are a great number of people in the public who both enjoy and would support continuation of these events in the future. In the past year (1979) between the months of July and September, there were three such slalom events held, all were carefully organized and planned including traffic, safety and noise regulations.

It is well known that any event will receive complaints from habitual complainers. This has spoiled the chance of continuation of these events; surely one should be able to tolerate two or three days out of a year so that people may enjoy a sport that at present is fighting for public recognition. City council's narrow-minded attitude is going to spoil an event that is obviously enjoyed by many more people than those who complain. — Jan Hoel, Victoria.

Not the way

What a "brave new world" we live in when someone is saddened and disgusted, as a writer stated in a recent letter to the Times, by efforts to prevent the killing of unborn children. Regarding the Babies Ransom Fund, the writer implies that it is his attitude towards the liquidation of undeveloped children that is the sane, just one. We who would save the children are included in his definition of fanaticism.

This assumption of a "realistic," even "moral" attitude in defending a horrendous action is sometimes oddly effective.

Add this "justification" to the convenience of abortion, compared to the inconvenience of pregnancy, and the wide acceptance of this way of terminating a life becomes more understandable.

No one denies that we live in a complex society. But killing people we don't want around is not the way to deal with any part of the complexity. — J. E. Richey, Victoria.

Ad gimmicks

"Welcome to the 'we' decade" ran your March 10 news article. Straight from the horse's mouth we are now told the "me decade" was pushed on us as far as it could go.

Amazing isn't it — so many individualistic-type people really thought they were doing their "own" thing, but what they were really doing was someone else's.

We think of ourselves as a free country, yet we are influenced and manipulated by clever advertising, subliminal seduction, conscious and unconscious. We allow ourselves to be formed by every whim that strikes our fancy, like the elusive butterfly.

Depressing, isn't it, to know that we are being used as guinea-pigs for every new program, product, or philosophy that is meant to appeal to us. The "we decade" would sound a lot more hopeful if it were sincere, and not just another advertising gimmick. — Margaret Hale, 22 Hayward Heights.

'It's a national scandal'

By MOIRA FARROW
The Vancouver Sun

As skipper of the ship Sea Shepherd, Vancouver environmentalist Paul Watson led an expedition to the Newfoundland seal hunt last spring on behalf of the New York-based fund for Animals and Britain's Royal Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

The British-registered ship with its crew of 32 had planned to sail from Boston, Mass., in early March, but it was delayed — as Watson told me a few days ago before he went to jail — by a series of visitors. These were the British consul, the U.S. Coast Guard, U.S. Customs, and Lloyds of London, all asking for more documents or modifications to the ship.

"The Coast Guard told me they had been asked to harass us by the Canadian fisheries department and Customs said they'd been asked to check us by the Canadian transportation department," said Watson.

The Sea Shepherd eventually sailed and spent five days breaking through ice before reaching two sealing ships. At night Watson and seven others left the Sea Shepherd and sprayed about 250 seal pups with red paint to make their fur commercially useless.

Early the following morning, while the men were still painting seals, six helicopters carrying fisheries officers, RCMP, and Quebec provincial police landed on the ice. All the protesters were arrested, but there was a chase and an altercation before Watson was caught. Watson charged that one of the arresting officers jabbed him in the ribs with a stick, called him names, and told a QPP officer: "Shoot that man, he's armed." Watson, like the others, had a stick to help him keep his balance on the ice.

"The RCMP put a rope around me, then sort of hog-tied me and dragged me across the ice so that I got soaked," said Watson. He said a fisheries officer "kept shouting, jumping on my fingers and saying 'resist me, you bastard.' "

Watson said he was put face down on the deck of a Canadian Coast Guard ship and left there for 2½ hours while his wet clothes froze stiff. "I tried to knock myself unconscious because of the pain," he said. "An RCMP officer said if I promised never to come back he'd let me get up. In the end I agreed."

The eight men were jailed for five days in the Magdalen Islands until the arrival of Tina Harrison of Vancouver, a member of the Fund for Animals, who put up bail.

In jail the protesters were fed seal meat.

Said Harrison: "When I arrived there the jailer said to me with a wink that his wife had prepared all the meals and had put chopped-up seal meat in Paul's mashed potatoes."

Said Watson: "Because we wouldn't eat the seal meat in the meals they served us, the jailers called us fanatics."

Said Keith Krueger, an American member of Watson's party: "They seemed to think feeding us the seal meat was a low sort of humor."

Watson said 20 rolls of film belonging to him and to U.S. journalist Matt Herron were seized without receipt and have not been returned to them.

Most of the group were charged with offences under the Federal Fisheries Act, such as painting a seal pup, being on the ice without permission of the fisheries minister, or being within half a mile of the hunt without a permit. Four of the men, including Watson, were charged with criminal offences, such as assaulting a peace officer or hindering a peace officer in the execution of his duty.

WATSON . . . rough treatment

The court case was originally set for August in Perce, Que., on the eastern tip of the Gaspe Peninsula, but was adjourned several times and finally went ahead last month.

Watson said he intended to plead not guilty to the assault charges but was told by the prosecutor he'd get a year if he did so. He pleaded guilty. Last week he was sentenced to 10 days in jail and fined $8,000. Total fines amounted to $27,700, all paid by the Fund for Animals.

Besides his imprisonment — oddly, it coincided with the scheduled opening of this year's hunt — Watson was given 15 days in which to sign a parole order agreeing to stay away from the hunt for three years or face another three months in jail. The other men had already signed similar orders.

Watson described the trial, in a remote Quebec town with no Canadian reporters present (one of the American defendants was a journalist), as: "a travesty of justice . . . a kangaroo court."

"Their minds had already been made up. All the proceedings were in French, although the judge, prosecutor, and lawyers could all speak English. There was a translator, but we didn't understand a lot of what was going on." He said Judge Yvon Mercier threatened him with contempt when he challenged a fisheries officer's allegation that he (Watson) had struck him with a lead pipe.

Krueger, fined $2,000, said of the trial: "Its outcome was predetermined. Before I came to Canada I had great respect for the Canadian government. I still have respect for many Canadians, but after the way in which we, particularly Paul, were treated I have much less respect for the Canadian judicial system and government agencies. Paul was brutalized when he was helpless and in handcuffs."

Another of the Americans, Mark Sterk, 20, said: "The trial was extremely biased. I understood that in Canada you were innocent until proven guilty, but the trial didn't seem that way to me. The judge seemed indifferent to the evidence presented on our behalf. He and the other officials seemed to think the whole thing was a big joke."

Watson's lawyer, Jacques Laurin of Montreal, said he was concerned by comments from the judge that the men had only been given "the sort of medicine" their actions called for.

"Canadian bureaucrats are using the law to further their own interests," said Tina Harrison. "I'm very concerned about the gag that seems to have been put on this whole affair. If things have come to such a pass in this country then it's a serious state of affairs."

When the hunt was set to open in Newfoundland last week there were only four reporters waiting. Harrison said she'd been told by fisheries that no Canadian journalist had applied this year for a permit to go on the ice to view the killing. Reasons could be that applications to attend the hunt now have to be made a month in advance, a permit is issued for one particular day, and a federal fisheries officer must be available to accompany the reporter.

Last year a fisheries officer was said to be unavailable when a Toronto fim crew, with a permit, was to go to the ice. The exasperated film-makers went anyway, only to be arrested by several fisheries officers who suddenly became available. The film crew was forced to leave an expensive camera on the ice and was fined $150.

Meanwhile, men like Watson, Pat Moore of Greenpeace, Brian Davies of the International Fund for Animal Welfare, and scores of their supporters are hauled before the courts for the "crime" of trying to save the lives of week-old seal pups.

It's a national scandal.

Dead dolphins lie on shore after their capture by fishermen

Dolphin dispute

Japan defends slaughter

By DONALD KIRK
London Observer

TOKYO — The arrest of a bearded 36-year-old American for having freed upwards of 200 dolphins has turned him into a hero abroad and a foreign devil in Japan.

Japanese authorities appear perplexed about whether to press charges against Dexter London Cate, who was arrested on the island of Iki, 15 miles north of the south-western island of Kyushu. A trial and conviction could only create more unfavorable publicity for Japanese fishermen, who regularly kill thousands of dolphins each year to keep them from ruining their catches of yellowtail fish.

Among the Japanese, the issue is clear-cut: a united Japan versus the rest of the world. "It is impossible to avoid killing dolphins," said Ryuichi Tanabe, counsellor at the National Fisheries Agency. "The fishermen are very angry at the reaction of foreign people."

In fact, Tanabe said, the fishermen have accused the Japanese authorities of "acting weakly" by failing to speak out forcefully against environmentalists anxious to save dolphins.

Tanabe laughed at the suggesion of Cate, a field co-ordinator for the Fund for Animals in New York, that dolphins might be a higher order of species. "Other animals, such as bears or rabbits, also are intelligent," he said, "and elephants and whales have larger brains" — a reference to Cate's claim that the large size of the dolphins' brains shows their intellect.

Another Fisheries Agency official, Ichiro Asano, was still more eloquent in defence of the dolphin slaughter. "I would like to ask the world which is more important — the dolphins or human beings? The dolphins are the enemy which invade and threaten our way of living. I want the world to understand that the fishermen do not want to kill dolphins, but must in order to survive."

On his third trip to Iki Island, Cate maintained before his arrest that the fishermen were "over-fishing and getting rich off the yellowtail." He blamed "the greed of the fishermen for any reduction in the number of yellowtail around Iki."

"I'm hoping continued pressure on the fishermen and on the government will force the government to accept its responsibility and halt the over-fishing," he told me.

Cate was pessimistic about the chances of developing sonar equipment to drive the dolphins out to sea. "The dolphins depend on the yellowtail as much as the fishermen," he said. "They would just get used to the sound."

Fisheries Agency officials said it would take "at least several years" to perfect devices with which a team of scientists were experimenting around Iki two weeks ago.

Cate sees the slaughter of the dolphins as the most convincing argument so far for letting them forage for food as much as they wish and for his decision nearly two weeks ago to cut the ropes of the nets in which fishermen had trapped them ready for killing.

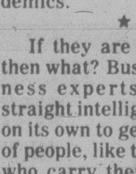
"I would have done the same if I had seen human beings trapped like that," he said. "I saved them as a matter of conscience."

Cate co-operated fully in questioning by police and prosecutors, but was arrested after saying he wanted to return to his home in Hawaii. Under Japanese law, a prosecutor can hold a "suspect" for up to 21 days before filing a formal charge. Authorities said he insisted on a trial after refusing to pay a fine.

Stung by the international outrage over the dolphin slaughter and Cate's arrest, the foreign ministry has opened an elaborate letter-writing campaign to win over world opinion.

"There is no alternative for the poor men to protect their livelihood," says a draft letter sent to all Japanese missions abroad to use in responding to questions. The letter notes that American fishermen kill more dolphins, including 41,610 last year, to stop them eating up tuna.

Case of Nobelesse O'Blige



Katharine Whitehorn

LONDON — The only woman I ever knew who deliberately went round London looking for someone brilliant to father her latest child, and found him, then gave birth (the Gods having an unkind sense of humor) to a mongol.

I mention this only to stress that programs of eugenics don't always work, and that there are quite a few ways in which the allegedly "very intelligent" women in California may be disappointed with the babies conceived from such Nobel Prize winners as are prepared to perform for the sperm bank.

First off, the kids may inherit the wrong characteristics: the classic problem posed by Shaw when Isadora Duncan asked him to have a baby "with my body and your brains!" and he said "But suppose, madam, it had my body — and your brain?"

Actually they needn't inherit either: what Robert Ardrey called "the accident of the night" can give you the brains of your great-great grandmother who was a moron and the body of dear old Grandpappy Appleseed, three feet high and clumsy with it.

This is as good a time as any, too, to point out that the monk, Mendel, who worked out with his pea-plants the principle of "one black and one white and two khaki" is now widely considered to have cooked his results.

Supposing that the superbabes are as bright as their mothers hope, what makes anyone think they are necessarily going to co-operate in any plan to have them reading Beowulf at age three, physics at five and three languages by the time they are seven?

All that parental insistence just might make them do the exact opposite: the two-year-old child of one of our brightest economic writers boasts proudly at nursery school "I am naughty every morning! I won't eat my meusli before my toast!" More illiterate only than the dumb Darwin, the single idiot Cecil and the only Laski who can't spell are the determined unlearned sons of academic families who refuse to end up intellectual — it's the only way they can assert their individuality.

Suppose, however, that the superbrats do grow up to have brains of enormous size. What are they going to do with them? Not a silly question; for if they have no taste for peering into a frog's entrails, counting commas in old manuscripts or out-smarting the radio telescope, there's no reason to suppose they'll want to be academics.

If they are not to be academics, then what? Businessmen? Most business experts would agree that straight intelligence is hardly enough on its own to get on. There are plenty of people, like the members of Mensa who carry their great brains round with them like ghosts with their heads under one arm, not knowing quite what to do with them. I once asked a Mensa man what it was all for, and he said they didn't know, yet. He explained that they were a tool, and would doubtless sooner or later find the problem they had to solve. I'd have thought they might have noticed one or two problems lying around already but he thought not.

The argument against any sort of genetic engineering with people has always been that you can only breed for one quality at the expense of another, and you don't know, with people, what quality you should go for.

That's okay if it's cattle and you're aiming for high milk yield or slab-like hind-quarters — but how do you specialize like that with human beings? Just suppose, for example, that you'd started 20 years ago to breed a superrace of fast mathematical thinkers; they would have hit the employment market at exactly the same moment as the cheap computer.

These children, bred for intelligence, aren't necessarily being bred for daring or loving kindness or stability — things anyway they'd far more likely get from their upbringing.

What sort of an upbringing are they likely to have? Presumably these women either have, or have not, got mates of their own. If they have, then the husbands may not take too kindly to their own genes being rejected in favor of old Nobelesse O'Blige. If the children are being raised with only Mum around, there's no reason to suppose they will have that much of a head start on other kids with tangible Dads to teach them to ride bicycles and help with the homework, or cool Mummy down.

Gloom, gloom. Perhaps they will all grow up to be influential scientific vice-presidents and develop a new energy source that will save the world. But even if they do, it won't actually prove a thing. Do you remember the experiment they conducted in California schools, where a team of researchers put a schoolful of children through some phoney 'potentiality' tests, and then told the teachers that a random list of names were the superbrains of the future? When the researchers went back two years later, those kids were, genuinely, out-performing the others — a massive tribute to teacher expectation.

So might it be with the little Nobelets; they might even grow up bright enough to wonder why their parents had ever arranged to breed them in such a stupid way.

Toronto

The Toronto stock market was sharply lower in active mid-afternoon trading Thursday.

Nine of the 14 stock groups in the composite index declined, led by transportation. Golds had the largest of the five advances.

Among industrials, Great Lakes Forest dropped 2 to $60, Gulf Canada 1¾ to $160, Dominion Foundries A 1¾ to $34½, Canadian Cablesystems A 1⅜ to $11⅛ and HCI Holdings 1 to $24.

Cominco gained 1⅜ to $59⅞, Union Oil of Canada 1⅛ to $41, IU International 1 to $15, Seagram Co. 1 to $47½ and Inco ⅛ to $30.

Placer Development slipped 1¼ to $58½, Denison Mines 1¼ to $42 and Kerr Addison 1 to $17. United Keno Hill rose 1½ to $39½ and Campbell Red Lake 1¼ to $38½.

Numac Oil and Gas was off 1⅜ to $38½, Coseka Resources 1 to $20½ and Rupertsland Resources ¾ to $51. CanDel Oil jumped 5 to $80 and Canada Southern Petroleum 1⅜ to $17¾.

Vancouver

Prices were up in heavy trading today on the Vancouver Stock Exchange.

Of stocks traded, 205 advanced, 157 declined and 158 remained unchanged.

B.C. Resources Investment Corp. led trading in the industrials, dropping .10 to $7.20 on 62,595 shares and Austin Investment Corp. declined .01 to .25 on 17,000. Balco Industries remained unchanged at $6 on 3,600 and Potter Distillers A remained steady at $1.35 on 2,100. Computrex Centres dropped 101 to .25 and Taro Industries remained steady at $5.

On the resource and development board, Enterprise Development gained .04 to $2.39 on 471,200 shares and Nevex Mines Ltd. rose .05 to .40 on 72,500. Veronex Resources gained .10 to $1.75 on 54,950 and Nesbitt Mining and Explorations advanced .30 to $1.85 on 47,600. Liberty Pete Warrants B remained steady at .28 and Barrier Reef Resources gained .02 to $1.11.

Beach Gold Mines led traders on the curb exchange, remaining steady at $1 on 76,200 shares and Corvette Petroleum gained .11 to $1.54 on 71,900. Samson Energy Corp. dropped .17 to .95 on 43,200 and Coast Interior Ventures declined .08 to .66 on 33,800. Tagus Resources gained .10 to $2.10 and Santa Sarita Mining advanced .40 to $7.65.

New York

The New York stock market headed lower again Thursday, resuming its February-March slide amid recession worries.

The Dow Jones industrial average, which has fallen more than 100 points since mid-February, made a stand at 800 on Tuesday and held there Wednesday, posting only a fractional decline.

But then it slipped into the 790's again Thursday.

Analysts said the market was beset by spreading concern that the economy was heading into a recession that could hurt corporate profits and dividends considerably.

They also said a rebound in commodity prices this week had dampened hopes for any early progress toward bringing down the inflation rate.

Phillips Petroleum dropped 2⅜ to $44⅝. The company lowered its estimateof peak reserves of oil and gas in the Ekofisk area of the Norwegian North Sea.

London

The London stock market was higher near the close of quiet trading Thursday.

Pension fund risks urged

MONTREAL (CP) — Pension funds should be invested in new growth industries that are high risk but could be more rewarding, says investment counsellor Austin Beutel of Beutel, Goodman and Company Ltd.

Speaking at a seminar on international investing in the 1980s, Beutel said there will be pressure on the government for fiscal conservatism to create a good investment atmosphere.

He based his long-term optimism not only on Canada's resource wealth, but also on demographics.

The number of people of working age will grow over the next 10 years, and as they acquire money to invest, they will want the government to enhance the business environment rather than to transfer money into the hands of consumers and allow inflation to eat away at their savings.

But although the outlook for equity investments in Canada is good in the long term, Beutel suggested caution in the short term.

Cattle

Receipts to 11 a.m. Thursday of 550 head at the Calgary public stockyards saw a normal supply of slaughter steers and cows with a light supply of good-condition slaughter heifers.

Trade was dull from local buyers of slaughter steers while slaughter heifers and cows met a moderate demand.

A1-2 slaughter steers were $1.50 lower with downward pressure on overfat and heavy cattle. Slaughter heifers were steady. All grades of slaughter cows were steady. Bologna bulls lost $1 in early trade.

A1-2 steers over 1,000 lbs. 70-72, over 1,250 lbs. 69-71. A1-2 slaughter heifers over 850 lbs. 67-69, A3-4 64-67. A1-2 cows 50-52, A3-5 46-50. Good bulls 65-67.

A light supply of short keep feeder steers and heifers sold steady as did feeder cows. Good feeder steers over 900 lbs. 70-76. Good feeder heifers over 800 lbs. 67-71. Feeder cows 50-62.

Maple Leaf Mills

Maple Leaf Mills Ltd. of Toronto reports 1979 operating profits dipped to $12.81 million from $13.73 million the previous year. An extraordinary gain of $8.73 million from expropriated facilities in Toronto brought 1979 net income to $22.46 million.

Canadian Tire

Canada Tire Corp. Ltd. reports its operating income in 1979 rose to $36.51 million or $3.07 a common share from $28.78 million or $2.49 a share in 1978.

An extraordinary gain on the sale of property brought 1979 net income to $38.71 million or $3.26 a share, an increase of 31 per cent over 1978 net income of $29.47 million or $2.55 a share.

The company said dealer sales rose by 13.4 per cent and exceeded $1 billion for the first time. Consolidated gross operating revenue increased by 17.2 per cent to $935.75 million.

Hollinger-Argus

Hollinger Argus Ltd. of Toronto reports its operating profit for 1979 jumped to $21.82 million or $4.02 a share from $13.01 million or $2.64 a share in 1978.

The company, created last year from a reorganization of the interests of financier Conrad Black, said it also had an extraordinary gain of $85.6 million from the sale of securities in 1979, compared with a gain of $829,000 from the same source a year earlier.

As a result, net income increased to $107.4 million or $20.03 a share from $13.8 million or $2.81 a share.

The company said its improved operating results were due to an increased profit by subsidiary Labrador Mining and Exploration Ltd. of Toronto, whose operating earnings rose to $22.4 million or $6.28 a share from $12.5 million or $3.78 a share in 1978.

Labrador Mining subleases a large part of its holdings in Labrador to Iron Ore Co. of Canada, based in Wilmington, Del., and receives royalties from that company.

Production by Iron Ore Co. increased in 1979 following a four-month strike in 1978 and iron ore prices rose.

Total revenue of Hollinger Argus in 1979 was $65 million, up from $36.2 million in 1978. The company's results are also consolidated with those of Argus Corp. Ltd. of Toronto and Hollinger North Shore Exploration Co. Ltd. of Montreal.

Seagram

The Seagram Co. Ltd. reports record sales and profits for the six months ended Jan. 31, 1980.

The company recorded a profit of $61.4 million (U.S.) in the first half of its fiscal year, exclusive of foreign exchange fluctuations and related tax effects. This works out to $1.75 (U.S.) per share, a gain of 21 per cent over the previous year.

Net profit after foreign exchange loss is $56.2 million (U.S.), or $1.60 (U.S.) per share, compared to $47.4 million (U.S.) or $1.35 (U.S.) per share in 1979.

Sales for the six months ended Jan. 31, 1980, were $1.557 billion, a 12 per cent increase over 1979.

Drills for copper

TORONTO (CP) — Long Lac Mineral Exploration Ltd., the exploration arm of Little Long Lac Gold Mines Ltd. of Toronto, says it will carry out a major drilling program this year to determine the extent of copper reserves at a deposit at Poison Mountain, 240 kilometres north of Vancouver. The property is jointly owned by Long Lac Mineral Exploration and its subsidiary, Copper Giant Mining Corp. of Vancouver.

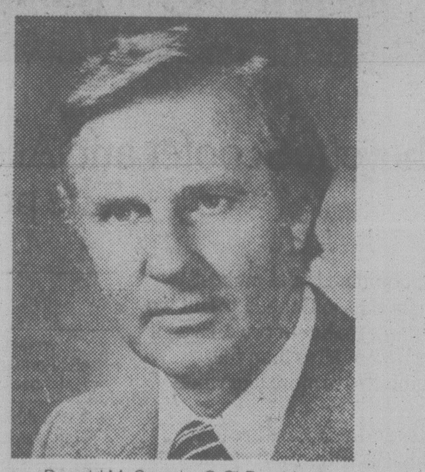
Stock Market Signals Bullish Times ahead.

Biggest Bull Market in History Could Occur in Next Five Years.



Donald M. Cormie, Q.C. President

That is the opinion of Don Cormie, President of the $250-million Edmonton-based Principal Group. He has 25 years of experience and research to back him up.

Cormie has observed that stock prices and economic trends occur in recurring cycles. "Compared to real estate prices, North American stocks have not been as cheap, since 1921," says Cormie. "The eight year period following 1921 was the beginning of the last great bull market. During that time the Dow Jones Average went from 64 to 385."

Cormie believes today's stock prices could offer the same buying opportunity as in 1921. At that time the majority of investors were frantically buying real estate and gold and ignoring the stock market — except the few astute investors who saw the bargain basement prices of the stock market.

"The key to successful investing is to buy the bargains. Today, as in 1921, the majority of investors are still ignoring bargain basement prices in the stock markets. In fact stocks are still valued at historically low prices."

This straight forward philosophy is not idle speculation on Cormie's part. Principal Group's Investment Department maintains charts, graphs and computerized records that date back to the 1700's. Based on this data, Principal Group has become one of the rising stars among economic research and investment firms in Canada.

Principal Venture Fund Ltd. has increased over 3½ times after all fees, or 28.8% per year since January 1975. One thousand dollars invested then would have been worth $3,546 as of December 31, 1979. This fund emphasizes agressive capital appreciation.

Principal Growth Fund has increased 168.4% after all fees in the last five years. One thousand dollars invested on December 31, 1974 would now be worth over $2684, with reinvestment of all distributions. This fund is eligible for RRSP investments.

Collective Mutual Fund Ltd., which stresses international blue chip companies, has increased 141.1% after all fees since January 1, 1975. That's a compound annual rate of return of 19.2%.

None of these returns are guaranteed, nor is there 100% certainty that the next bull cycle will be like the rest. But Principal has committed itself to a growth strategy that has been successful.

Why should you as an investor buy Principal's investment funds? When you do, you immediately share in the 25 years of research and investment expertise the company has developed. You buy the full-time, professional management of managers who know a bargain when they see one. You immediately buy the safety represented by the diversification of over 30 stocks each fund owns. You buy the accounting and tax reporting forms that the company provides. You make an investment with liquidity. And, your shares in the fund may be presented for redemption on any business day at their net asset value. Net asset value is reported daily in the major Canadian newspapers.

Can you afford to miss what could be the investment buying opportunity of this coming decade? For as little an investment of $600.00 or more you can buy and own the investment expertise of real professionals.

Whether you're a small or large investor phone us now for further information to get the whole story on why we think stocks are a bargain.

500 dine on Bill's golden oldies

It was a speech that repeated the themes of the 1979 election campaign, but 500 businessmen crowded in anyway Wednesday to hear Premier Bill Bennett's message of good news and the power of positive thinking.

Retail sales, the numbers of small businesses, personal income, the value of farm production and fisheries have all increased during his government's four years in office, Bennett told the Chamber of Commerce luncheon at the Empress Hotel.

"These are the things that make me optimistic as premier," he said.

"No longer are people negative. Instead of asking the government to do everything, they're starting to do things."

Migration of other Canadians into B.C. is also on the increase, after a period in the mid-1970s when more people were leaving the province, he said.

It's creating some strains on the housing market and social services, he admitted, but Bennett said he didn't mind.

"These problems of success are not hard to deal with."

He praised the chamber for its hard work on the planned Victoria-Seattle jetfoil service.

"They show the value of positive thinking," he said.

The government likes people to do things for themselves, the premier said, but he promised government aid for the chamber's transportation project.

"The builders are taking over from the knockers. The day of the knocker is over and the day of the builder is just starting," said the premier.

However, he did touch on some negative thoughts — high interest rates, western separatism and the energy crisis.

Everyone should protest to Ottawa about soaring interest rates, Bennett said.

Canada is facing a major sociological crisis which may be hard to correct unless the federal government takes action to reduce high interest rates.

The premier said the situation will deteriorate as more people lose their homes and businesses because they can't meet higher mortgage payments.

He told the chamber Ottawa should provide tax incentives to encourage Canadians to invest their money rather than lend it.

The new federal Liberal administration also must deal with a heightened feeling of western alienation since the election. It must reform federal agencies like the CRTC and the Bank of Canada to include regional representation.

"I do not feel the answer is in separatism. I do not feel the answer is decentralizing the government of Canada so much it is unable to function.

"But we've got to modernize the constitution of this country."

The premier also criticized Canadians and their governments for ignoring the energy crisis.

Buy-B.C. boomerang alleged

The Bennett government's $200 million low-interest mortgage program for new home construction is designed to stimulate the B.C. forest industry but it might end up doing the opposite, NDP MLA Dennis Cocke of New Westminster said Wednesday.

American lumber is selling at a lower price than Canadian lumber, Cocke said, so many B.C. lumber yards are stockpiling the cheaper American product.

"Naturally contractors are going to buy at the best price," he said.

"Who's going to go around and check every piece of lumber to find out where it came from?"

The provincial program calls specifically for B.C.-produced lumber and plywood to be used in home construction.

Same old response

About 100 members of the B.C. Home and School Association came calling Wednesday on Education Minister Brian Smith.

They made their perennial pitch for government funding and got the usual response — the minister will review the situation but a change in policy is extremely unlikely.

"The policy of the ministry is not to fund the Home and School Association, the B.C. Teachers' Federation or the B.C. School Trustees but only to fund those organizations that are directly delivering educational services to children," said Smith.

Mill takeovers cause concern

Concentration of ownership in the B.C. forest industry will increase in the future, Forests Minister Tom Waterland said Wednesday.

"I'm concerned about concentration, but the way it's slowly going I can see the day when it'll be just one company."

Waterland said in an interview that his approach to a larger company's bid to take over a small forest operation is "what are the advantages to B.C.?"

"They say there are no disadvantages but I want to know what the advantages are," he said. "If there are just no disadvantages then the answer is no."

Waterland said the recent approval of the Northwood Pulp and Timber purchase of North Central Plywood was given because of economic realities.

NCP had limited capital and faced a market slump.

The minister also said NCP faced continuing problems of wood supply which Northwood can solve but he said he has warned the giants of the industry that supplies of raw materials will not be a factor in approving takeovers.

He said small mill owners beg him to let them sell and later complain large companies dominate the industry.

No natural gas tax

VANCOUVER (CP) — The federal government is not now considering an export tax on natural gas, but Energy Minister Marc Lalonde left the door open Wednesday for such a tax in the future.

Lalonde told a news conference that during a morning meeting with provincial Energy Minister Bob McClelland, "I indicated that the matter had not even been considered by us."

However, he added, "we're embarking into new (energy) package negotiations, and I would hate to rule out anything when we're just beginning.

Lalonde said there is still a wide margin between Alberta, Canada's largest oil producer, and the federal government.

Myth:

Small foreign cars cost less than small North American cars.

Fact:

This GM World Car is priced lower than any 1980 Honda, Volkswagen, Toyota or Datsun.*

Chevette Scooter and Acadian 'S' have a base price of $4,504.*
The price of popularity!

Our World Car's combined sales make it Number One in its class in Canada. But we think it's more than a matter of price. Even if our lowest price is $2,341 less than the cheapest VW Rabbit!* It's more like value for the money.

All Chevettes and Acadians are four-passenger hatchbacks with comfortable full-foam seats, cut-pile carpeting, radial tires, rack-and-pinion steering, a maintenance-free battery, electronic ignition, extensive corrosion-resistance protection, and an overhead-cam 1.6 litre 4-cylinder engine with a 4-speed manual transmission and a fuel-economy rating† no other North American-built car with a gasoline engine, including VW Rabbit, can beat!

It all adds up. There are also 2- and 4-door Chevette and Acadian models available with a more extended list of standard features including an AM radio, reclining bucket seats, bodyside moulding, white-stripe radial tires and much more.

Drive one. Discover a small car that is smooth and quiet, has plenty of get up and go, and makes you feel good driving around town or heading down the highway.

Wages bust health budget

MLAs vote for smokes

To smoke or not to smoke.

That was the contentious question before the legislature's Public Accounts Committee at its organizational meeting today.

Party lines were ignored as members voted six to five to permit smoking in committee meetings.

Health Minister Rafe Mair, who proposed the smoking ban, demanded a recount.

The new vote was seven to five in favor of allowing smoking.

Mair then put a new motion, permitting cigarette smoking but banning pipes and cigars.

He said all forms of smoking are offensive but cigarettes less than others.

That motion also was defeated.

NDP MLA Norm Levi, sitting beside Mair, continued to puff on his cigar throughout.

The first serious meeting of the committee will be held next Wednesday when Auditor-General Erma Morrison appears.

Double-digit wage increases for hospital employees has thrown Health Minister Rafe Mair's budget out of whack before it is even approved.

The government provided an eight-per-cent cushion for wage increases which now appear to be averaging more than triple this over two years.

This includes a 26-per-cent increase for health-science workers and 28 per cent for general hospital workers.

Efforts are still under way to get a contract for 12,500 registered nurses with reports that the eventual package will include a 45-per-cent wage increase in a 27-month contract.

"I haven't analysed the increases to see how much they are," Mair said, "but they're certainly going to be over the amount we originally budgeted for.

"I'm going to analyse exactly how much they are, and what it means to my budget, then take the problem to the man whose got the cheque book — the minister of finance."

Meanwhile, Jerry Miller, spokesman for the Registered Nurses Association of B.C., said the nurses' bargaining committee met today.

The committee met with mediator Clarke Gilmour until late Wednesday night and there is no date for direct talks to resume.

On the buses:

Did it all happen before 1900?

By JIM CRERAR

Forget the flower count and the crocuses in Beacon Hill Park. The surest sign of spring in Victoria is the proliferation of doubledeck tour buses along the Causeway in front of The Empress.

Last year an estimated 200,000 vistors rumbled around the streets and out to Butchart Gardens in the unwieldy red rattlers. Nine doubledeckers run by Marguerite Tours carried 30,000 passengers while another 160,000 to 180,000 rode 14 two-level buses operated by Gray Line. They climbed aboard to get the lowdown on the locale and be entertained in the bargain.

Which put it squarely in the laps of the drivers, a special breed who thread through winding streets and snarled traffic while enlightening the clientele with a running commentary based on facts and figures, history books and the Johnny Carson show.

There's no telling what will happen.

A favorite story concerns an Uplands resident who took the tour to make sure the upper-deck passengers couldn't see in her bedroom window.

Then there's the one that Lorne De Girolamo of Gray Line tells concerning the driver who let a profanity slip into his microphone as he was trying to disentangle himself from Butchart's traffic. Compassion prevents De Girolamo from identifying the company or the driver, who launched a profuse apology to his passengers before realizing the mike was turned off in the first place.

In any case, he wasn't the only one who has whiled away a few pleasant minutes chatting informatively to himself. The drivers, closed off from the rest of the bus, can't tell if the mike goes dead until the passengers realize they're getting a diet of scenery without the verbal garnish and rap on the window.

Not all drivers use the same approach.

"They all develop their own style of delivery," Jim Gorst, owner of Marguerite Tours, points out. "Some have their natural humor and others rely more on informative commentary."

Whatever, there's no deviating from the facts. Stretch the truth too far and somebody aboard will have you over the rack.

"If I don't know an exact date, I'll say it happened around the turn of the century," DeGirolamo said, giving rise to the standing joke among drivers that everything in Victoria occurred before 1900.

Gray Line associates credit Connie McCann for originating the one-liner that drivers caught embellishing the facts do time at the Truth Centre on Fort Street.

Ted Tyrrell of Victoria Tours Ltd. used to drive the doubledeckers when they were operated by Vancouver Island Coach Lines. Tyrrell, who will have three conventional buses picking up sightseers from various hotels and motels around town this year, remembers some of the mishaps.

"Those things are six inches higher than a semitruck and you have to be careful. We often used to hit the cluster lights. But those buses aren't dangerous. They're very bottom heavy and almost impossible to tip over."

One of the toughest runs is to Butchart's because it requires an extensive knowledge of horticulture.

"I remember doing those runs when I was driving," Gorst recalls. "Sometimes I'd get lucky and find a passenger who was an expert on flowers. They're always glad to help out."

The acknowledged expert on that run is Marguerite's Brian Parker, a University of Victoria major in west coast history and geography who worked at Butchart's with his father.

Bill Bridges, Victoria general manager for Gray Line, looks for two qualities when hiring drivers — skill at the wheel and an ability to get along with people. Several men and women who drive the buses that once saw service on the streets of Britain have college degrees.

That's not surprising considering the wealth of information they need to get through the day.

History books are one source. Local lore handed along from driver to driver is another, especially if it comes from Cliff Bennett of Gray Line, who has been on the buses for about 20 years.

Tony Gibb of Gray Line draws on the day's news. As a result, his passengers discover that Port Angeles is the proposed oil port for the Northern Tier pipeline.

Both Marguerite and Gray Line have compiled information on the three main routes the buses follow — the city tour, the Butchart run and the trip to the Anne Hathaway Cottage in Esquimalt.

John Cousins is updating the Gray Line manual and estimates it will run 80 to 100 pages. It includes tidbits like the one about Waddington Alley between Yates and Johnson where the original wood blocks are still visible and the fact that some Old Town streets had rounded metal curbs to keep steel-rimmed wagon wheels from running up on the sidewalks.

Cousins likes to inject a few gag lines in his commentary and a favorite subject among U.S. visitors is Margaret Trudeau.

"She's Canada's answer to Billy Carter," Cousins said.

"If I find I'm going a little stale, I'll stay up and watch Johnny Carson's monologue," he added. "It's a good barometer of what's going on."

Carson wasn't much help the day Cousins had a tour from South Carolina and someone wanted to know what a crumpet was.

Try explaining that one. Cousins couldn't and after a half-hour of frustration he unloaded his inquisitors at the Olde England Inn on Lampson where they found out for themselves.

A lady from the Uplands took a ride to make sure upper-deck riders couldn't see into her bedroom . . . well, that's the story they tell civic affairs

by norman gidney

Victoria's tourist operators gave themselves a pat on the back this week at the annual meeting of the Visitor Information Centre, and they probably deserved it.

Last year's tourist season was as sweet as the B.C. white wine they drank with The Empress lunch of salmon en croute followed by blueberry pie.

After such a successful 1979 season, nobody wanted to dwell too long on such bad news as the centre's $29,000 deficit — more than 16 per cent over budget, its first slip into the red ink in years.

The industry did better last year than anyone can remember. Quibbles about serious shortcomings tend to get lost in the lovely green glow of all the money everyone made last year.

The centre's outgoing president, realtor Ed Higgin, noted that 1979 was the biggest and best year for the Victoria tourist business in both numbers of visitors and dollars they left behind.

They kept on coming through late fall, and even in November inquiries at the VIC offices on Wharf were more than double the same month in 1978.

Several of the centre's income sources increased substantially over 1978. The two main chunks of revenue, the trade dollar and membership dues, each rose by more than 20 per cent.

But there are some structural faults in the industry and the VIC's finances are still shaky, as Higgin noted in his speech to the membership.

Support for the promotional activities of the VIC is rather narrowly based.

Even a membership drive spurred on last fall by the VIC's decline into deficit spending produced no more than 60 new members. As of Monday, the list stood at 613.

There must be more tourist businesses on Government Street alone. It can't be the dues — they're less than $100 a year on average. Most businesses take in more cash in the first morning of the tourist season.

The Be a Tourist in Your Own Town promotion was a raving success last week, as it produced $23,000 in revenue for VIC operations.

But the same few attractions are carrying the brunt of it, and their managers are extremely cautious about expanding the scheme.

They don't want to queer the local market for full-price admissions to their attractions, although the interest shown by Victorians demonstrates they could probably make three times as much money for the VIC and still not satisfy everyone who wanted to see wax mannequins, antique cars and killer whales.

And the publicity it generates you can't buy.

Likewise, the VIC's trade dollar promotion is largely carried by only five or six attractions and businesses.

"A broader sales base is required," said Higgin.

Everyone in town who makes a living from tourism pays lip service to the need for heavy promotion, but too many businessmen aren't willing to part with the money to make it happen.

The so-called reprieve Transport Minister Alex Fraser announced last week for the elderly residents of the Glenshiel Hotel looks more and more like an only slightly-delayed death sentence.

As the city's fire prevention services committee learned to its surprise this week when the B.C. Buildings Corp. came asking for leniency on fire code requirements, the hotel is already more than one-quarter empty.

Twenty-one of its 76 beds were vacant before the public announcement by Fraser that it was to be closed within two years and demolished for a parking lot — an astonishing admission when there are lengthy waiting lists of people waiting for such accommodation.

How long before the last man or woman is out of the Glenshiel? Not much beyond two years, I think.

The third floor is going to be vacated because of the fire safety hazard, dead end corridors are going to be cleared of residents, the public dining room is to be closed. It's death by degrees.

With the building gradually turning into a dusty, uninhabited shell, who will want to stay?

Suspension in ramming

A 53-year-old Richmond fisherman was given a suspended sentence in county court today and placed on probation for one year for repeatedly ramming another fishing boat Aug. 20, 1978, in Juan de Fuca Strait near Race Rocks.

Vinko Nickola Sladich, whose employment was described as spotty since 1978 because of dizziness from a 1966 car accident, also was prohibited from operating any boat on Canada's territorial seas while on probation.

Judge Leslie Cashman said he was suspending sentence because of Sladich's age, state of health and no previous record.

But he said Sladich's actions could have caused a good deal of damage and injury to others and "I would think that for one who has been a fisherman for as many years as you have that you would know better."

Sladich was found guilty of dangerous operation of a fishing vessel by a jury shortly after midnight after nine hours and 45 minutes deliberation.

Witnesses on the Sidney dragger Nopsa, then owned by Rudy Kirmhse of Deep Cove, said Sladich's gillnetter repeatedly rammed their vessel. Sladich denied this but Cashman commented that obviously the jury didn't believe him.

A second charge of possessing a rifle for a purpose dangerous to the public peace resulted in a deadlocked jury with no prospect of reaching a unanimous verdict. After just over seven hours of deliberation, the jury reported it had decided on the first charge, but the deadlock was 11 to 1 on the second charge. Cashman told them to consider the matter again.

This morning the prosecution laid a new indictment which read the same as the earlier one. Sladich re-elected to be tried by a judge without a jury and the prosecution called no evidence.

Cashman said there would be a finding of not guilty and he commended the prosecution.

Sorters' cheques on the way

The mail wasn't missing Wednesday — it simply wasn't mailed.

That's the word from postal officials on missing overtime cheques that should have been received by employees at the Glanford mail processing plant by March 15.

An unhappy mail sorter phoned the Times Wednesday to say the cheques had been lost in the mail and some sorters were upset enough to consider walking off the job.

That raised the possibility of there being no sorters to search for the missing mail.

Late Wednesday afternoon the post office learned the cheques had been mailed that same day.

Now it's simply a question of how long it will take to deliver the goods.

Small firms hit by transit charge

Corner stores and other small businesses are facing a $90 annual surcharge on their electrical bills — the same as large firms — to cover deficits when the Capital Regional District takes over public transit April 1.

But regional board directors Wednesday decided to ask the Urban Transit Authority to work out a way to overcome the inequity.

The board adopted a bylaw that will levy a surcharge of $12 per year on homes and $90 per year on all non-residential buildings — big or small — to cover this year's estimated $2,267,364 deficit.

The problem is setting standards differentiating between large and small businesses.

Executive director Dennis Young said the method of billing used by B.C. Hydro had a limited capacity for identifying different classifications.

But he said he thinks the UTA can come up with a flexible system.

The board previously had decided the deficit be shared equally by residential and non-residential hydro users.

Directors agreed an over-all levy of $90 would be unfair to small operations.

Board chairman Jim Campbell said it is imperative to "get the show on the road but all the non-residential surcharges should be based on the size of their bill."

Metchosin director Mac Tipton said the over-all levy of $90 per year is obviously unfair to "Aunt Minnie who sells tea on Sunday afternoons" being forced to pay the same as HMC Dockyard and The Empress.

Salt Spring Island director Yvette Valcourt, whose family owns a shopping centre, said it is an imposition to force such a levy on small units in a shopping centre.

Mothers collect $131,000

The Kinsmen Mother's March this year raised $131,000, 20 per cent more than last year.

The increase in donations will permit the Kinsmen Rehabilitation Foundaition of B.C. to expand services and establish a disabled living resource centre.

More than 4,000 volunteers worked on the month-long campaign.

Chamber goes world-wide in contest for Maggie role

Victoria Chamber of Commerce is thinking big in its search for a new role for the retired Princess Marguerite.

President Cedric Steele today announced a world-wide contest to get ideas for a non-operating use for the famous old ferry.

"We've got a real pro in mind to head up that committee, with contacts throughout the world," Steele said.

He said he hoped for global response and is suggesting the first prize might be an expense-paid holiday for two in Victoria.

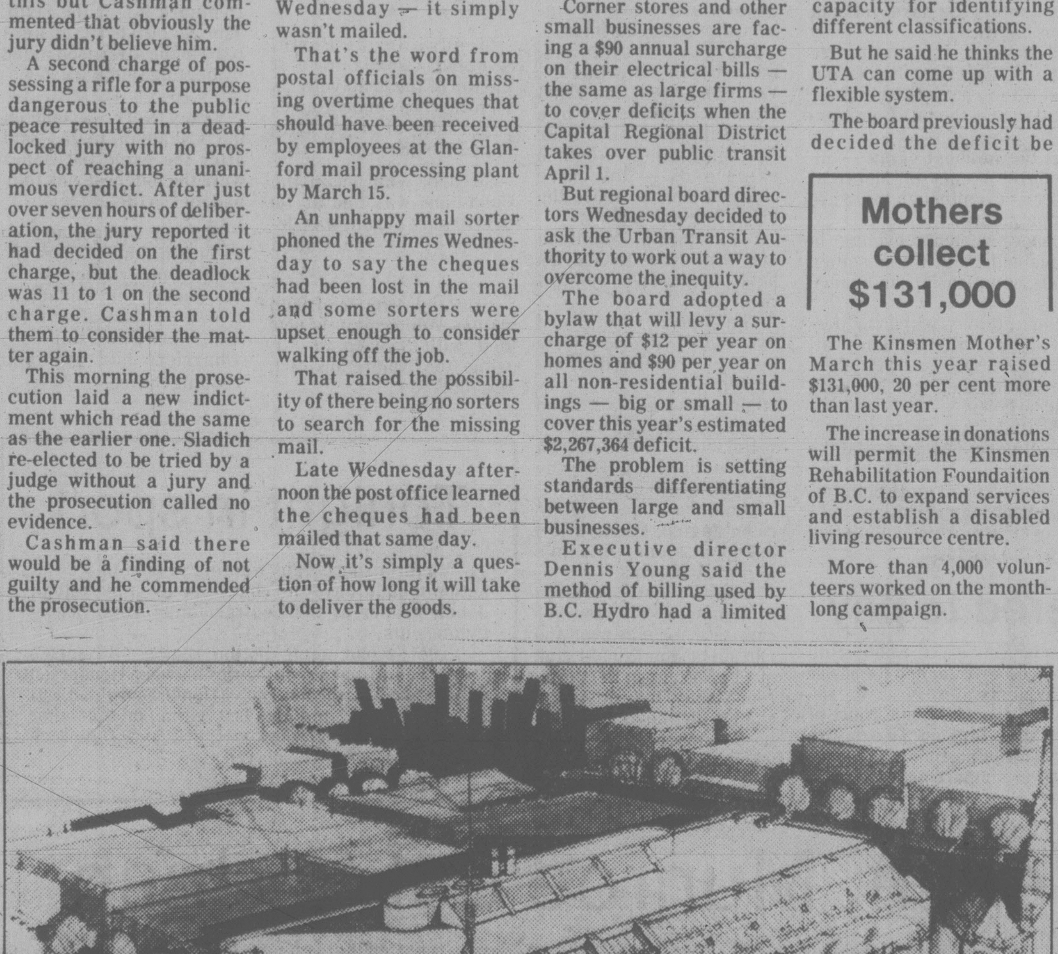
The Maggie will likely be moored permanently somewhere within the capital region, Steele said.

One of the most popular suggestions so far is that the vessel become a museum but the chamber thinks the contest may come up with other ideas.

Meanwhile, the chamber has applied to the federal government to incorporate a non-profit company to run the Maggie and operate a hydrofoil ferry to Seat[illegible]

Steele said Operation Jetfoil — the group's unofficial name — also asked Premier Bennett to grant a six-month option to lease or purchase the Maggie.

Bennett has been asked to reply by next week.



NEW CAPITOL THEATRE appears in architect's conceptual drawing, showing new six-theatre, 2,000-seat complex to be built at Blanshard and Yates in downtown Victoria. Architect Daryl Jorgenson of Vancouver says Famous Players Ltd. wants to start building by August, with completion date in early summer of 1981. The striking design — estimated at $4 million — also includes several stores on the Blanshard and View Street sides at sidewalk level. (John McKay photo)

Help asked in hit-run search

Saanich police are appealing to the public for help in finding a pickup truck which left the scene after colliding with a car at McKenzie and Cedar Hill Crossroad Wednesday night.

Police said extensive damage was done to the front end of the vehicle, believed to be a white and turquoise Ford pickup.

A spokesman said about $2,000 damage was done to the car, driven by Ann Horn, 60, of 3908 Stockton Crescent.

Mrs. Horn was not injured in the mishap which occurred at 7:20 p.m.

Anyone who might have seen the pickup, last seen speeding east on McKenzie, is asked to contact Saanich police at 388-4321.

With Moscow in view cyclists train on Island

Despite the rain and all the hills, Shawnigan Lake has replaced Florida as the national training camp site for Canadian cyclists whose wheels are pointed toward the Summer Olympics in Moscow.

Several of them had to hastily add fenders to their bikes after the camp opened last weekend and first runs were made in a steady downpour.

And as Gord Singleton of Niagara Falls, Ont., said before setting out for a 40-mile ride Wednesday morning:

"There sure are a lot more hills around here than where I come from!"

Still, the cyclists have found the spot, which is the Lions Easter Seal Camp for handicapped children in summer time, to be ideal in most other respects and have already made arrangements to come back again next year.

"The place we went to in Florida last year was just unreal!" national coach Norman Shiel explained. "We had to clear the snakes out of the lake before we could swim and the food was just awful. So this year it's quite a luxury to us."

No one misses the hot sun too much, either, for as Shiel pointed out the Shawnigan conditions are more like those the cyclists will encounter when the camp closes Mar.29 and they head to Europe to take in four big races. Another group will make a tour of Mexico and they'll all be back in B.C. for the Okanagan Valley Tour event May 17 to 19.

Right now time in the saddle is important, said Shiel, the former English Olympic cyclist who has his squad of 40 riders doing progressively longer each day.

The first day the cyclists, split into four groups, rode for an hour. Next day it was an hour and-a-half and the third day it was two hours. And they average 20 miles an hour, hills and all! As well, there is interval training and weight lifting so that when the summer comes the Canadians will be ready.

Shiel said the time standards just to make it to the Oympics are tough as a rider has to establish himself in the top 16 in the world. But even that isn't enough.

"We're not just looking at making it to the Olympics," he explained. "We're looking at placing in the top 10 in most events, to be honest about it, and in some events we're looking for medal performances."

Singleton, 23 now and ranked second behind East Germany's Lothar Thoms after his silver medal effort in last year's World Championships in Holland, is probably Canada's best hope for an Olympic medal.

"If he gets one it will be Canada's first cycling Olympic medal since way back in about 1908 when we got a bronze," Shiel said.

The athletic Singleton's speciality is the one-kilometer time trial on the track.

"You train hard all year and the race is all over in about 65 seconds, but you have to prepare as hard for it as cyclists doing the 120-mile road race," he explained.

Trying out for an Olympic berth in the road race is Victoria's Bernie Willock and also at the national camp are Bernie's Victoria Wheelers clubmates Michel Peron and Chris Cooney, though Shiel said the last two aren't quite up to Olympic standard yet and are training now "for future possibilities."

Quebecers Jocelyn Lovell in the sprints and Pierre Harvey in the road race are other distinct Canadian medal hopefuls. Harvey, who is also a top competitive skiier, took the silver medal in the road race in the 1978 Commonwealth Games in Edmonton.

There are five women at the national camp — including the very promising Carol Vanier of Montreal and Dawn Deeley of Vancouver — even though there are no events for them in the Olympic Games.

"They're scheduled to have women's cycling in the 1984 Olympics," Shiel explained. "But these women are here training for the World Championships in France in August."

Canada still hasn't said if our athletes will go to Moscow but the cyclists are very optimistic. They all discussed the matter for a long time Tuesday night and the general consensus was that they will be going — and, in fact, that they should be going.

"We have to adopt the attitude that we're going," said Shiel, "or we might as well pack it up and take the year off!"

And, as Victoria's Bernie Willock put it quite plainly:

"We're more in favor of going to the Olympics and I think all athletes, not just cyclists, are not satisfied with being used in political power plays . . ."

Bobby ordered to pay

WINNIPEG (CP) — A judge has given Bobby Hull until March 28 to pay his estranged wife Joanne the $6,000 he owes her in maintenance payments.

Mr. Justice Louis Deniset of the Manitoba Court of Queen's Bench also ordered Mrs. Hull on Tuesday to "provide financial particulars" to her husband.

The money owed is $3,000 in support payments for February and March.

Cougars lose chance and Smith

It wasn't a good night for Victoria Cougars.

They dropped a 5-2 Western Hockey League decision to the Winter Hawks in Portland, and, with it, the last good chance the Cougars had of finishing first atop the Western Division.

As well, the may have lost winger Bob Smith for the balance of the season.

Smith, Victoria's overage player, was taken to hospital after suffering an injury in the first period. Preliminary examination indicated a possible broken collar bone. X-rays today are expected to reveal the full extent of the injury.

If the collar bone is broken, it means Smith will probably miss the playoffs scheduled to get under way next week.

The Portland triumph, scored before 8,452 fans, virtually wrapped up first place for the Winter Hawks. They moved five points ahead of the Cougars and have two home games remaining — against Medicine Hat Tigers and the hot Seattle Breakers.

Victoria, nonetheless, has a slim mathematical hope. Hawks would have to lose both games while Victoria wins its final three — including visits to Seattle tonight and Sunday and a Memorial Arena encounter Saturday against New Westminster Bruins.

Two goals within 82 seconds in the second period, breaking a 1-1 deadlock, spurred the Hawks to victory. Portland thus wound up with a 7-5 won-lost record against Victoria and is the only team to enjoy a series edge over the Cats.

Tim Tookey sparked Portland's attack with a goal and three assists. John Multan, Ed Cooper, Dave Babych and Jim Dobson scored Hawks' other goals while Bob Jansch, with his 35th, and Greg Adams, with his 60th of the campaign, connected for Victoria.

The Winter Hawks came up with a strong skating and forechecking display to keep Victoria off balance. Hawks out-shot Victoria 33-27 and took advantage of three glaring miscues by Victoria defencemen to score three of the Portland goals.

In Seattle, the Breakers streaked to their fifth win in a row, and their sixth in eight games, by dumping Billings Bighorns 4-2 before 2,378 fans.

In Regina, rookie Mike Blaisdell had five goals and three assists as Regina Pats blasted Calgary Wranglers 15-9 in the highest-scoring game in WHL history. The 24 goals was one more than the 23 scored last year when Saskatoon Blades beat Edmonton Oil Kings 15-8.

Fourteen goals were scored in the second period alone. Blaisdell's fourth goal in the second period came at 19:59 and Calgary protested vehemently that it was scored after time had run out. The argument resulted in a 10-minute misconduct to Calgary's Glenn Merkosky and the ejection of Wranglers' coach Doug Sauter.

SPRING is busting out all over and there's baseball to go with it. In this bit of spring-like action Texas second baseman Bump Wills bites the dust at home plate as New York Yankees catcher Brad Golden (27) makes the tag and an umpire calls the play in Pompano Beach, Florida. Texas won 3-1.

Martin rink finds touch, now tied for seniors' lead

Times News Services

Defending champion Flora Martin and her Victoria rink are in high gear at the Canadian senior women's curling championships at Fredericton.

The B.C. champions, with Elsie Humphrey, Verle McKeown and Edna Messum completing the lineup, dropped two of their first three games — both in extra ends — but have charged back to share the lead after nine rounds.

B.C. Alberta, Manitoba and host New Brunswick have identical 6-2, won-lost records.

The Martin rink scored two more victories Wednesday — running their unbeaten streak to five — by edging Nova Scota 6-5 and coming back later for a 9-6 victory over the Manitoba rink skipped by Dorothy McKenzie of Winnipeg.

Manitoba won its eighth-round match, taking a 10-4 decision from Ontario's Mary Ritchie rink.

Alberta's Betty Jamison of Edmonton directed her rink to a 9-1 win over the Elizabeth MacDonald rink of Charlottetown in eighth-round play but missed a chance to move into sole possession of first place when upset 10-6 by Rita Proulx of Quebec City.

The host rink skipped by Mildred Jones of Saint John, N.B., won two games, a 8-5 victory over Nova Scotia and a 10-7 win over Quebec.

Meanwhile, at Perth, Scotland, Canada stood at the top of the heap with six victories in as many rounds after the shot-making ended Wednesday.

Sweden, with whom the Canadians was tied at 4-0 before play began, was defeated 8-5 by the United States.

Scotland, winner of both games Wednesday, is now tied with Sweden at 5-1, while the Americans, 4-2, are fourth.

The Canadian representatives, skippped by Marj Mitchell of Regina, defeated Switzerland 9-5 in the fifth round and downed Denmark 9-1 in the sixth. The Swedish team kept pace in the afternoon round by beating Denmark 15-6.

Nancy Kerr, second on the Canadian team, said after the game the Danes were the toughest rink they had met so far.

Playing Switzerland on an outside sheet where the ice was the trickiest so far for them, the Canadians took a 5-1 lead after three ends when Swiss skip Gady Charriere had problems reading the ice.

And in St. John's, Nfld., Jim Dunstone of Winnipeg was given a scare Wednesday and realizes that if his rink is to remain in contention at the Canadian mixed championships, it will have to improve.

The Dunstone rink takes a 6-1 record into a crucial meeting today with front-runner Rob McCubbin, who has his Richmond, B.C., rink in top spot in the 12-team round-robin with a 7-1, won-lost mark.

Manitoba was forced to steal three in the 10th end Wednesday against Northern Ontario and then three more in an extra end to defeat Dick Anderson of Sudbury.

"We didn't deserve it," Dunstone said after the game. "We had a bad day."

The 33-year-old skip said his biggest problem was reading the ice, which has changed since play started Sunday.

"I just thank my lucky stars we came out with a split today," he added, referring to an 8-6 loss to the Territories in ninth-round action.

Meanwhile, McCubbin, 46, continues to play each game as steady as the last.

He found no easy opponents as he edged Scott Saunders of Lunenburg, N.S., 6-4 in one game and Pat Mepham of Ste. Anne de Bellevue, Que., 7-5 in another.

Tonight in sport

Victoria sports fans wanting to take in a bit of action tonight have the chance to see a basketball double-header at the Central Junior High School gymnasium.

The second game in the senior "B" men's league semi-final playoff series between Henderson Realty and Strathcona Ivy's (Hendersons lead 1-0) goes at 7 p.m. and the last game in the other semi-final between Cuckoo Clock and DataTech (series tied 1-1) will be played at 9.

Gare scores one for dad

Times News Services

Danny Gare has scored some important goals in his six years in the National Hockey League, but probably none that meant quite as much as the one in Vancouver Wednesday night.

Gare's 47th goal of the season — and 205th of his NHL career — gave Buffalo Sabres a 3-3 tie with Vancouver Canucks. More important to Gare, however, was the presence of his father, Ernie, in the Pacific Coliseum crowd of 14,004.

The elder Gare had been honored earlier in the day by the British Columbia Amateur Hockey Association for his dedicated contribution to amateur hockey in the province. Danny made the acceptance speech in receiving the Diamond Stick Award because his father is unable to speak clearly because of a recent serious illness.

Asked after the game if he had saved the puck from the tying goal for his dad, Gare calmly said, "no, he's got enough of them already" at the family home in Nelson.

Gare's goal was a fluke at best because Derek Smith's desperate passout from the boards deflected off Gare's leg and into the Vancouver net past a startled Gary Bromley of the Canucks.

The Canucks, striving desperately for a playoff berth, scored three times in the second period to wipe out two power-play goals by Ric Seiling of the Sabres earlier in the same period.

Ivan Boldirev scored with the Sabres two men short, Stan Smyl got his 30th goal of the season and rookie Brent Ashton got just his fifth when a shot by defenceman Larry Goodenough hit him in the shoulder and deflected past netminder Bob Sauve.

In other games Minnesota defeated Boston Bruins 7-4 as Steve Christoff, the former U.S. Olympian, scored one goal and helped to set up two others; Toronto Maple Leafs routed Winnipeg Jets 9-1, Montreal Canadiens and Hartford Whalers tied 5-5, Edmonton Oilers upset New York Rangers 4-2, Chicago Black Hawks dumped Quebec Nordiques 5-2 and Los Angeles Kings edged Detroit Red Wings 4-3.

Darryl Sittler scored two goals, including the first ever by a Toronto player with the team two men shorthanded, to run his season total to 38. The Maple Leafs were directed behind the bench by Joe Crozier, coach of their New Brunswick farm club in the American League.

Crozier was summoned by general manager Punch Imlach, who had assumed the Leafs' head coaching job after Floyd Smith was injured in an auto accident late last week.

Blaine Stoughton's second goal of the game with 12 seconds remaining capped a four-goal, third-period Hartford outburst that lifted Hartford into its tie with Montreal, which had built up a 5-1 lead with less than 15 minutes to go.

With 7:03 remaining, Stoughton lifted the puck past Montreal goalie Denis Herron and then, with Whalers netminder Al Smith on the bench in favor of an extra skater, he beat Herron on the short side for the tying goal and his 47th of the season.

Flames president denies team sale

ATLANTA (AP) — Atlanta Flames president Bob Kent denied today the National Hockey League club was involved in sale talks with Calgary business interests.

Kent was commenting on a Toronto report that Flames owner Thomas Counsins is negotiating sale of the financially-plagued team for $14 million to Darryl, Donald and Byron Seaman, three Calgary businessmen said to be major shareholders in Bow Valley Industries, a petroleum firm worth an estimated $170 million.

The report quotes an unidentified NHL governor as saying the Flames would play in the 6,400-seat Calgary Corral for two seasons the move into a new arena being constructed as part of the city's bid for the 1988 Winter Olympics.

The Flames, purchased in 1972 for $6 million, is the only franchise which does not require unanimous consent of the NHL board of governors to relocate as long as the move doesn't infringe on territorial rights of an existing franchise.

McCrea in, Munroe out for Irish

By BILL WALKER

Joe McCrea is the new coach of the Mann Cup champion Victoria Shamrocks.

McCrea has been selected to replace Bill Munroe who led the Rocks to the Canadian championship last year but opted out his season because he felt he should spend more time with his family.

Munroe replaced Nirmal Dillon at the start of last year thus giving the Rocks their third coach in as many Western Lacrosse Association seasons.

McCrea, 33, has played for the Shamrocks the past four seasons and at the senior level for 12 years.

He has had no previous coaching experience but feels he knows what he wants from his players and is looking forward to the opportuniy of coaching the Irish.

Before coming to Victoria, McCrea played six years with Owen Sound of the Ontario Lacrosse Association and two with Boston Bolts of the National Lacrosse Association.

McCrea was selected by a team management committee and his choice has received full approval of player representatives Chris Hall, Art Webster and Larry Bell.

New club president Ted Espley reported that veterans Ranjit Dillon and Dennis Somner had retired, Ivan Thompson would be left to make up his own mind on his future and that three of the newer players with the club would be draft choices Jim Boyd, hero of the final Mann Cup series game; Paul Michaels and goalkeeper Mike Duch.

General manager Ralph Baker, who has replaced Leon Hall, said the club was negotiating with some Eastern players, but that no final decision had yet been made.

Espley also said the Shamrocks would be willing to deal with Nanaimo Timbermen for their draft choice Tarey Pollock, who played with the Shamrocks last season, but he didn't know if Nanaimo was interested at this time and he didn't want to be accused of tampering.

It was also announced that the leading team in the Western Lacrosse Association on June 22 would represent Canada West in the Nations Cup tournament to be held in Victoria, Vancouver and New Westminster in July. There will be five games in Victoria.

Shamrocks open the season May 3.

Canada's Olympic archery hopes slim

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's chances of winning a medal in archery at the Moscow Olympic Games appear to be a long shot.

Lucille Lemay of Boisbriand, Que., finished fifth over-all at the Montreal Olympics four years ago but faces stiff competition from team-mate Joan McDonald of Toronto and a strong field of foreign archers if she wants to move higher.

Canada has yet to win a medal in archery, which became an Olympic event in 1972. And Canada's ranking in world competition has been slipping in recent years, says Carol Mallett, executive-director of the Federation of Canadian Archers, the sport's national governing body.

"The rest of the world is progressing at a much faster pace and we're not keeping up," she said in an intereview.

Before 1977, Canada was ranked as high as fifth in the world; but based on last year's world championships, the women now are ranked 12th and the men 16th.

With the right combination of mental preparation — vital in archery — and physical conditioning, a Canadian archer could still win an Olympic medal, Mallett says.

Some archery observers say McDonald, a 37-year-old researcher and bronze-medal winner at last year's Pan-American Games in Puerto Rico, has been training hard and shooting well and may be in her best form for the Summer Games.

She finished second to Lemay at this winter indoor championships in Gimli, Man.

Other top contenders for the two spots on the women's team are Johanne Brisson of Quebec, who won the junior competition at Gimli and Linda Kazienko of Guelph, Ont., who was on the Canadian team along with McDonald at the 1979 world championships in Berlin.

The front runners for the two berths on the men's team are Roger Lemay, Lucille's husband, Chris Siatowski of Toronto, Chris Smith of Harvey Station, N.B., and Ted Gamble of Calgary who finished 16th at the Montreal Olympics.

The team will be selected after the federation's target trials at the armed forces base at Borden, Ont., May 16-19.

Twenty-two archers have already qualified to try for the Olympic team which will accompany most of the Olympic athletes to a three-week training camp at Hanover, West Germany.

They will go to Moscow July 25, seven days after the opening of the Games, for the four-day archery competition which starts July 30.

Barbarians shock St. Mikes

Claremont Spartans, Reynolds Roadrunners and Mt. Douglas Mountainmen all scored Greater Victoria high school rugby league victories Wednesday but the biggest surprise was Oak Bay Barbarians' 8-6 win over St. Michael's University School in an exhibition match.

Oak Bay, class of the league this season got tries from Paul Russell and Don Roskelly while SMU got two penalty goals from Chris Snape. SMU downed Oak Bay 19-10 in last season's Howard Russell Cup final but dropped out of the league this year to concentrate on the B.C. Independent Schools League.

James Christenson, Glen Perrin and Dan Hammick scored two tries each for Claremont and Hammick booted three conversions as the Spartans trounced Esquimalt Dockers 34-6. Jamie Shybitka also scored a try for Claremont and Esquimalt's scoring came from a try and conversion by Tom Woods.

With tries by James Marshall and Greg Pynn and a conversion from Russell Guerney, Reynolds defeated Stelly's Stingers 10-0.

Mt. Doug, getting tries from Barry Myron, Hong Kim and John Small and a total of two penalty goals and one conversion from kicker Colin Ayres, beat Belmont Braves 20-0.

Marathon to serve as Olympic trials

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Vancouver International Marathon on May 4 will serve as Canadian team trials for the Summer Olympics, race organizers have announced.

Race director Don Basham of Lions Gate Roadrunners said the possible boycott of the Moscow Games by western nations shouldn't detract from the second marathon sponsored by the club. The first race in 1979 served as trials for the Pan-Am Games.

"But I don't really think we need such events as Olympics and Pan-Am Games trials to make it a success," Basham said Tuesday. "We're drawing the majority of entrants from B.C., Washington and Oregon, and that trend will continue."

Basham said the 1980 race is expected to attract 2,000 runners — double the 1979 entrants — for the gruelling 26-mile, 385-yard test over city streets and parks.

Canadians hoping to meet the Olympic standard must attain two hours, 16.36 minutes, he said, something only three Canadians have accomplished recently. One of those was Victoria's Mike Creery of Lions Gate, who ran a 2:14.32 in a marathon last month in New Orleans.

Jerome Drayton of Toronto, considered Canada's best marathoner, has managed only a 2;24 so far this year, Basham added, and Drayton's status for the 1980 race isn't known.

Bill Scott of Australia, last year's winner, is expected to return to defend his title.

West Germany moves closer to boycott call

BONN, West Germany (AP) — Chancellor Helmut Schmidt edged closer Thursday to an outright call for boycotting the Moscow Olympics to protest the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan.

In a state of the nation address to parliament, Schmidt reiterated that it was up to the Soviet Union to "create the conditions under which athletes from all countries can participate" in the 1980 Summer Games.

Schmidt has avoided committing West Germany to a U.S.-led boycott of the Summer Olympics, saying his goverment will decide in mid-May before the deadline for sending acceptances to the Russian organizers.

His latest statement implied that West Germany would endorse a boycott unless Soviet troops are withdrawn by that date, but he also linked the decision to a unified stance by other Western European allies.

So far, only Britain, the Netherlands, Luxembourg and Norway have publicly favored a boycott.

In the speech, Schmidt said he did not support President Carter's call for Western trade sanctions against the Soviet Union because of its actions in Afghanistan.

B.C. shares hoop lead

WINNIPEG (CP) — British Columbia, New Brunswick and Manitoba are undefeated after the first day of competition here at the Canadian Senior Women's basketball championships.

British Columbia leads the A pool with a 2-0 record

Gail Klaber's 15-point performance led B. C. to an 80-40 win over Newfoundland. Joanne Sargent had 14 points and Bev Barnes 13 for the winners. Klaber netted 19 points and Angie Dobie 18 in B. C.'s 79-66 victory over Alberta.

Kathy Dubesky scored 30 points and Angie Straub 26 as Manitoba thrashed Saskatchewan 91-70.

Sylvia Blumenfeld scored 14 points to lead New Brunswick to a 68-64 win over Nova Scotia.

In other action, Nova Scotia defeated Saskatchewan 69-57 and Alberta edged Ontario 73-72.

Shuttle tourney

Competition starts Friday in the three-day, sixth annual University of Victoria open badminton tournament at the McKinnon and "old" gymnasiums at UVic.

Open to the community as well as UVic students, staff and faculty, the event is for players of 14 years or older and includes mixed doubles and singles and doubles in women's and men's sections.

Lebanese decide to go

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — The Lebanese Olympic Commission decided Thursday to participate in the 1980 Olympic Games in Moscow.

A statement said the decision was taken in response to an extended invitation from the host commission.

The breif statement made no mention of the U.S. call for boycotting the Moscow Olympics in protest against the Soviet military intervention in Afghanistan.

Lebanon usually sends weightlifters to the Olympics.

Finnish hurdlers barred

HELSINKI (Reuter) — Four Finnish hurdlers, refused permission to train in the United States, were told it was because of American plans to boycott the Moscow Olympics. The four, who include Arto Bryggare, Finland's best hurdler, were due to leave today for Florida. But a message told them facilities would not be available there as they were training for the Olympics.

Hendersons romp over Ivy's

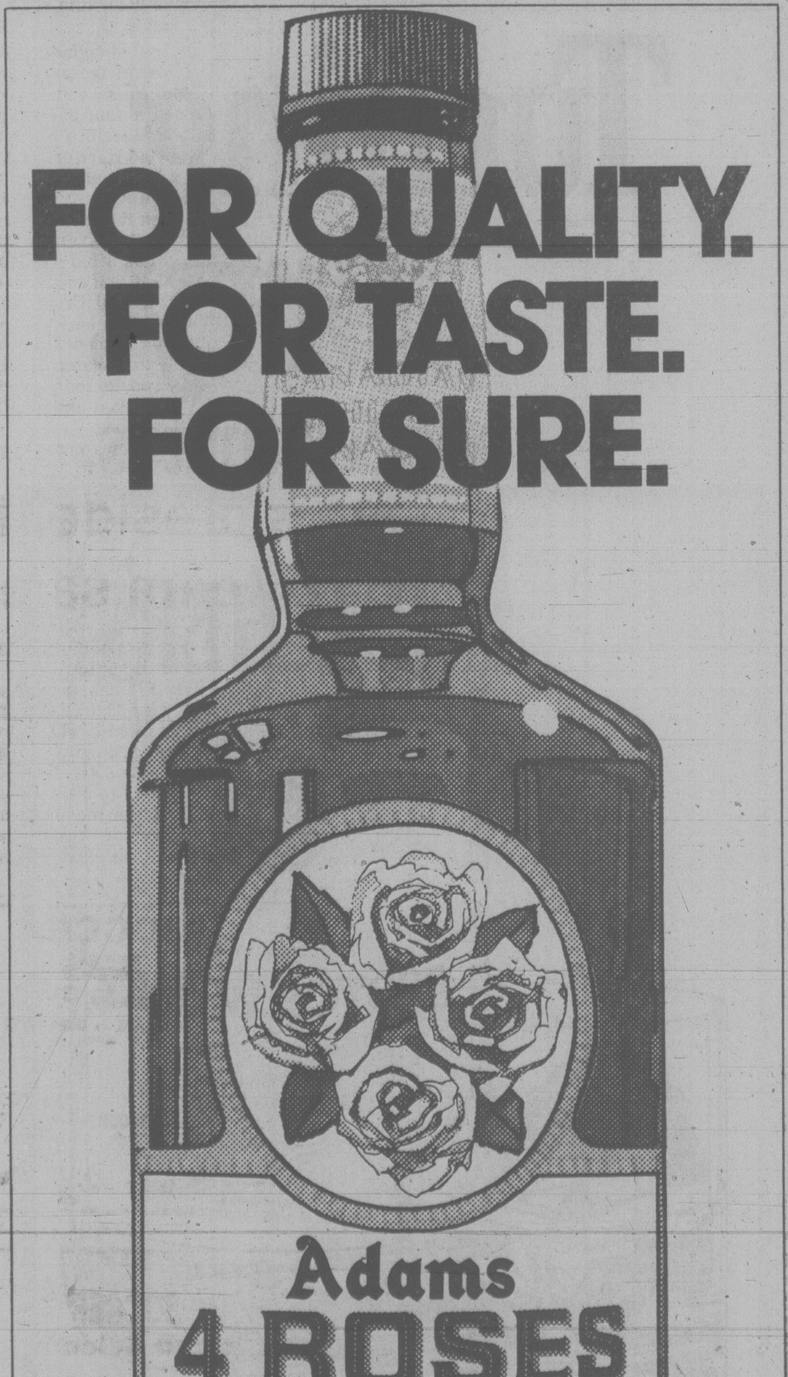
Three players poured in more than the combined total of their rivals Wednesday as Henderson Realty came up with the power display in the opening game of their best-of-three Victoria Senior "B" Men's Basketball League semi-final series with Strathcona Ivy's.

Chris Trumpy, with 34 points, Quinn Groenhyde, with 29, and guard Robbie Parris, with 26, packed most of the punch as Hendersons, the regular-season champions, turned back Ivy's 120-80 at Central Junior High.

Brian Sutherland-Brown counted 22 for Ivy's.

At S.J. Willis, Gary Budd fired 27 and Gord Hoshal added 20 as Cuckoo Clock clipped DataTech 104-87 to deadlock their semi-final series 1-1. Bob Burrows scored 29 points and Brian MacKenzie added 19 for DataTech, which trailed 58-57 at the half.

Both series resume in a double-header tonight with Henderson's taking on Ivy's at 7 and Cuckoo Clock playing DataTech at 9, both at Central.



A FIRESTONE TIRE SALE MEANS MORE THAN JUST BIG SAVINGS.

Big savings is a very good reason to take advantage of our Deluxe Champion Polyester tire sale.

A Firestone tire sale means much more. It means long mileage and a smooth ride on a quality 7-rib polyester tire, designed for today's driving conditions. It means we install your tires at No Extra Charge. It means you're protected by Firestone's Nationwide Tire Warranty ...and it means your tires can be purchased on our Firestone Credit Plan, or use your Visa, Master Charge or American Express card.

You can see, a Firestone tire sale means more than just big savings...but there's a lot to be said for big savings.

Australians in fine stand

LAHORE, Pakistan (Reuter) — An unbeaten 150 by Alan Border helped Australia into a commanding position on the second day of the third cricket test against Pakistan on Wednesday.

At the close, Pakistan had made 42 for one in reply to the tourists' first innings 407 for seven declared.

Victoria squads in rugby tourney

Three Victoria-area clubs are scheduled to compete Saturday and Sunday in the 22nd annual Monterey national rugby tournament in California.

James Bay Athletic Association, Castaways and Oak Bay Wanderers of Victoria and Vancouver Rowing Club will be bidding for honors

We are 1st and 2nd in a class of 477.

Transport Canada's 'Fuel Consumption Guide 1980' lists 477 cars. Heading the list is the Volkswagen Rabbit Diesel with 5-speed manual transmission.

Number 2 on the list is the same car with 4-speed transmission.

So, if you're smart about fuel economy, go to the head of the class.

Mechanized switchboards will replace existing boards, right, by 1981 in major B.C. Tel expansion

Fibre-optic phones coming

By AB KENT

B.C.'s first operational fibre optic telephone transmission line will be installed in Victoria as part of a $42 million B.C. Tel spending program on Vancouver Island this year.

Fibre optic technology is the most advanced land-based communications development and was used for the first time this year in a long-distance trunk for Saskatchewan telephone system.

The $4 million Victoria line — connecting B.C. Tel's central switching centre on Yates Street with Smith Hill microwave terminal — will raise long-distance capacity between the capital, Nanaimo and lower mainland to 1,344 voice channels when completed.

Fibre optic cable replaces thousands of pairs of conventional copper wires with a single filament of tubular glass capable of carrying great volumes of voice and electronic data traffic simultaneously.

The company has been monitoring an experimental fibre optic line to its Burnaby office and now considers the project successful, a spokesman said.

About $1.8 million will be spent on other projects in Victoria, one to mechanize switchboards to improve long distance calling by direct dialling to 32 overseas points, and to provide a computer-controlled regional network centre for the company's Vancouver Island operations.

The Duncan area will get more than $1 million worth of new cable for residential and commercial customers, $12,000 for new overhead lines serving Chemainus, $125,000 for improvements in Cobble Hill including 600 new local lines, and $140,000 for a submarine cable connecting Caycuse Camp with Youbou and Nitinat Camp.

Most of the capital program — slightly less than the $42.2 million earmarked in the division last year — will be directed to Nanaimo and Campbell River areas, two of the fastest growing in the system.

Included for Nanaimo are a $4.4 million microwave radio system, more switching equipment to meet local and long distance calling needs, and a Phone Mart. Campbell River will get a new electronic office, improved microwave systems, enlarged long distance centre, and expanded local calling to six other districts in the area.

Division customer service manager George Holmes expects the 318,000 telephones on Vancouver Island to rise by 17,700 by year-end.

French language camp slated at Shawnigan

University of Victoria is co-operating with two French language programs this month and in April for school age children.

The first is a series of day camps at Shawnigan Lake on the second last Saturday of each month from 9:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. for campers 15-17 years.

Juniors, aged 13-15, will attend on the last Saturday of each month during the same hours.

Sponsor is L'Alliance Francaise and transportation from downtown Victoria will be provided. Further information may be obtained from Monique Clebant at the university, 477-6911 local 4515, Mondays 1-5 p.m. or Fridays 9 a.m.-1 p.m.

The second program is a day of workshops and a panel discussion for French Immersion Day at UVic April 19.

It will offer descriptions of French immersion programs available through the public schools, and follows a similar format to an information day held two years ago when about 150 attended.

Clerbant, who is special co-ordinator for French language programs of UVic extension department, said the education ministry, Greater Victoria School District and French nationals will be represented, including consul Paul Bazin and cultural attache Jean Robert Faure.

UVic extension and Canadian Parents for French are co-sponsors.

French immersion programs are available at Willows and Quadra elementary schools in Victoria, and School District 63 is planning one starting in September at Central Saanich School.

A $10 fee — $15 for families — includes a box lunch, and registration, available from Mrs. Diane Sutherland, 1171 Kings, V8T 1X5, must be in by April 4. Inquiries should go to 595-1960 or 477-8023.

Airwest kept by Teamsters

The Teamsters Union will continue to represent 115 pilots and maintenance workers at Airwest Airlines.

The workers voted 59 per cent in favor of representation by the Teamsters in a ballot ordered by the Canada Labor Relations Board.

The vote followed an unsuccessful takeover bid by the Regional Aviation Employees Association.

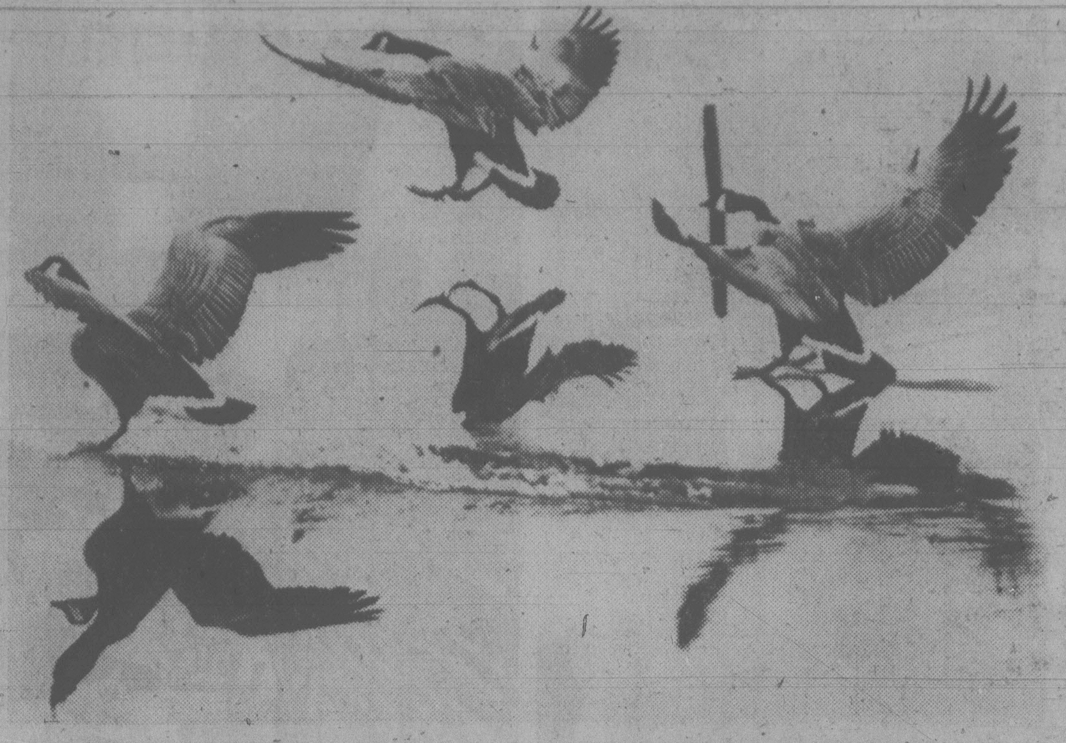
Acquittal in death of Victorian

QUESNEL (CP) — RCMP Constable Mike Kirvin, 26, of 100 Mile House, was aquitted Wednesday on a manslaughter charge in the death of a Victoria man.

Kirvin was charged last November after Norman John Taylor, 21, was fatally wounded during an attempted holdup at 100 Mile House.

The defence contended during the B.C. Supreme Court trial in Quesnel that the shooting was involuntary and accidental.



HEAD-FIRST LANDING? Dim-witted Canada goose in the middle of this flock appears to be trying a somersault landing at Burnaby Lake. But it's just the reflection of the more graceful goose above.

Worker startled by hanging skull

VANCOUVER (CP) — Aniello Cannova looked as if he had seen a ghost Tuesday as he hurtled out of the trees in front of his startled workmates.

Cannova, a member of the city engineering works crew, was scouting for scrap lumber along a wooded strip in the south part of the city when he came across the sight that gave him the fright of his life.

"There was a human skull hanging from a rope," he said. "I didn't stay around to examine it."

Three workers returned to the spot, about 50 metres from a busy highway, to investigate and found a full human skeleton.

Most of the remains were lying at the foot of a hemlock tree, while the head was hanging from a rope suspended from three nails about three metres up the trunk.

Scattered around the tree were six plywood boards, indicating some sort of rude shelter.

Police think the skeleton belonged to someone who may have committed suicide — possibly more than a year ago.

The only other signs of human habitation were a rotting mattress and a metal drum with a hole cut into the side for possible use as a primitive heater.

A police spokesman said the body could be that of a man in his 50s who lived in the area for several years. Described as an scavenger at a nearby dump, he was last seen by police a year ago.

At that time he complained about being forced to move to the south side of the road after construction started.

Police are awaiting a pathologist's report on the skeleton.

Lawyers advertise at lunch?

VANCOUVER (CP) — A committee of the Law Society of B.C. was told at a disciplinary hearing Wednesday there is no difference between lawyers soliciting business by taking their clients to lunch and lawyers advertising their rates via direct mail.

Vancouver lawyer Jack James is answering charges that direct mail advertising to solicit customers by his law firm, the Law Shoppe, is "conduct unbecoming the profession" and contrary to the society's rules of ethics.

Letters mailed included advertising brochures and a price list for legal services offered.

His counsel, Arthur Vertleib, argued in his final summation that James was merely advertising in his own way, and that in that respect he is no different from other lawyers.

"Lawyers solicit business by taking people to lunch, by taking people to hockey games . . . and I'm not faulting that. We all know lawyers solicit business and it's rank hypocrisy to go after James for soliciting business."

But committee chairman Douglas Hogarth argued that if all of B.C.'s lawyers operated in the same manner, it might be uncontrollable.

"There's a big difference between someone meeting over lunch and somebody that writes a letter," Hogarth said.

Weapons charge dropped

KITIMAT (CP) — One of three charges laid against former Surrey mayor Ed McKitka in this community was dropped Wednesday.

Court authorities said they dropped a charge of possession of a dangerous weapon but will proceed with charges of common assault and failure to appear in court.

The charges were laid after Terry Gresl of Kitimat told police he was hit on the head and threatened with a knifee at a go-cart track last year.

The date for a court appearance has not been set.

Short term only

VANCOUVER (CP) — A $2.8 million budget for 1980-81 for the B.C. coroner service is adequate for current operations, but makes no provision for long-term planning, a spokesman for Chief Coroner Dr. William McArthur's office said Wednesday.

Most of the new budget will be spent on increased salaries and fees for the five full-time coroners and the more than 130 part-time ones who handle inquests throughout the province, and to hire additional staff.

Police to vote

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Vancouver Policemen's Union will vote next week on the McTaggart inquiry report into the dispute which threatened the city with its first police strike.

Labor Minister Jack Heinrich presented Judge Donald McTaggart's nonbinding report to the union and the Vancouver Police Board on Tuesday.

Details will not be available until the 930 union members see the report.

Hearing begins

DELTA (CP) — A preliminary hearing began Wednesday into a charge that Delta police inspector Bob Allison attempted to influence a Crown counsel not to lay a criminal charge against one of the policeman's relatives.

Allison was charged following an investigation into the Delta police force by the B.C. Police Commission and the RCMP.

Betting thief jailed

VANCOUVER (CP) — A former hotel employee who went on a gambling spree to Calgary and Las Vegas with $7,800 of the hotel's money, was sentenced Wednesday to eight months in jail.

Andre Gagne, 32, surrendered to police in February after disappearing Jan. 3 with $15,000 of the hotel's money.

Gagne, who pleaded guilty to the theft, said that as part of his job at the hotel he went across the street every week to a bank to have $15,000 in small denominations changed into $100s.

Not enough trees

NELSON (CP) — The B.C. Forest Service's new five-year tree planting program is inadequate, says Peter Kendall, a spokesman for B.C. tree planters.

Kendall, president of Pacific Reforestation Workers Association, said Wednesday about 175 million trees need to be planted every year to keep up with current harvest levels and compensate for inadequate planning in the past, but the program announced Friday by Forests Minister Tom Waterland calls for only 80 million trees to be planted next year.

Poison board man quits

VANCOUVER (CP) — A member of the appeal board hearing objections to the use of poison to kill B.C. wolves and coyotes resigned from the 10-man board Wednesday.

Two of B.C.'s largest ranches are opposed to poisoning.

Dale Alsager, owner of the Gang Ranch, resigned after two appellants questioned his possible conflict of interest in the hearings. Alsager and C.N.W. Woodward of Douglas Lake Ranch are opposed to the use of poisons.

The appeal board is holding hearings into a five-year permit issued to the provincial wildlife branch to use poison.

Before the judge

A 21-year-old man who pleaded guilty to the Dec. 10 holdup of a Langford service station was sentenced in provincial court Wednesday to two years less a day.

Paul Michael McHale, 762 Goldstream, was charged with armed robbery and using a firearm during a holdup.

The Pay-Less gas station at 1988 Jacklin was robbed of $187 by three persons who walked into the station at about 11 p.m.

McHale asked for a package of cigarettes and produced a pellet gun when the attendant turned away for a moment. There was no money in the till but the attendant's wallet was taken.

Erich Peter Tworuschka, of the same address, has been remanded to April 24 for sentencing on the same charge while 26-year-old Gary Edward Trimm, also of the same address, waived his preliminary hearing and was committed for higher-court trial.

McHale also had three other armed robbery charges waived to Victoria from the Mainland and entered guilty pleas.

Crown counsel Robert Mulligan said the first one was a Nov. 28 holdup of a Chilliwack service station in which a knife was held to the throat of an attendant and $236 taken.

The second was a Dec. 2 holdup of a Chilliwack grocery store in a which a gun was produced by McHale, who was masked, and $100 taken.

The third was a Dec. 4 holdup of a Langley food market.

McHale was given one year less a day for each of the four robbery convictions, all sentences to be served concurrently, and a consecutive year on the weapons offence.

Judge Lorne Pearce also prohibited McHale from possessing any firearm, ammunition, or explosives for 10 years.

Bruce William Mooring, 21, was sentenced to two years less a day after pleading guilty to robbery with violence.

Court was told Mooring went to the home of George Lindsay Gardiner, 78, of 1204 Yates, about 9 p.m. Sunday and asked for money to travel to Halifax.

Mulligan said an argument ensued after Gardiner refused the loan. Gardiner was heading to the kitchen to get a knife to protect himself when he was beaten with Mooring's belt buckle and kicked. He suffered broken ribs, a ruptured spleen, and head cuts.

He was bound and gagged, and Mooring took between $200 and $300 of his money before cutting the telephone wire and leaving. He was picked up the next night by Victoria police.

Mooring had been convicted Jan. 15, 1976, in Truro, N.S., and May 10, 1979, in Victoria, for possession of stolen property and given a suspended sentence the first time and time already spent in custody and six months probation on the second. He was also convicted Feb. 2, 1979, in Victoria of robbery with violence and sentenced to one day in jail.

The judge said he would recommend Mooring serve his time in a forestry camp and also prohibited him from possessing any firearm, ammunition, or explosives for 10 years.

6 months for break-in

Thomas Rudolph Boge, 20, was sentenced in county court Wednesday to six months in jail after pleading guilty to breaking and entering and theft Oct. 5, 1978, at the Lakehill Athletic Association building in Braefoot Park.

Judge Frederick Melvin also placed him on two years probation with the condition that he pay $86 for the damage and stolen pop, chocolate bars, weiners and a hot plate. Melvin said he was only ordering him to pay half the total damage and theft because another individual was involved.

Boge has a previous conviction for breaking and entering and theft and two convictions for possession of stolen property.

Fraud trial to Vancouver

The case of a Victoria resident and four other men charged in connection with the sale of land in the Cayman Islands to B.C. residents will be transferred to Vancouver, Kamloops provincial court Judge George Lamperson said Wednesday.

Glen Kemp of Victoria, David Allison, Gerhard Nargang and James Williams, all of Kelowna, and John Allison of Edmonton, are charged with more than 50 counts of conspiracy, fraud and false pretences.

Jada Housing Development Corp. also is charged.

Lamperson said there was no reason to have the matter dealt with in Kamloops because Vancouver is a more central location for all involved.

Preliminary hearing was set for March 21 in Vancouver provincial court.

Christian heads AMS

University of Victoria second-year classics student Angus Christian, 24, has been elected president of the university's Alma Mater Society.

Mark Beduz, 23, a fourth-year education student is the new vice-president of finance and vice-president of programs is Lorraine Osselton, 18, a first-year economics and political science student.

Peter Holmes, 23, who is majoring in history, is the new vice-president of services.

All take office on April 1.

A trip back home could mean death

By MIKE HUGHES

Marta Gloria Torres plans on going back home to Guatemala one day but right now she fears such a trip would be fatal.

She's a labor lawyer and union organizer and because she was active in Guatemala City during the second half of 1978, she and her husband, along with 36 others, were put on the Death List.

That's the military government's shopping list of so-called dissidents who are to be shot or tortured and then killed.

The list the Torres were on came out Oct. 18, 1978 and two days later the death squad swung into action.

In one case, a student leader was shot and killed after a demonstration in Quatemala City's main park in full view of the police and 1,500 people.

In the next seven months 14 more people on the list were killed.

At the end of December, 1978, the Torres and their four children fled the country and now are in political exile in Costa Rica.

He is working in a university there and she spends some of her time spreading the word about how bad things are under Guatemala's military dictatorship led by President Romeo Lucas Garcia.

She has visited a number of B.C. communities, including Vancouver where she recently spoke to church and labor groups.

Torres visited several Vancouver Island centres this week.

On Friday she will be in Victoria to give a talk at 7:30 p.m. at St. George's Anglican church, 3909 St. George's lane.

The next day she will take part in a workshop from 9:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the church.

Torres says it's not easy being a labor lawyer in a country where less than two per cent of the work force is organized and both the companies and the government want it to remain that way.

In 1977, while driving their own car, she and her husband were forced off the road by a government vehicle. Her husband spent three months in hospital.

Another person who worked with the Torres in 1978 was killed in July of that year.

Another three labor organizers were working with employees at a Coca Cola plant in Quatemala City.

Shortly after the Torres' left the country, two of these people were killed and the third one escaped.

On Oct. 15, 1979, the 16-year-old daughter of a woman who was working with Torres was seized by a group of 20 men and gang raped.

She is still alive but blind. The only reason she was allowed to live, Torres feels, is because a photographer managed to get a picture of her in a police car and the picture was widely distributed.

There was a deluge of letters, phone calls and cables sent to the government complaining about the girl's treatment and this public outcry probably saved her life.

Workers are afraid to organize into unions because many of their leaders have been killed. A total of 15,000 people have been killed in the last five years.

The end doesn't come quickly for most of them either, Torres said, as in many case these people are tortured for days before being killed.

She said there are signs recently that the peasants are beginning to organize and that is their only hope.

Torres said in the Coca Cola plant, workers are paid as little as $1.99 for an eight-hour day.

Inco, which began operating an open-pit nickel mine in 1976, pays between $3 and $4 a day.

Nor is the cost of living that much lower than the U.S. or Canada, she said.

She says a dozen eggs cost $1 and a pint of milk — not pure but watered down — would be 40 cents.

In many workplaces, conditions are inhumane, Torres says. Workers are forced to work overtime and not paid extra. If they complain, they are fired.

And with 40 per cent unemployment, there's always someone around to replace them.

Supervisor shows how to get red sweat

Airline 'red sweat' was life jacket ink

MIAMI (AP) — Eastern Airlines says its red sweat mystery has been solved — and it was no sweat at all.

The puzzling specks that had some flight attendants worried they were sweating blood were flakes of red ink from life preservers.

The case was cracked after an intense airborne detective operation in which Eastern doctors, company supervisors and government experts rode jets up and down the Atlantic Coast to see what was wrong.

The elusive malady seemed to strike only Eastern flight attendants and only on flights from New York to Miami and Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

Victims told doctors they broke out in a rash of small, fluid-like red dots. Some said they itched or burned. But the "red sweat" usually vanished before the victim could see a physician.

"A red type of ink that is used on our demonstration life vest matches material which has been removed from the skin of flight attendants who were suffering the so-called red sweat phenomenon," Dr. David Millett, Eastern's flight medicine director, said Wednesday.

The mystery was solved last week when Eastern supervisors watched attendants demonstrate the yellow rubber life preservers carried on some flights. Stenciled on the jackets in bright red letters were the words: "Demo Only."

As attendants put the jackets on and removed them, tiny red flakes fell on their skin, said Edwina Gilbert, Eastern vice-president for in-flight services. She tried it herself and caught a mild case of red sweat: a bright crimson flake just below one eye.

Labor unrest racks new Rhodesian gov't

SALISBURY (UPI) — Labor unrest mushroomed Wednesday with more black workers going on strike despite appeals by Prime Minister Robert Mugabe's new government that the workers be patient.

The Ministry of Labor and Social Welfare said nine more firms reported strikes Wednesday. Of the 3,900 new strikers, 550 resumed work within hours, 380 were fired and the others faced a threat of dismissal unless they went back to work.

On Tuesday, the ministry reported strikes at six plants and government sources said some 4,000 workers were involved. About 900 were still out, 180 were fired and the others returned to their jobs.

The firms reported hit by strikes Tuesday mostly dealt in textiles. Those involved Wednesday included electronics, construction and mining concerns as well.

A Labor ministry spokesman said the unrest was caused by a variety of reasons ranging from demands for higher pay to demands that contributions to workers pension funds be returned.

Labor Minister Kumbirai Kangai urged workers Tuesday to obey existing labor laws and refrain from striking before negotiations take place.

He also asked them to wait until Mugabe's government has a chance to work out new industrial policies and make good on election promises to hike wages and improve conditions.

Subway angels ride to the rescue

By CLIFFORD KRAUSS

NEW YORK (UPI) — Eight tough ghetto youths wearing red berets piled into a crowded No. 5 subway car at the dingy 138th Street station in the South Bronx. It was nearly midnight.

A few passengers in the car were startled. But most continued to read their newspapers or gaze vacantly at advertisements and the blotches of multicolored graffiti that streak the walls and windows of the train.

The "red berets" are the Guardian Angels, a volunteer civilian patrol committed to making New York's 230-mile subway system safe.

"Some people get nervous when they see us," said Damon Withey, 18, an Angel patrol leader from a tough Brooklyn neighborhood. "I try to explain we're the good guys — not the bad guys."

Curtis (The Rock) Sliwa, 24, founder of the 250-man group, silently leaned against a side door of the speeding southbound train until it reached the 125th Street station in Harlem.

He looked out the door to survey the station for potential muggers.

"People better start banding together," he said.

Subway crime is on the increase.

Last month, Transit Police Officer Seraphin Calbrese was shot to death with his own gun in a struggle with an alleged turnstile jumper in Manhattan.

In Queens, four passengers were attacked by a man with a meat cleaver in two separate incidents.

In Brooklyn, a man entering a subway survived being shot in the back with a bow and arrow. And during one recent week, three people were pushed onto subway tracks at different stations.

Sliwa deplored the failure of the public to get involved. "The way it used to be," he said, "a cop had to protect the criminal so he wasn't mauled by the crowd."

That attitude may be undergoing a renaissance, however. In Brooklyn last month, passersby wrestled to the ground a man who allegedly had shot and wounded two police officers. Civilians helped capture a man who allegedly shoved a passenger onto the tracks in Queens.

Sliwa said one way to "show those bums the public has had enough" is to organize a "volunteer force" of 15,000 people trained in the martial arts to patrol the subways in eight-man groups.

Sliwa's volunteer Guardian Angels must have no criminal record, either be employed or in school and undergo six months of free Guardian training in karate. They are expected to be ready for patrols at least one night a week.

Transit Police officials take a "neutral" position on the Guardian Angels.

"We have no formal position on them. We don't stop them but we haven't extended our approval to them either," a Transit Authority spokesman said.

Two years ago, when the Guardian Angels had so few members they called themselves the Magnificent 13, Transit Police offered them walkie-talkies to enhance their effectiveness.

Sliwa said he refused the offer because it was conditional. The Transit Police wanted three red berets to accompany patrolmen on station platforms only.

"There was no sense of us being there when there already was a cop there," said Sliwa, a muscular man who rides the cold subway in layers of T-shirts and sweatshirts. "We are an additional force. We go on the problem trains."

Anthrax confirmed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Soviet Union has confirmed that it suffered an outbreak of anthrax last year.

But it says the disease was caused by bad food handling, not biological warfare agents, U.S. state department officials said today.

The quick Soviet response to questions raised by the United States will be studied before it is accepted. But the U.S. officials said it seems to be plausible.

The department asked the Soviet Union last Saturday for an explanation of reports on an anthrax outbreak. Such reports have been accumulating for more than six months.

The department confirmed publicly Tuesday that it believed an outbreak had occurred last April in the Soviet city of Sverdlovsk, a city closed to foreigners, killing several hundred people. Department spokesman David Passage said the department was concerned that the outbreak might have been caused by bacteriological warfare agents.

The Soviet news agency Tass, while denying any violation of the bacteriological warfare treaty, said:

"Everyone who has even the slightest knowledge of medicine knows that hotbeds of epidemics arise from time to time in various parts of the world."

In London, The Financial Times reported that a Sverdlovsk newspaper, Vercherny Sverdlovsk, carried warnings to residents last spring about "Siberian ulcer," a Russian term for anthrax.

Saint's day ferry tragedy

NEW DELHI (AP) — Thirty-five bodies, including 30 of women and children, were recovered from a ferryboat that sank Wednesday with about 300 passengers aboard, police reported from Cochin, about 1,400 kilometres south of Bombay.

Many survivors swam to safety, but an eventual death toll of more than 50 was feared, the United News of India reported.

The ferry St. Xavier, jammed with Roman Catholics returning from a St. Joseph's Day feast at a church near Cochin, suddenly listed and then sank in an artificial lake.

Thai troops force back refugees

REHOU, Cambodia (UPI) — Thai troops used tanks and artillery fire today to force more than 100,000 panic-stricken Cambodian refugees back across the border to their battle-scarred camp.

The refugees fled to Thailand Wednesday because of a dispute between rival Cambodian warlords that erupted into bloody internecine warfare at the primitive Rehou settlement straddling the border, 150 miles east of Bangkok.

At least 33 people, most of them women and children, were killed and an estimated 80 others wounded in the fighting that raged through this morning.

Bodies of civilians killed in the crossfire between rival Cambodian factions were strewn across the camp's dusty paths. At least three bodies, evidently those of anti-Communist Khmer Serei soldiers, were found blindfolded and their hands tied behind their backs.

The frightened, hungry and thirsty refugees huddled by the roadside just inside Thai territory until the fighting died down and they were confronted by Thai officers ordering them to return to the Cambodian zone.

The Thai troops first fired five or six rounds of artillery into the air and one officer said the explosions were designed to encourage the Cambodians "to return to where they came from."

Thai officers armed with bullhorns drove jeeps around the clusters of refugees ordering them to get back across the border.

In a show of force, eight Thai tanks and armored personnel carriers pulled up behind the refugees and a spotter plane buzzed the area.

Straggling down the road with bundles of hastily gathered possessions, the refugees, many obviously in a state of shock, slowly filtered back into the camp where they found the most main buildings and about 25 thatched huts in smouldering ruins.

Van Saren, self-styled chief of Khmer Serei troops who reign at Rehou, had disappeared from the camp and refugees said he had been arrested by Thai authorities.

Western relief workers said the fighting erupted because one Khmer Serei faction tried to overthrow Van Saren and gain control of the lucrative black market in aid rice.

Another charity-home razed

LONDON (AP) — A fire swept through a home for handicapped children near Carluke, Scotland, late Wednesday, but all residents were successfully evacuated. It is the third charity-home fire in Britain in 36 hours.

Officials said 40 children were wheeled or led to safety by staff members at the Braidwood Home in Lanarkshire, central Scotland, and were taken to a home in nearby Wishaw for the night. Two of the children were treated at hospital for smoke inhalation.

Earlier Wednesday, eight men were rescued from a London East End hostel for homeless men. Four were treated in a hospital for smoke inhalation and shock.

Nine women died in a fire at a hostel for destitute women in north London on Tuesday run by the Roman Catholic nuns of the Missionaries of Charity, the order founded by Nobel peace prize winner Mother Teresa of Calcutta.

Thatcher sets timid sights on Napoleon's tunnel vision

LONDON (UPI) — A tunnel under the English channel — or "Chunnel" — Wednesday moved a step closer to reality, 178 years after it was first envisioned by Napoleon.

Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's government gave the first cautious go-ahead for the project, but warned it would not be financed by taxpayers' money.

Transportation Minister Norman Fowler, replying to formal questions in the House of Commons, said more planning was needed before the government would fully approve British Rail's proposed $1.54 billion single-track Chunnel.

But, he added, "The cost of any scheme will be very large and I should make clear now that the government cannot contemplate finding expenditure on this scale from public funds."

Full details of the proposal, including details of construction and financing, are to be put to Fowler this summer.

If the British and French governments both approve the project, the next step would be for them to make a proposal to the Common Market, which would provide a signficant amount of the money. An underwater link between Britain and France was first proposed by Napoleon in 1802.

The latest proposal calls for a single-track system that would run one hour in one direction and then one hour in the other. It would not carry cars and only a maximum of 120 trains a day in both directions.

Experts said it would take seven to eight years to build the link under the 22-mile channel.

British Rail chairman Sir Peter Parker claims the single-rail link would yield a real return on investment of between 12 and 16 percent. Supporters also say it would be the least costly to build and would cause the least damage to the environment.

Death toll mounts

SAN SALVADOR (CP) — At least 15 persons were killed in El Salvador on Wednesday in clashes between leftist militants and security forces as political violence continued.

A military spokesman said 12 guerrillas, members of the left-wing Armed Forces of National Resistance, were killed when they tried to ambush an army patrol on the outskirts of San Martin, about 16 kilometres east of San Salvador.

Three persons were killed and several injured in clashes between security forces and leftist militants in a suburb of the capital.

Meanwhile, government officials have identified tentatively two of the more than 50 persons killed in violence this week as leaders of the National Resistance.

National guard spokesmen said two bodies found on a highway about 32 kilometres north of here had berets with the insignia of commanders of the guerrilla group.

The names of the guerrilla commanders killed were not disclosed.

Artist pours, jumbo snores

OL PEJETA RANCH, Kenya (AP) — New Yorker Mihail Simeonoiv made a life-size mold of a wild elephant Wednesday while the animal lay amid thorn trees in a drugged sleep.

In another three or four months, after studio and foundry work is completed in New York, the Bulgarian-born Mihail, 50, expects to become the first to cast a live specimen of earth's largest land animal in bronze.

Mihaile — he normally uses only his first name — planned to make 10 bronze casts and sell them for $250,000 each to governments and corporations eager to demonstrate their regard for animals.

The net proceeds, about $2-million, he estimates, will be spent on conservation projects by 15 trustees from art, publishing and wildlife circles in Europe, Kenya and the U.S.

The Poppy pops up

CAIRO (UPI) — Authorities have recovered an original Van Gogh painting "The Poppy" which was stolen nearly two years ago from a Cairo museum and smuggled to Kuwait, a Cabinet minister said today.

Three Egyptians stole the painting valued at $2.8 million, Interior Minister Nabawi Ismail said in a statement carried by the state-controlled Middle East News Agency.

Ismail said two of the men involved in the theft have been arrested, but the third fled to Kuwait. He did not identify the suspects but said one was an ex-convict who specialized in art thefts.

The painting was stolen in June, 1978, from the poorly guarded museum of the late Mohammed Mahmoud Khalil in the fashionable residential district of Zamalek.

'Keep your krypton' hostile crowd chants

MIDDLETOWN, Pa. (AP) — Hundreds of area residents, angered and frightened at a proposal to release radioactive gases from the Three Mile Island nuclear plant, screamed curses at U.S. government officials who came to tell them any exposure would be minuscule.

"Take the message home to Washington: there shall be no peace in Middletown," Steve Reed, a state legislator and Dauphin County commissioner, told officials of the U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission (NRC).

The NRC called the meeting Wednesday to explain a staff recommendation that some krypton gas be released into the atmosphere so cleanup operations can proceed at the plant, site of the worst accident in U.S. commercial nuclear history. Final action on the recommendation might come early next month.

Five hundred persons jammed the fire hall for the meeting, which NRC site operations chief John Collins said was by far the most hostile he had seen since the March 28 accident.

"I'm five months pregnant . . . I resent having a handful of people making a decision that is going to affect thousands," Michelle Iewert told the officials. "We will never forget or forgive what you have put us through . . . You are no more worthy than a hunk of cow manure."

Meanwhile, in the state capital of Harrisburg, a consultant hired by the state Public Utility Commission said the damaged reactor at the plant would cost $1 billion to clean up — if it is not beyond repair. Prof. Robert Parente said he doubted the plant would reopen because of protests and stress on area residents.

The plant's owner, General Public Utilities, expects to spend $400 million to repair the crippled reactor. GPU officials told the commission there was no technical reason why repairs could not be completed and that the facility's undamaged reactor should be returned to service.

Collins said the maximum dose from the venting would be a fifth of one millirem while a chest x-ray involves about 35 millirems. NRC radiation biologist Reginald Gotchy said about 10 million curies of similar gases escaped during last year's crisis.

Those arguments did not influence the crowd, who chanted: "Keep your krypton, keep your krypton."

One woman called Gotchy an animal and another punched him on the arm as he tried to explain that the small doses of radiation involved in the venting would not bring a rash of cancer cases.

"I don't trust you," yelled the woman who punched him.

Gotchy backed away, then turned and said: "My sister died of leukemia, and I don't care, huh?"

He walked away as tears welled in his eyes.

In a related development Wednesday, the U.S. General Accounting Office (GAO) said enough plutonium to make a nuclear bomb could be stolen from a federal reprocessing plant and the government might not even detect it.

The GAO, the investigative office of Congress, said security at the government's nuclear fuel reprocessing plants is inadequate and monitoring systems are too inaccurate to detect the loss of bomb-sized amounts of plutonium in time to do anything about it.

The agency also said there is no adequate international system to prevent the diversion of nuclear materials from civilian reprocessing plants abroad, either by terrorists or by governments seeking to develop atomic weapons.

Commercial reprocessing plants are in operation in France, India, Italy, Japan and West Germany, and on standby in Belgium and Britain. Plants are planned in Brazil and Sweden.

The United States has no commercial reprocessing plants, but the government operates three reprocessing plants for military purposes.

'Dead' shark turns tiger

VELDDRIF, South Africa (UPI) — A fisherman was being bitten by a "dead" hammerhead shark he was dragging by the tail across a parking lot.

Police said the fish wiggled out of the grasp of Mannetjies Binneman and bit him on the leg. He finally clubbed the fish to death.

Binneman required an emergency blood transfusion and stitches.

New hostage hope

BOGOTA (AP) — The guerrillas holding 32 hostages at the embassy of the Dominican Republic want to resume negotiations, a sign they may be backing down from their demand that 28 jailed leftists be freed, says a source close to the Colombian government.

The source, who declined to be identified, said Wednesday the request by the guerrillas for new talks indicate a softening of their "non-negotiable" demand because the government refuses to discuss the prisoner issue.

The guerrillas have steadily reduced their demands since seizing the embassy at a diplomatic reception Feb. 27. At first they asked for a $50 million ransom, worldwide publication of a political statement and freedom for 311 prisoners. They reduced the number of prisoners demanded to 215 and then to 28 and dropped the other demands.

The source said Mexican Ambassador Ricardo Galan, one of the hostages, relayed the request for new talks to Colombian Foreign Minister Diego Uribe Vargas on Wednesday. Galan has acted as a go-between in negotiations between the guerrillas and the government. He and U.S. Ambassador Diego Asencio are among the 19 foreign diplomats held at the embassy.

There have been no direct negotiations since a fifth meeting a week ago ended in a deadlock over the prisoner issue.

There was no immediate reaction from the government to the reported request for new talks.

The government has refused to release any of the prisoners, saying that to do so would violate the constitution and encourage similar guerrilla actions elsewhere.

Taiwan torture tales

LONDON (Reuter) — Political prisoners in Taiwan are being tortured and held in solitary confinement, the human rights group Amnesty International said today.

The London-based organization said an estimated several hundred political dissenters are imprisoned under martial law regulations imposed in 1949.

"Among the forms of psychological and physical pressure which have allegedly been used to obtain confessions are solitary confinement, round-the-clock interrogation, denial of sleep, extraction of (finger and toe) nails, electric shock and severe beatings," the report said.

Political prisoners include suspected Communists, victims of purges or rivalries within the governing elite and members of ethnic and religious minorities, Amnesty said.

Can't say when 50 go free: U.S.

Times News Services

THE HAGUE — The United States told the World Court today there is no way of knowing whether Iran would hold the 50 American hostages "for a month, a year or a decade" and asked the UN tribunal to order their release.

Roberts B. Owen, a State Department legal adviser, said the United States views the court as its best hope for the release of the hostages.

Tenuous hopes for release of the hostages were shattered early this month when the UN investigating commission left Iran without seeing the 50 captives, Owen said:

"The signals which are now coming out of Iran suggest that the detention of the hostages may continue indefinitely and no one in this courtroom has any way of knowing whether the Ayatollah Khomeini will continue to hold the hostages in captivity for a month, a year, or for a decade."

Owen said failure to condemn the action of the Iranian government could only lead to a complete unravelling of the fabric of peaceful international relations.

Most of the 60-minute final session of public hearings today was taken up by Owen in answering questions put by some of the 15 judges Wednesday.

The United States charges Iran with violations of international law and diplomatic immunity. It claims Iran has the obligation to free the hostages and return the U.S. embassy and its archives to U.S. control.

It wants the hostages held since Nov. 4 to be guaranteed immunity from any form of criminal prosecution. It also asks the court to order the Iranian authorities to prosecute "those responsible for the crimes" committed against the embassy and personnel or extradite them to the U.S. Damages are also sought in a sum to be determined by the court.

The court now goes into private sessions to consider its final judgment, which officials said may not be delivered for several weeks.

Iran has boycotted the proceedings. It has also ignored a Dec. 15 interim order handed down by the court, the main judicial arm of the United Nations, for the immediate release of the hostages and their freedom to leave the Iran.

The U.S., divulging details of the treatment of American hostages in Tehran for the first time Wednesday, accused Iranian militants of playing Russian roulette with a woman prisoner and blindfolding and bullying others during "gruelling interrogations."

Two senators in Washington reacted by calling for sterner measures against Iran, including the detention of Iranian diplomats in the United States and a naval blockade of Iran. Sen. Richard Lugar, (Rep.-Ind.) characterized Carter's handling of the crisis as one of "bungling" and "policy zig-zags."

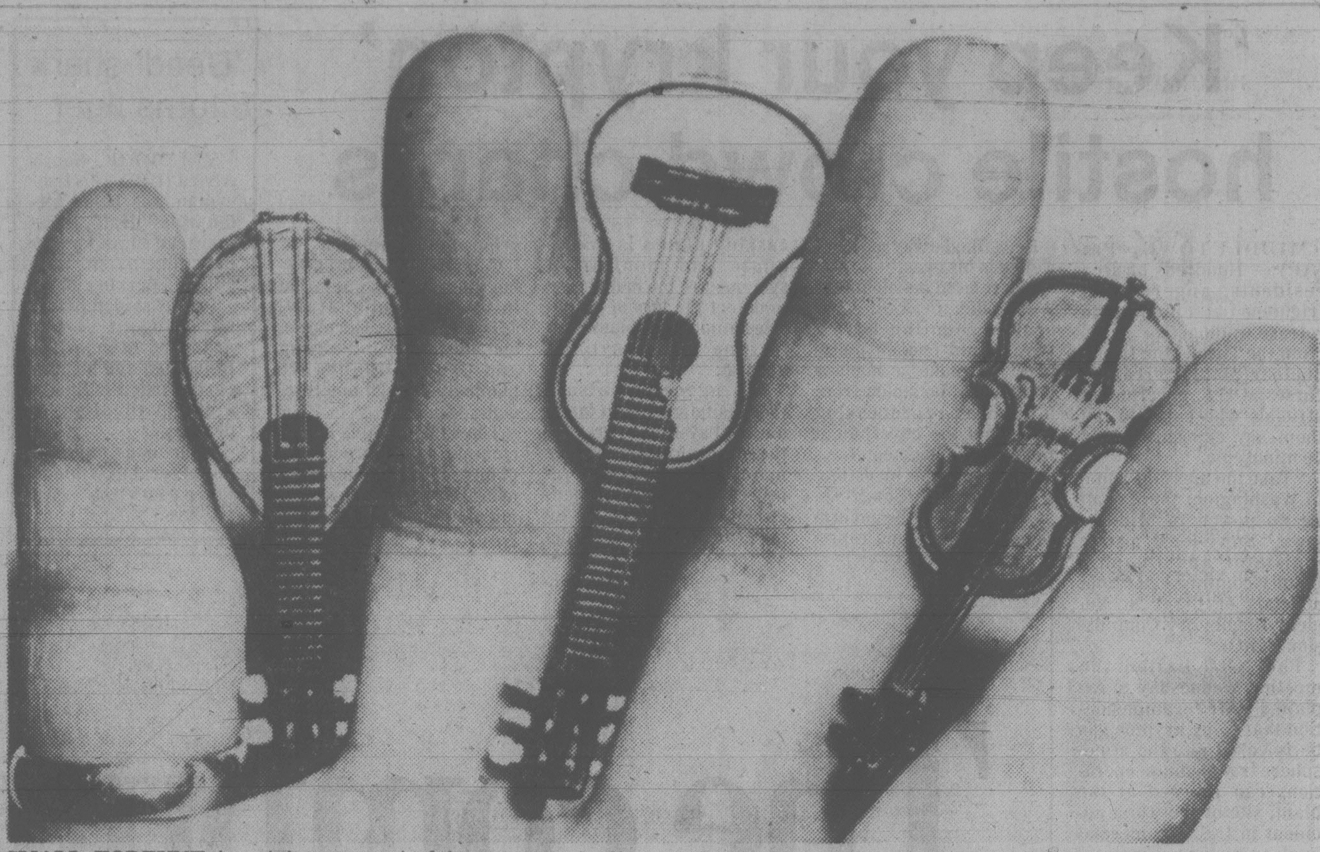
Vancouver-born Sen. S. I. Hayakawa, (Rep.-Calif.) introduced a bill permitting the detention of Iranian diplomats in the United States as "enemy aliens" until the hostages are freed.

Gales sink 'pirate' ship

LONDON (Reuter) — A Dutch ship carrying a pop music radio station sank in gales off southeastern England today but its three disc jockeys and crew member were rescued by lifeboat, the coast guard said.

Station Caroline, based aboard the Dutch ship Mi Amigo, was set up in 1964 as one of the first "pirate" commercial radio stations broadcasting outside territorial waters to Britain and northern Europe.

The 274-ton vessel sank about 20 kilometres north of Margate. It is submerged with only its aerials jutting above the waves.



SMALL FORTUNE in miniature musical instruments is displayed in fingers of their owner, Marcel Ritter, of Munich, West Germany. A total value of more than $500,000 has been placed on the collection hand-made by artisan Prager Geigenbauer.

Italian PM resigns after Socialists cut support

ROME (CP) — Italian political leaders today faced their 38th government crisis since the Second World War, coupled with a violent challenge to their authority from leftist terrorist who have killed three magistrates this week.

Prime Minister Francesco Cossiga's minority three-party coalition resigned Wednesday after the Socialist party said it would not provide any more indirect support by abstaining in parliamentary votes.

Cossiga, a Christian Democrat who is staying on as caretaker prime minister, told parliament: "The people have a right to see their public institutions functioning better."

President Sandro Pertini planned meetings with political leaders over the government crisis and talks with police chiefs over the new wave of political violence.

The Front Line terrorist group claimed responsibility for the death of Guido Galli, killed Wednesday as he entered a building on the Milan University campus to deliver a lecture on criminology.

The 48-year-old Galli was the third Italian law-enforcement official slain in four days, and the 17th victim of political assassination this year.

Political commentators say one solution to the government crisis could be the formation of a so-called truce government, which would stay in office until June. It is then that Italy will act as host to President Carter and two summit conferences.

West gives up hope of Afghanistan deal

Times News Services

MOSCOW — After a month of diplomatic probing to test the Kremlin mood, western sources here said they have now given up whatever thin hopes they might have had that the Soviet Union is seriously interested in any quick political solution to the Afghanistan crisis.

The Soviet leadership has not categorically ruled out such a possibility either publicly or privately, these sources said.

However, Soviet officials have put such conditions on any negotiated solution as to make their talk of such a possibility meaningless.

Until recently, western observers were reluctant to dismiss completely the notion that the Soviets might be looking for a face-saving way out of the situation.

The U.S. position is that a Soviet troop pullout is a precondition of any kind of American guarantees, and that the guarantees must take into consideration all the Afghan people, including the insurrectionists opposed to the Kremlin-backed Karmal goverment.

The Soviets will not be willing to enter any serious negotiations until they have consolidated Karmal's position militarily, many western diplomats say.

Meanwhile, with the Soviet Union apparently becoming increasingly mired in Afghanistan, China has launched a global diplomatic offensive asserting its own leadership in Asia and challenging the Soviets.

In the past two weeks, senior Chinese officials have fanned out on missions from Pakistan to the United States, while the Peking-backed premier of Cambodia was received in North Korea, which borders both China and the Soviet Union.

And, next month, it was announced here, the most important Communist leader in Western Europe, Italy's Enrico Berlinguer, will lead a delegation to Peking in what should be one of the Communist world's most important contacts since Moscow excommunicated the Chinese from the global movement in 1960 over ideological differences with the late Mao Tse-tung.

In another related development, Japan has decided on a plan to buy 250,000 tons of U.S. grain in support of President Carter's ban on grain shipments to the Soviet Union.

There was no place for skin and bones at the 12th annual World Heavyweight Ski Championship at the Sugarloaf USA ski resort. The winner, John Truden, of West Springfield, Mass., weighed in just before the contest at 482 pounds. Truden has claimed the distinction of being the fastest "big boy," as the resort calls the competitors — winning four times in 11 years. Truden compared himself to heavyweight boxer Muhammed Ali, who is training to make his fourth comeback from retirement. "I've done it, so now Ali can do it," Truden said, waving his poles and skis in victory after his second and final run down the 10-gate dual-slalom course. To help competitors shape up for the event, the resort throws a "Heavyweight Banquet" the night before and an "eat-in" the morning before the race.

The Guiness Book of World Records is published in 19 countries, 23 languages and sells four million copies a year. But there's no Soviet edition — the "Russians don't like the book," the editor says. "The reason the Russians don't like the book is there are too many Americans in it. We can't help it ... America is full of records," says Norris McWhirter, who first published the book in the 1950s. "The Russians regard the book as subversive because it doesn't reflect superiority of the communist system."

Imagine winning a one-week holiday for two in sunny Barbados, air fare and hotel included. When Madeline Allbury and her husband of Mara, B.C., won this prize in a store draw they were elated. Then the Allburys, who support a family of five on an auto mechanics salary, had second thoughts. They decided they couldn't afford the trip because they estimated it would cost another $1,000 for expenses not included in the prize. But MacLeods, the Winnipeg-based department store chain that sponsored the contest, decided to give the story a happy ending. Company secretary W.R. Templin said the chain will award the couple enough money to cover their expenses and the Allburys now say they will make the trip.

Pope John Paul II will tell Roman Catholic priests to return to the cassock and to curb women reading the lesson at mass, says the Milan daily Corriere Della Sera. The newspaper said a document will soon be issued by the Vatican's congregation for the clergy.

Dear Abby:

Twenty-two years ago, when I was in college, I was very much in love with a girl named Dotty. Unhappily, we broke up, both married, raised nice families, and lost track of each other.

We ran into each other about a year ago and discovered that we were both divorced. The old flame was rekindled, we started seeing each other again, and it is wonderful! We live 240 kilometres apart, but because of our jobs we can't marry at this time. However, we spend almost every weekend together. Our children, all over 18, approve of our relationship, and the fact that we sleep together has never been hidden from them.

Dotty has invited me and my children to spend Easter week at her home. Her children will be there, too. Dotty has also invited her parents.

Being a very open and honest person, Dotty told her parents about the sleeping arrangements, and they were horrified! They say they will not sleep under the same roof with Dotty and me if we're sleeping together!

It is not a religious issue, but they are calling it that in order to give more substance to their objections. (They don't attend any church.) I would like your opinion.

No Hypocrite

Dear No:

If you respect their values, you and Dotty should forego sharing the same bed. If not, carry on.

Dear Abby:

I am a reasonably attractive working woman in my late 20s. In my job I am constantly in contact with the public. My problem is that I am frequently asked out by men and find it very difficult and sometimes embarrassing to say no.

Would it be wrong for me to wear a wedding ring while I work even though I am not married?

Unmarried But Unavailable

Dear Double Un:

A more mature solution would be to develop sufficient spunk to say, "No," emphatically, convincingly and without apologies or excuses.

Dear Abby:

I am a girl with a very touchy problem. I have a friend who is cross-eyed. My mother says this can be corrected by surgery, but I just can't bring myself to mention it to her because I don't want to hurt her feelings.

Many people know she's my best friend, and they ask me why she doesn't get her eyes fixed because she would be so pretty otherwise. I usually say, "I don't know why," and walk away. What else can I say?

Wants to Help

Dear Wants:

Yes. Only a good friend would care enough to tell her that most cross-eyes can be corrected. Perhaps she doesn't know. Perhaps she isn't aware of how conspicuous it is. If you tell her in the spirit of friendly loving kindness, she should be grateful, not hurt.

Mystery ill hits young

By LORRAINE LOCHERTY

Reye's syndrome — a rare and potentially fatal disease striking increasing numbers of eastern Canadian children — appears in the Greater Victoria area about twice a year.

Pediatrician Dr. Frank Jagdis, a specialist in infectious diseases, says Victoria has been lucky — no fatal cases in recent memory.

Federal government and medical authorities are trying to find the cause for the disease, as the number of Ontario children contracting it increases.

Nobody knows for sure what causes Reye's syndrome, which affects the liver and brain, he said.

It can strike without warning and children who have come down with influenza or chicken pox appear to be the most common victims.

Reye's syndrome is not infectious, but usually appears in clusters and seems to be related to a variety of environmental circumstances.

Royal Jubilee Hospital medical director Dr. Ray LeHuquet said the hospital has an infectious diseases ward and handles an average of two cases of Reye's syndrome a year.

But Victoria General hasn't treated any cases for three years.

"We have little outbreaks every now and then, the average is about two a year," Jagdis said.

The critical illness is characterized in the early stages by seizures, high fever and vomiting blood.

Swelling of the brain and liver, coma and death can follow.

It has proved up to 75 per cent fatal in some outbreaks, but the mortality rate is usually about 25 per cent, Jagdis said.

A seven-year-old Kitchener girl died of the disease Monday. A nine-year-old girl from Mitchell, Ont., about 25 kilometres northwest of Stratford, Tuesday became the seventh child to contract the disease in Ontario this year.

Three girls, aged 15, 14, and two, are currently in Toronto's Hospital for Sick Children suffering from the disorder while a 10-year-old Chatham, Ont., boy remains in a coma in a hospital in London, Ont.

Nine people in Ontario have died from the disease since records were started in 1977. In that year there were three reported cases and one death; in 1978 there were three cases and two deaths; in 1979 six cases and five deaths.

Jagdis said there doesn't seem to be a connection between the disease and certain geographic areas.

Since the disease was discovered in 1963 by an Australian researcher, most of the significant developments have been in the area of treatment.

As a first step in finding an answer to the Reye's syndrome mystery, researchers have examined the levels of toxic chemicals in the bodies of 14 adults from the Great Lakes basin area who died of other causes. If results of the study, expected back from the laboratory later this month, prove there is a significant level of toxic chemicals accumulated in the human body, there will be a basis for further Canadian research into the disease.

Dr. George Becking, chief of the federal health and welfare department's environmental and occupational toxicology division, says the study could be particularly useful when combined with a study currently being done by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency.

The U.S. study is trying to discover the link between minor childhood diseases and the potentially lethal Reye's syndrome by looking for buildups of about nine chemical groups in the bodies of children who died from the disease.

Reye's syndrome has been a well-known term in New Brunswick for some years because of a suspected link between the disease and a spray which is used to protect the province's forests from the spruce budworm.

In 1977, Dr. John Crocker of Dalhousie University, discovered a link between the disease and an emulsifier used in a pesticide spray. Becking says Crocker's findings are intriguing but he is not convinced they are conclusive.

Kerri's on the run now

By PAUL MINVIELLE

Kerri Arnott used to be a bionic kid but now she's just a girl of steel.

You'd never know it to look at the pretty 13-year-old who likes to run for fun and giggles when she's with her Grade 6 friends at Doncaster elementary.

But not too long ago, Kerri couldn't lift her cat Morris or stand up straight, let alone run.

Kerri, you see, has scoliosis, or curvature of the spine, a disease that affects 13 per cent of all Canadian school-age children and is severe in one per cent of those cases.

Kerri's problem was first noticed in a routine medical checkup at age five as only a slight curve of the spine.

When she was eight, there was a three-month period in which the curve grew distressingly fast.

The doctor's treatment was equally distressing: put Kerri in a body cast until she stopped growing, at about age 16.

The case was referred to Dr. Harold Carter, an orthopedic surgeon, who checked into an experimental procedure at the Hospital for Sick Children in Toronto.

In Toronto, an electro spinal stimulation (ESI) device was implanted under the skin of Kerri's back, in the area of her twelfth rib.

The silicon-covered wafer, about the size of a silver dollar, has thin wires connected to it and three electrodes adjacent to the back muscle opposite the spinal curve.

At night, Kerri's mother would put a small transmitter over the implant area, which sent out a radio signal every 10 seconds.

The signal triggered a small electrical current between the electrodes, contracting the muscle and pulling the spine back to centre.

In Kerri's case, the ESI device didn't work the way everyone had hoped but since there were no physical restrictions with the device, it gave her three active growing years.

Kerri finally went back to Toronto for another operation. The ESI device was removed, and two steel rods were implanted on either side of her spine, which was then fused by grafting bone fragments from her hip.

Today, Kerri runs 100 metre races and except for not being able to bend sideways, she's looks fine and she's healthy.

The missing element in this story so far is the money, and Mrs. Arnott doesn't hesitate in telling anyone just where the finances came from.

There were nine air trips to Toronto for Kerri — her mother went along on three occasions — long stays in Toronto and extensive medical costs.

Robert Arnott was running a service station and the family managed to handle the extra expense of Kerri's early treatment but then they lost the service station.

Mrs. Arnott's part-time job wasn't enough to cover expenses.

That's when the B.C. Lions Society for Crippled Children stepped in to give this story a happy ending.

The Lions had subsidized Kerri's early trips, but when the family ran into financial storms, the club picked up the whole tab for subsequent trips.

"We really thank God, our friends and the Lions Easter Seal campaign for helping us through this difficult time," said Mrs. Arnott.

Today, the future, for Kerri and the Arnotts, is looking rosy.

There are other stories of children with crippling and debilitating diseases, and the Lions do as much as they can to give every story a happy ending.

Sometimes they're frustrated because there simply isn't enough money to help all the crippled kids in the province.

One of the projects they support, for example, is Camp Shawnigan, where physicaly and mentally handicapped children and some adults get a chance for a woodsy vacation.

The money for the camp comes mostly from Timmy's Camp Shawnigan Telethon, and this year it's being televised from the McPherson Playhouse on Cable 10 this Saturday and Sunday.

The pledge number is 381-1980, but you don't have to wait until the Telethon is on to tell them what you'd like to promise. You can do it all this week, and watch for special events around town where the proceeds go directly to the Telethon.

Long, healthy life takes plan of action

By DR. L.L. COLEMAN

Our first child was born about a year ago. We have been giving a great deal of thought to providing him with all the advantages of modern medicine. It's surprising how two young people who have given relatively little thought to longevity are now concerned about the life and growth of their child. What long-range plans can we lay out to give him the greatest advantage in life?

Mr. and Mrs. S.T.H.

Dear Mr. and Mrs. H.:

Your mature letter is of special interest to me. For there are, indeed, long-range programs of health which can affect the well-being and the life span of your child.

There is no greater testimonial to the accomplishments of modern medicine than the fact that your child will, in all probability, live at least to the age of 75, especially if he is given the advantage of all the protection that is available.

Immunization against disease is, of course, the first gift that you will give him. Sustained immunization, so commonly overlooked, is the next gift. For far too often the initial vaccination against infectious diseases is assumed to give permanent protection. It does not.

Undoubtedly, the greatest threat to adults are the problems related to hardening of the arteries that lead to the heart and to the brain. It almost seems preposterous to believe that efforts to prevent vascular disease can start early in life.

It is an axiom, however, that the "fat infant becomes the fat child, becomes the fat adolescent and, eventually, the fat adult." Herein lies one of the greatest threats to health and longevity.

Good eating habits established early in life lay the groundwork that will reflect itself in fine health during adulthood. Diets filled with fatty foods and sugars undoubtedly leave their mark on the entire vascular system. And vascular diseases account for more than 30 per cent of all deaths between the ages of 40 and 65. Coronary heart disease and strokes remain the greatest offenders to continued health.

It is exciting to know that, in the past 10 years, there has been a definite decrease in the death rate from heart attacks and strokes. This has been attributed to the reduced intake of fatty foods, for high cholesterol foods are acknowledged to be one of the major causes of changes in the blood vessels.

Arteriosclerosis, a major threat to many adults, can be modified by the elimination of tobacco, by well-regulated exercise, by the early recognition of high blood pressure and diabetes, and, of course, by a nutritious diet that is low in salt and saturated fat.

"You say you were hunting a bear when it jammed?"

youth clinic

Dear Rev. Cotter: I made love for the first time and I enjoyed it very much. But my partner didn't. He didn't tell me this, but I could read it on his face. What did I do wrong?

This might sound crazy but why do guys want to make love? Can they do this without really caring about you?

Answer: You have partly answered your own question. When sex is outside a relationship that has some permanence of commitment it can take place for very shallow reasons.

The very language used is often an indication: your guy sounds as though he were trying to "make it" with you. The phrase is impersonal, just a physical achievement. Many boys think that it is smart to have "made" a girl; this language says little about personal relationships and commitment.

So sex may turn out to be a rather mechanical and unsatisfactory experience when there are motives like that.

Dear Dr. Cotter: I am a mature 17-year-old girl and am wondering what the regulations are regarding the marrying of first cousins. I am a Christian.

Answer: There are no legal or Christian objections to the marriage of first cousins. However, if there is some inherited disease or weakness in your family, you should check with your doctor before you consider a marriage and children.

Dear Mr. Vichert: I'm 18, an old-fashioned girl. I have never had a close realtionship with a guy, and now that I've met someone, I wonder if I'm being pushy by making the first move.

We met by chance at the place where I'm temporarily working. He's nice and quite good looking and we seem to get along okay. Whenever I see him, I smile or wave and he returns it. Am I being too pushy by doing this or by striking up a conversation?

I feel I'm so obvious — I've never done anything like this before. I want to get to know him before I have to leave — but I feel so flirty.

Answer: I do not consider what you are doing "pushy" nor do I think you are a "flirt." If you were flirting then you would be wanting to tease him. I doubt if your interest in him is that insincere. From your description I believe that what you are doing is perfectly appropriate, and in many work situations it is also appropriate if you want to suggest lunch together.

Sometimes men are shy and it is helpful for them if another person takes the initiative in a conversation. The important thing is that you like him, he is not ignoring you, and at the least you might have an enjoyable lunch together before you leave work. Why not try?

Young readers' questions on human relations and sex are answered by a panel including Marion Powell, physician; Graham Cotter, clergyman; Dr. Saul Levine, psychiatrist, and social worker Bruce Vichert.

Send questions to Youth Clinic, The Victoria Times, 2621 Douglas St., Victoria V8W 2N4. Readers wishing to talk with someone about their problems can call NEED at 386-6233.

Pen produces this junk

By DAVE GOLDBERG

NEW YORK (AP) — Bill Jayme, a junk-mail writer of the first rank, was facing the usual quandary: how to keep as many people as possible from throwing his letter in the wastebasket unopened.

He knew more than half would do it anyway.

The product he was selling was the magazine Psychology Today. So he and a couple of friends went to the beach to work it out.

"We spent a whole day dreaming up nutty questions for a quiz to get people interested," Jayme says. "We saved the niftiest for the outer envelope. It was: 'Do you close the bathroom door even when you're the only one home?'

'When you get a letter like that, you have to open it."

San Francisco-based Jayme is one of about a dozen free-lance writers who design and write much of the junk mail that graces North American doorsteps and mailboxes daily.

Only they prefer to call it direct-mail advertising or something more elegant — Jayme once used the word "junque" to give it a classier ring.

Whatever it's called, North Americans are swamped by mail solicitations for products they don't need, causes they have never heard of. Between 30 billion and 35 billion pieces of junk mail are sent each year — about 150 for every American; about a third of the post office's yearly volume.

A 10 per cent return is considered high on a mailing; often it's closertto 1 per cent. The rest goes in the wastebasket, often unopened.

But for the writers it's a lucrative business, one that can produce six-figure incomes.

A Princeton graduate, Jayme began freelancing in 1958 and now works almost exclusively in magazine sales.

Hank Burnett, who works out of Santa Barbara, Calif., quit an agency job when he found freelancing was far more lucrative.

The work can be done at home, so there's little overhead. Jayme, who has a partner who handles the graphic design, charges a flat $10,000 for a package, whether its a startup for a new magazine or a remailing for an established one. Burnett gets $2,000 to $6,000.

But mastering the profession isn't easy.

"Let's face it," ays Burnett, who writes letters for organizations ranging from Common Cause to the Playboy Clubs. "Junk mail is mail people don't need."

So to get people interested, they tantalize the reader with the kins of questions Jayme designed for Psychology Today. Or with the promise of something for nothing, a "special offer," "free prize," "50 per cent savings." Or with a simpler approach favored by groups like the American Civil Liberties Union: just a return address on an envelope to pique interest.

Many contain a task for the reader. To subscribe to some magazines, for example, the reader must insert a cutout from one card into a slot in another. The reasoning is that the task involves the subscriber.

"The whole idea is to make it seem that it's directed at him, filling his needs. Giving him a task to perform makes him feel more involved."

The personal touch is obvious. The American Film Institute makes its pitch for members with an invitation-like card that informs the recipient has been "selected" for membership. It encloses a letter signed "personally" by actor Charlton Heston, the Institute's president.

The Smithsonian invites you to "join 1,500,000 other prominent Americans" in getting an "exclusive and much discussed" monthly magazine.

Much of the workload comes from magazine startup campaigns. Dozens of magazines are started every year; most are gone six months later.

So where it can cost $5 million or $10 million to publish a magazine, it may cost only $200,000 or so to mail a prospectus to people culled from mailing lists of similar products and determine if there is a market. But that can get into some ticklish areas.

A year ago, thousands of people involved with government got a prospectus for a magazine called EPO — Elected Public Official. In the prospectus were dozens of proposed articles, among them one called How to Plan a Junket. The magazine's editors conceded that had raised eyebrows, and said no article on the subject was planned.

Practical jokers flee from reality

TORONTO (CP) — Leaving no indignity unturned in a bid to thumb their nose at the world, practical jokers are renewing their attack on a society increasingly subject to the ravages of reality.

George Cohon, head of McDonald's of Canada, and Ken McGowen, a cofounder of the Mac's Milk chain of stores, are two of the more accomplished Canadian prank practitioners.

For 10 years, since McGowen sent Cohon a couple of rabbits for his birthday, they've been trying to outdo each other for laughs.

"George gave the rabbits away to a loving family," McGowen confides. The rabbits now have 1,300 descendants.

Cohon, however, was not about to let that pass. He walked into one of McGowen's board meetings, placed a cage full of young chickens on the table and hustled out.

However, McGowen won that exchange, sending Cohon a 10-gallon drum of chicken soup.

The hamburger magnate then put an ad in the paper offering for sale McGowen's Lincoln and all his appliances — fridge, stove and the like — for only $100 apiece.

"I have six lines into my office and we couldn't make a call out all day," McGowen admits. "The board was jammed."

British Columbia has traditionally been a fertile ground for jokers. One incident must rank as a classic:

In the 1950s, the sports department of a The Vancouver Sun decided to wreak revenge on a editor Erwin Swangard. For an entire season, they concocted results of a fictitious basketball league in Squamish to the north, which the paper carried.

Then toward the end of the "season," Swangard was asked by local "fans" to present the annual trophy.

Cohon

He drove miles to the awards site on a particularly foul night, only to discover he'd been duped.

Reginald Jones, a British scientist, once hoodwinked readers of the Times of London by claiming in a letter that razors would give a better shave if kept on a north-south axis to pick up the earth's magnetic charge.

Jones, in fact, played so many practical jokes that when he was summoned during the Second World War to attend a top-level meeting with Winston Churchill, he never bothered to show up, thinking it was someone getting revenge for a past indignity.

Pill addict fights back

By NAN ROBERTSON
New York Times

"I'll take a pill," Wilma Feldman thought. "I'll take a pill, and then I'll feel better."

First, it was Miltown, prescribed by her husband, a doctor, to calm her nerves. Her third son had just been born, her marriage was beginning to disintegrate, and they were living in a tiny town in the Florida Panhandle called Bonifay, far from Mrs. Feldman's family home in the Bronx.

The pills did make her feel better, and "somewhere along the line, I began helping myself," Mrs. Feldman said. When she needed more, she went to a succession of doctors with complaints such as anxiety or premenstrual cramps. So began her 14-year addiction to legal prescription drugs. This addiction read like a pharmacy order form: Miltown, Valium, Librium, Mellaril, Compozine, Darvon, and, finally, Thorazine, the most powerful drug of them all. There were various other "uppers" and "downers" prescribed by her doctors: amphetamines, barbiturates, tranquilizers. But her favorite pill was Valium.

"My life revolved around pills, but there came a time when I knew I was hooked, I was an addict," Mrs. Feldman said. "I went to my doctor and he told me to quit cold turkey. Within 24 hours, I went into withdrawal convulsions, started hallucinating, became psychotic and had to be hospitalized." As soon as she was released, she went back on the pills.

By 1971, Mrs. Feldman had left her husband and was in New York with her four children — three sons and a daughter. Her parents had heard of Daytop Village, the nation's oldest and largest drug rehabilitation center, founded in 1963. She agreed to be admitted after detoxification at St. Luke's Hospital in Manhattan. "I didn't know from Daytop, I didn't know the street drug scene," she said. "I was a middle-aged, middle-class lady hooked on legal, prescription pills. It didn't make a bit of difference. I was an addict as much as a 22-year-old ghetto male."

There followed 17 months of treatment, first in Daytop's residential centers in upstate New York and Staten Island, then in Daytop's outpatient centers. "Daytop saved my life," she said. For six years thereafter, Mrs. Feldman was in social work, helping the elderly in welfare hotels. She earned her master's degree at New York University and, finally, her certificate as a psychotherapist. She now has a private practice and has been counseling parents of drug addicts at Daytop Village.

Mrs. Feldman's 83-year-old mother, is doing orientation work at Daytop's Bronx Outreach Centre and her father, also 83, is treasurer. Her youngest son, Jerry, and daughter, Helene, who were both involved in marijuana and hallucinogenic drugs when they were younger, were helped to become drug-free at Daytop.

In January, Daytop's officials asked Mrs. Feldman to write a grant proposal for state and federal money. The program she has developed is called "PDQ — Prescription Drugs Questioned." She proposes, with the help of Daytop staff members and outside professionals, to provide therapy to about 50 people at a time. The patients are to be those who suffer from addiction to legally prescribed drugs, and the treatment is to be confidential and free of charge.

"I have never had one physician tell me that possibly some counselling or therapy would help with the stress problems as a preferable alternative to taking a pill," she says."

Mrs. Feldman's PDQ program is still awaiting funding. Still, she said: "I know there are thousands of people out there, men as well as women, who are worried about their prescription pill-taking and in need of help — perhaps desperate for help." She said that they could address their inquiries to: Wilma Feldman, Daytop Village, 54 West 40th Street, New York City.

WEIRD BEARD is sported by Michael Malone, a 27-year-old driver with a Windsor, Ont. electrical contractor after he promised to shave half of his full beard if he and his fellow employees got a "half-way decent" labor contract. The new three-year contract was obviously worth the shave.

Wardair flies domestic

TORONTO (CP)—Wardair International Ltd. will enter the domestic air charter market for the first time beginning with a flight to Vancouver from Toronto on May 8, Max Ward, chairman and president, announced Wednesday.

Ward also told a news conference his Edmonton-based company, which lost money in 1979, will make a profit this year.

But he said Wardair's entry into the domestic charter market means a price war with CP Air and Air Canada.

Wardair's scheduled round-trip fare for weekly non-stop return flights between Toronto and Vancouver will be $219 to June 5, Ward said.

The price will be raised to $239 June 6, go to $289 June 27 through the peak summer season and drop to $242 Sept. 19.

CP Air's round trip fare between Toronto and Vancouver for its no-frills Skybus charter service is $202. Ward said his company's price will include all frills offered on international routes, including bar service and a meal.

Air Canada's regular domestic fare for a round trip between Toronto and Vancouver is $219 under its seat sale, which lasts until June 5.

Ward said, "We cannot rationalize the CP Air rates and cannot operate at those rates.

"We are basically operating at Air Canada seat sale rates and will maintain our seat sale all year round."

Brian Walker, Wardair's director of sales and marketing, said in an interview, "If other carriers drop their rates, we will have to bring our rates down to be competitive."

Wardair's domestic charters will be limited to one weekly round trip between Toronto and Vancouver until Oct. 27.

From then until Dec. 12, there will be four flights a week between Toronto and Vancouver, three flights a week between Toronto and Edmonton and two between Toronto and Calgary.

From Dec. 16 to April 30, Wardair will operate three flights a week between Toronto and Vancouver, one flight weekly between Toronto and Calgary and one from Toronto stopping at both Calgary and Vancouver.

Bookings for the services, which will use 747s and DC-10s, will open Saturday through travel agencies.

Wardair's entry into the domestic charter market follows an order-in-council passed by the federal Conservative cabinet in February which repealed prohibitions against charter carriers selling domestic seats.

Pepin orders rail spill inquiry

Times News Services

WINNIPEG — Transport Minister Jean-Luc Pepin Wedneday ordered a public inquiry into the spill of 12,000 gallons of deadly yinyl chloride outside the small Manitoba community of MacGregor following the recent derailment of a CN freight.

The investigation into the March 10 derailment is expected to take two months.

Pepin called for the probe after consulting with officials of the Canadian Transport Commission, who will handle the inquiry, Employment and Immigration Minister Lloyd Axworthy and the Manitoba government.

"I expect the inquiry into the MacGregor accident will confine itself to that accident, its contributing factors and causes and the safety measures implemented before, during and following the accident," Pepin said in a prepared statement.

Meanwhile, in MacGregor, some people have left their homes and friends behind as they run away from a chemical spill which government and company officials say is not hazardous to their health.

Others, however, are happy with the answers they received Wednesday to questions about the derailment.

Dr. Gabriel Plaa of the University of Montreal and Dr. Perry Gehring, a toxicology expert with Dow Chemical Ltd., told the audience it was doubtful any trace of vinyl chloride would be detected in the town, about two kilometres south of the train wreck.

But Don Emerson is not.

In an interview from a relative's home in Portage la Prairie, 35 kilometres east of here, he said he probably will not bring his family home until next week.

"The wife phoned the doctor just to see what the effects would be and he advised her to move out and not take any chances," Emerson said.

Concerned parents have taken 12 children out of the elementary school and two from the high school after they learned about the spill of the chemical Dow was shipping to eastern Canada.

Vinyl chloride is known to cause certain types of cancer after prolonged exposure.

A provincial government spokesman said Wednesday night he expects the cleanup operation to be finished late Friday. There are six more tankers to be emptied of vinyl chloride.

Police don't investigate MP's misuse of budgets

OTTAWA (CP) — MPs frequently misuse their government-paid budgets despite parliamentary rules against it, but police are never called in to investigate, a Crown witness said Wednesday during the trial of Liberal MP David Rooney.

Georges St. Jacques, director of Commons personnel and administration, made the comment in response to a question from Don Bayne, who is defending the MP for Bonavista-Trinity-Conception against four charges of illegally accepting money and other services from employees.

Bayne had suggested there was nothing wrong with the 42-year-old MP's use of government money to pay a man to repair a trailer kept at his mother-in-law's home in St. John's.

The Crown has alleged that Rooney "corruptly obtained for Elizabeth Gale (his mother-in-law)...the services of Fredrick John Garland" by hiring him as a constituency office employee and paying him $250 a month in government cheques from Sept. 1 to Nov. 30, 1977.

Crown Attorney Andrej Berzins alleged Tuesday that Garland was paid not to fix the trailer, but rather to make extensive exterior repairs to Mrs. Gale's home.

Rooney has not yet been called to testify but has sat quietly in the prisoner's dock through the first two days of the county court trial.

St. Jacques told the jury of four women and eight men that many MPs contract-out for maintenance services and pay for it with government money.

But he said the money must come from each MP's operations budget and not their staff allowance.

"It was clearly understood at all times that the budgets were to be kept separate," he said, adding that this frequently was not done.

St. Jacques said that if an MP dipped into his operations budget to pay staff, or vice versa, and the misuse of funds was reported, he would discuss the matter with the MP and leave it at that.

He indicated it is not considered a crime on Parliament Hill and would not be reported as such.

Berzins has also alleged that between July, 1974, and September, 1977, Rooney asked two former constituency office employees and a Parliament Hill office employee for contributions of $100 and $150 a month towards "a political survival fund."

He said the cheques were sent each month to Rooney's wife Ruth in Ottawa.

Esposito scores a hit single

EDMONTON (CP) — It's called The Hockey Sock Rock and it could become the biggest hit since Disco Duck.

The record, cut by Phil Esposito and The Ranger Rockers — John Davidson, Ron Duguay, Pat Hickey and Dave Maloney — is selling fast in North America.

Proceeds from the 45-rpm disc, which sells for $2 and features on the flip side Dionne and The Puck-Tones with Charlie Simmer, Dave Taylor and Marcel Dionne of Los Angeles Kings singing Please Forgive My Conduct Last Night, go to the Juvenile Diabetes Research Foundation.

More than 120,000 copies have been sold since the record was released Dec. 27.

Which proves that "hockey players can do more than just hit guys over the head with their sticks," Esposito said in an interview before Wednesday's National Hockey League game between New York Rangers and Edmonton Oilers.

Esposito's father, who lives in Sault Ste Marie, Ont., is a diabetic. So when Los Angeles television writer and producer Allan Thicke, whose five-year-son is a diabetic, asked Esposito to promote diabetic research, he didn't hesitate to say yes.

Well, not exactly. Esposito said he did hesitate a bit when he was told that he would sing.

Duguay, who was present at the interview, said Esposito doesn't sound bad on the record but added that modern-day recording technology can do wonder for anyone's singing.

But on a serious note, Esposito said researchers are still trying to find a cure for juvenile diabetes. The disease means a dependence on daily insulin injections and can strike from infancy to as late as 45 years of age.

Spouse not forced to testify

OTTAWA (CP) — The age-old legal principle that a spouse cannot be compelled to give evidence against his or her married partner was upheld Wednesday in the Supreme Court of Canada.

A seven-judge panel headed by Chief Justice Bora Laskin took less than 30 minutes to tell Edmonton lawyer Jack Watson that the principle remains intact despite wiretap laws and changing times.

The principle, founded in the common law, says married couples cannot give incriminating evidence against each other.

The same privilege is contained in the Canada Evidence Act, but Watson argued that the principle was watered down by the laws which allow police officers to tap telephones.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
Pass	1♠	Dble	Pass
3♡	Pass	4♡

Opening lead — king of spades.

Here is a type of play that is often missed. West leads the K-A and another spade after East plays high-low to show a doubleton. East ruffs, returns a diamond, and South goes up with the ace, since the bidding and the diamond return both indicated that West has the king.

Declarer now needs the rest of the tricks to make the contract. Obviously, he can't meet this goal unless he can rescue his diamond loser.

One possible approach is to draw trumps and cash the A-Q-K of clubs, hoping to find the suit divided 3-3. In that case, the eight of clubs would become a trick on which declarer could discard dummy's queen of diamonds to make the contract. If South adopted this line of play in the actual hand, he would go down one. He'd find the clubs divided 4-2 instead of 3-3.

But if declarer follows a more promising line of play, he makes the contract. After taking the ace of diamonds, he plays five rounds of trumps, discarding a diamond from his hand to reduce himself to four cards, all of them clubs. Simultaneously, this reduces dummy to four cards consisting of the queen of diamonds and A-Q-3 of clubs.

But, in the meantime, West must also come down to four cards, and he then finds it impossible to make a safe discard when the last trump is led from dummy. West's holding at that point is the king of diamonds and J-10-9-6 of clubs, and he cannot find a satisfactory discard. Whatever he does, South makes the contract.

Actually, declarer succeeds because — either intentionally or accidentally — West gets squeezed. All this simply goes to show that squeezes are not as hard to execute as some people say they are.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

Astrological Forecast for Friday, March 21, 1980
By SYDNEY OMARR

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Avoid trying to be at too many places at once — see through haze of promises, labyrinth of hints, nuances. Relative, seeking attention, might be deliberately obscure in statements, explanations. Pisces, Gemini and Virgo natives figure in scenario.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Spotlight on collection, priorities, business, special payments and investments. Capricorn, Cancer persons play prominent roles. Older individual demands attention, wants to direct financial operation. Be receptive, but don't surrender right to make your own decisions.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): You appeal to more persons, could fall in love — and you'll be at right place at right time. Take lead, get rid of unnecessary burden, deal with Aries, Libra persons. You successfully complete a transaction.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Obstacle to progress is removed — clandestine 'arrangement' is featured. Leo, Aquarius persons figure prominently. Aura of romance is present. You learn what occurs backstage. A new contact proves significant. Know it and be optimistic.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Emphasis on fulfillment, regaining lost articles, getting sense of direction, opening dialogue with one who can advance aspirations. Cancer, Aquarius and another Leo figure prominently. A 'teacher' comes into your life.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Roadblock is shoved aside — there is room for you and you'll be aware of it. Social life accelerates. You meet people and potential is enhanced — you learn of publishing or travel opportunity. Diversify, display versatility and humor.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Revise, review, be willing to tear down for ultimate purpose of rebuilding. Aquarius, Leo, Scorpio persons figure in scenario. Avoid complications by handling one issue at a time. Interpret trends —look ahead, take advantage of 'advance knowledge.'

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): You are involved — know it and don't pretend indifference. Frank discussions, admissions work to your benefit. Money, love, partnership and joint investments figure prominently. Recent setback can be turned into a triumph.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): If diplomatic and receptive, you get something of value — practically handed you on proverbial silver platter. Taurus, Libra, Scorpio natives play key roles. A contract can be amended in your favor. Know it and persist — in quiet, persuasive manner.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Maintain moderate pace — keep resolutions concerning nutrition, basic procedures. You learn about special service which could ease road towards goal. Define terms, steer away from self-deception, deal with Pisces, Virgo persons.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Others are impressed with your sincerity, intensity and personality. Specifically, this is a power time for money, career advancement — and love. Capricorn, Cancer natives play outstanding roles. Young person becomes a vigorous ally.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Emphasis on planks, boards, material required to eliminate safety hazards and to build on a solid base. Aries, Libra persons figure in scenario. You reach more people, gain plaudits from peers and a burden to progress will be removed.

IF MARCH 21st IS YOUR BIRTHDAY, you have dynamic sense of humor; you are sensual, creative, stubborn and you try doing too much at once. You seldom read one book at a time, you enjoy double features and you can love more than one person at a time. Gemini, Sagittarius persons play important roles in your life. You make significant, new contacts in April. In June, you travel and could have valid reason for celebration. In November, your position and prestige are elevated. You make major move in September — represents life style adjustment and possible change of residence.

Unique shows at Open Space

By AUDREY JOHNSON

The unique and the original are dominant in the next few days' programming at Open Space Gallery, 510 Fort.

It begins with Friday and Saturday performances (March 21 and 22) by the Vancouver based Terminal City Dance, a company that has been well received at Open Space on former occasions.

In addition there will be a workshop conducted by the troupe on Saturday from 12 to 3 p.m. The workshop will explore the relationship of harmony and voice techniques to dance movement. Pre-registration is required by phoning 383-8833.

Considered one of the west coast's most innovative dance companies, Terminal City brings a program of entirely new works, utilizing movement and voice and borrowing from theatre and mime as well as dance tradition.

The works to be seen at both performances are Wrestling Match, choreographed by the company; Accompanied Solo, choreographed and danced by Karen Rimmer to music composed by Michael Baker and performed by Terry Hunter and Savannah Walling; Duet, danced by Rimmer and Hunter, the choreography by Walling, the music by Eric Brown.

Three solo pieces conceived and directed by Hunter are entitled Piano Player, Mommy, Mommy, and Loverboy. They will be danced by Rimmer, Walling and Hunter. Rimmer turns choreographer with a work called Time Piece to be performed by the entire company.

On Monday, self-taught Mexican musician and ethno-musicologist Antonio Zepeda will visit Open Space.

Zepeda has become internationally known for his exploration, research and performance of music made with instruments of the pre-Hispanic civilizations of North, South and Central America.

These instruments are fashioned of natural materials — clay, hide or wood — some original and others created by Mexican Indians following models unearthed in archeological digs.

Zepeda's performances utilize Mayan drums, Aztec whistles and ocarinas, Toltec flutes, double clay flutes, rattles made from natural seed plants; all ritual instruments that relate to specific beliefs of these now extinct peoples.

Currently residing in Mexico City, Zepeda has lived and performed in Sweden, Denmark, France, Venezuela and New York City. Some of the latter appearances have been at Lincoln Centre, the American Museum of Natural History and the Whintey Museum of American Art. In addition he has made special recordings for major radio stations throughout the world.

Zepeda's Open Space performance will being at 8 p.m.

Choral evening at St. Aidans

St. Aidan's Youth Choir, a 28-voice mixed ensemble directed by Ted Boulden, will present an evening of favorite themes Friday at 7:30 at the church at 1691 Broadmead.

The group combines popular tunes with spiritually enriching words. The choir has 17 girls and 11 men in their late teens and early 20s.

The arrangements, mostly four-part harmony, are almost all custom-made for the group. They are accompnaied by guitar.

There is no admission charge but offerings will be accepted.

Singer Dragonette dies in N.Y.

NEW YORK (UPI) — Singer Jessica Dragonette, for 22 years one of the most popular voices on radio, has died of a heart attack.

A hospital spokesman said Dragonette died in New York Hospital Tuesday afternoon.

Dragonette, a petite soprano, always carefully withheld her age, but she was believed to be about 70.

She was born in Calcutta, India, and at the age of 6 was orphaned after her family returned home to Philadelphia.

Dragonette got her show business start with an off-stage singing role in the 1924 production of The Miracle. She started in radio two years later on the NBC network in a musical comedy hour.

Dragonette performed for 8 years on the Cities Service Concert, and also appeared on the Philco Hour, the Ford Summer Show and on the Saturday Night Serenade.

A memorial mass was to be offered at St. Patrick's Cathedral Fridayfollowed by burial in Gate of Heaven Cemetery, Valhalla, N.Y.

Good grammar does not a good writer make

By DEREK SIDENIUS

If you want to learn how to write well throw away the grammar books and concentrate on the works of successful authors.

That's the advice of Jim Gray, one of North America's experts in the teaching of writing skills.

Gray, a 52-year-old professor of education with the University of California at Berkley, was in Victoria recently to speak at a conference on writing at the University of Victoria and co-hosted by the faculty of education and department of English.

Gray's message to the 50 Greater Victoria senior English teachers and education officials who attended the conference was simply this:

Don't worry about teaching students the strict rules of grammar. Studies have shown successful writers frequently break the rules. One such writer only followed the rules 20 per cent of the time.

In an interview Gray said teachers should pay more heed to the writing process than the final product their students produce.

The way to learn the writing process, he says, is to study how successful writers string words together. So what if there's a dangling modifier, a split-infinitive or any one of the countless other no-nos the grammar books teach students to avoid. The successful writers commit such sins all the time.

Gray put his ideas to the test seven years ago when he established, with U.S. federal government funding, the Bay Area Writing Project.

The project has now been copied in 75 cities in 37 states and two provinces (Alberta and Saskatchewan.)

B.C. could be next.

Gray attributes the success of the project to its simplicity.

In essence all it does is bring together the most successful teachers of writing, and, from their wealth of experience and talent, develop a teaching model for other teachers to follow.

He says outstanding teachers have this much in common: they have confidence in what they do; they know why they do what they do. Their approaches may vary but they are consistently more concerned with patterns of shaping word pictures than strict adherence to the rules of grammar.

Furthermore they are writers themselves.

"A teacher who doesn't practice writing can no more teach writing than a piano teacher who can't play the piano teach music or a carpenter teacher who can't use a hammer teach carpentry," he says.

Gray, like many teachers, is appalled at the lack of writing skills students have when they leave school.

He notes the scores on college board exams in the U.S. have been steadily dropping over the past 17 years. That indicates to him that while more and more people are able to read and write, fewer are able to read and write well.

The trend, which is world-wide, is partly due to a liberalizing of the school system and partly the increasing alienation of students and teachers, he says. Television is another factor and so is the advance of the computer age which places a greater reliance on machines to do the thinking for man.

Gray feels that one of the causes of the problem is teachers not knowing how to teach.

"That's the one problem we are trying to solve," he says. "We want to give them the skills to help them turn out students who can write well."

To adapt an ancient saying: Teacher, teach thyself.

For rent . . . with no takers

For rent: 1, 2 or 3 bedroom suites, from $250 to $285 a month. Five-year old building, handy to schools, shops. Phone . . . .

In a city with a virtual zero vacancy rate, an advertisement that should create a flood of callers, but Graham Manor at 2610 Graham bucked the trend back in November and December and Canada Mortgage and Housing Corporation officials still can't figure it out.

CMHC owns 13 of the 18 condominium suites and after failing to rent the suites they decided instead to sell them.

The suites were originally sold under the Assisted Home Ownership Program (AHOP), but in the five years or so since, many owners just didn't make it.

AHOP mortgages of 10½ per cent were lowered to 8 per cent by the federal government and some units were bought with a down payment of $1 and government home grants.

Many buyers were already on welfare. Others lost their jobs and in other cases marriages broke up.

CMHC is now offering the suites from $29,000 and $38,000, and still they sit.

No one knows why they aren't moving and present suite owners find it a little strange living in an almost empty building.

Short story prize won by UVic prof

University of Victoria creative writing professor W.D. Valgardson has won the short story category of the second CBC literary competition.

Mary Di Michele of Toronto won the poetry category and Bill Schermbrucker of Vancouver and poet Morgan Nyberg of Surrey, shared top prize in the memoir category.

The winners, chosen from 3,000 entries, will receive almost $18,000 in prizes and have their entries broadcast on CBC Radio's Anthology series in June.

Safer streets sought for strollers

The Downtown Victoria Association wants to make the city a safer place for evening strollers.

In a brief to council's central business district advisory committee, the association has asked for better lighting in the downtown core and more police foot patrols during the evening and is seeking $80,000 from off-street parking funds to pay for the programs.

The brief suggests several prominent buildings should be illuminated to give pedestrians "the security a well-lit city affords."

The buildings include The Bay, Union Club, Eaton's, St. Andrew's Church, George Straith building, Bank of Montreal at Douglas and Yates, the old fisheries building at Broughton and Wharf, CP Tower at Langley and Fort, the federal government building on Government and the Maritime Museum.

The cost would be about $6,500, the brief says.

Another $3,600 would improve lighting in such areas as Bastion Square, the park adjacent to Swiftsure Inn, Government Street between Herald and Chatham, the parking lot across from the police station, the east side of Wharf between Fisgard and Pandora, and a parking lot off Broad Street.

The association also asks for an enhancement of Christmas, spring and summer decorations to add visual excitement to the city centre for residents and tourists. That would cost about $5,000.

The bulk of the money, however, would go to advertising parking facilities and the free bus system in the downtown core ($30,000) and to beefing up night police patrols of city parkades ($35,000).

Association president Gordon Proctor says increasing foot patrols would create a secure environment for those who wish to enjoy the city in the evening.

A further $20,000 payment supporting a seaweed-growing experiment at Bamfield has been made by the federal ministry of fisheries and oceans.

The contract with Case Existological Laboratories Ltd., of Victoria, is for assembly, installation, testing and analysis of plastic enclosures for raising marine plant life.

Canadian Benthic Ltd., a marine biology firm, has been engaged in the program since 1975.

The firm is attempting to prove a feasible method of raising high-yielding seaweed in commercial quantities for the food and pharmaceutical industries.

Case president Murdo Smith said the next phase of the project is to build a full scale model of the system known as FACS — floating algal culture system.

Canadian Benthic's proposal involves raising strains of gracilaria for its generous quantity of carageenin and polysacchrine extracts for their commercial potential.

The firm has found seed stock grows quickly in an array of plastic bags suspended from floating frames arrayed in protected seawater.

Girl Guides win the Canada Cord

The Girl Guides' highest achievement award, the Canada Cord, will be presented to guides from the Victoria area at an awards dinner at The Empress on Monday.

The awards will be presented by Georgia Runcie, provinical commissioner for B.C.

Receiving awards will be: Lady Douglas Division, Philippa Hocking, Janet Ballantyne, Mia Freedman, Kathryn Murray, Lisa Thomlinson, Susan Mulholland, Theresa Porter, Carolyn Randell; Camosun-Craigflower Division, Carol May; Juan de Fuca Division, Marilyn Brobach, Brenda Newell O'Brien, Heather Wilson, Julie McKay, Tamie Pothorin, Elsa Tong; Gonzales Division, Shelley Lane; Saanich Division, Janice Andrews, Celia Bowker, Janine Welch, Carolyn Border.

CORPORATION OF THE DISTRICT OF SAANICH

NOTICE

FLUSHING OF HYDRANTS

Flushing of watermains and hydrants will be carried out in various areas of the Muncipality up to April 18, 1980. As some discoloration of water can be expected, commercial establishments, such as laundromats and beauty salons, will receive advance warning of dates of flushing in their vicinity if a request for such notification is received. Telephone 386-2241, local 385.

In no case however, can the Corporation accept responsibility for any damage arising out of the use of discolored water. Consumers are therefore advised to be on alert for temporary discoloration of water.

1. UPLANDS SEAVIEWS

A truly outstanding character residence combining classic tudor styling with a superb Uplands location. The 1.2-acre site is beautifully landscaped, with circular driveway winding through the mature garden. Inside the stately oak panelled reception hall opens to the gracious living room, formal dining room; both with commanding 180 degree views of the water. A large, bright kitchen, charming den and guest powder room complete the main floor. The open staircase leads to four large bedrooms, all with access to ensuites; the master bedroom enjoys magnificent views, generous closet and dressing room areas. The high, bright basement is extremely usable, with billiard room, full bath and potential for much more. Seldom does such a unique property combining so many exceptional features become available for purchase.

2. UPLANDS INDOOR POOL

A unique residence featuring excellent family accommodation. It combines the subtle grace of soft beige carpets, grasscloth, dark oak parquet and old brick arches, yet lends itself to the lifestyle of an active family. Just a few of the features: huge family kitchen, separate formal dining room, den with fireplace, living room overlooking the pool, master suite with private access to sauna and pool, family room, playroom. Four bedrooms plus inlaw or staff suite. The pool enclosure is fabulous, with vaulted, sky-lit ceiling, barbecue, and a 44 ft. long glass windowed wall which opens to the patio giving an "outdoor" feeling for summer swimming. Exceptional at $345,000. For further details on this and other Upland properties call:

3. SOUTH OAK BAY RUNNYMEDE

Very few new homes on the market today offer everything a family needs — comfort, size, quiet location. This one does. 2800 sq. ft. give such a spacious feeling, and the floor plan really works. Main has sunken living room, 19' dining room, large kitchen with attached family room and breakfast area, with a den (fireplace) bath and laundry room completing the plan. HOW TO WRITE A GOOD CLASSIFIED ACTION AD

1—IT'S BEST to start your ad with the name of the article or service you have to offer. If you have an apartment, room, etc., for rent, or property for sale; start your ad with the location.

2—BE CLEAR. Readers respond more quickly and favorably by giving complete, definite information. Always include the price in your advertisement.

3—MAKE IT EASY for the reader-prospect to reach you. Always give your telephone number or your name and address. If you do not have regular hours, state a preferred time for the prospect to get in touch with you.

4—PLAY SAFE. You get the greatest reader attention by using consecutive insertions. A six-day order is best and costs less, and you can, of course, stop your ad as soon as you get the results you want. You pay only for the days your ad appeared. Lower yearly rates are available to those who wish to keep their services or products before the public.

5—PLACE YOURSELF in the reader's position and ask yourself what you want to know about your offer. The answer you give will make a good Want Ad.

6—GIVE YOUR PROSPECT every inducement you can with good copy. Classified action ad readers have the money and are already interested in buying the merchandise or service you have to offer; the details and information you give are the most important.

7—TO PLACE YOUR AD, call 386-2121, your direct line number to fast Want Ad action. A courteous, efficient advisor will be glad to help you word and place your order. And remember, Classified Action Ads afford you the most complete coverage. Telephones are open 8:00 a.m. to 6:00 p.m. Monday through Friday, 8:00 to 5:30 p.m. Saturday. Don't allow the reader to speculate.

Deaths and funerals

305 DEATHS and FUNERALS

BOLTON — In hospital in Victoria, B.C. on March 18, 1980, the Rev. Canon Harry Mitchell Bolton in his 95th year, of 1049 Southgate Street, born in England. Predeceased by his wife, Nora; he leaves his daughter, Nora of Victoria and a nephew, Charles Webster in England. He served Columbia Coast Mission, St. Philips Cedar from 1925-1956 and was Rector of St. Mary's, Metchosin, retiring from active ministry in 1956. He was a former Clerical Secretary of the Diocesan Synod.

Funeral service in St. Matthias' Church, 600 Richmond Avenue, on Friday, March 21, 1980, at 2:00 p.m. with the Rev. Canon W. E. Greenhalgh officiating. Followed by cremation. Flowers gratefully declined. Memorials, if desired, may be made to the Memorial Fund of St. Matthias' Church, 600 Richmond Avenue. McCall Bros. Funeral Directors in charge of arrangements.

BROWN — Lorne Alexander, in his 87 year, at Kingston General Hospital on March 19, 1980. Professor Brown taught mathematics at the Royal Military College in Kingston and came to Royal Roads in Victoria in 1942 where prior to retirement in 1953 he became director of studies. Prof. Brown lived in Victoria until September of 1976 when he and his wife returned to Kingston. He was predeceased by his wife, Millicent in March of 1978. He is survived by three sons, James R. of Montreal, Douglas L. of Victoria and David W. of Oakton, Virginia, and one daughter, Evelyn of Kingston, also by 15 grandchildren, three in Victoria, James, Janice and Marc, and by six great-grandchildren.

Memorial Society service to be held in Kingston, Saturday, March 22, 1980, at 11:00 a.m., Chalmers United Church.

CAMPBELL — On March 10, 1980, Myrtle Mary Campbell (nee Bell) of 11909 Hawthorne Street, Maple Ridge, Haney, B.C., aged 64 years. Born in Swift Current, Saskatchewan, spent many years in Victoria and also Kelowna, B.C. She leaves her loving husband John; sisters, Mrs. David (Velma) Goodridge (Parksville) and Mrs. Frank (Grace) Rosson and Mrs. Betty Burgess (Victoria), also nieces and nephews.

The funeral was held on Friday, March 14, in Haney, B.C., at Garden Hill Funeral Chapel. The Rev. Robert Wallace officiating. If desired donations may be made to the B.C. Heart Foundation, 1008 Blanshard Street, Victoria, B.C.

GRANT — In the Memorial Pavilion, Victoria, B.C., on March 19, 1980, Mrs. Marie Grant, aged 82 years, formerly of Fort William, Ontario, and Vancouver, B.C. Widow of George Charles Grant, she leaves two sons, George Charles of Baltimore and Jack of Victoria; six grandchildren.

Accompanied to Thunder Bay, Ontario, for the funeral service at Jenkins Funeral Home on Tuesday afternoon, March 25, 1980, with interment at the Mountain View Cemetery, Thunder Bay. Flowers gratefully declined. McCall Bros. Funeral Directors, Victoria, in charge of arrangements.

KEDDIE — Eric T. of Victoria, B.C., formerly of The Pas, Manitoba, peacefully at Royal Jubilee Hospital on March 19, 1980, in his 86 year. Survived by his wife, Eileen; one son, Philip (Guelph, Ontario); one daughter, Mrs. Kathleen Phillips (Regina, Saskatchewan); six grandchildren; also one brother, Basil (Brandon, Manitoba); two sisters, Ena Tweedy and Mona Hilton both of Victoria; nephews and nieces. Mr. Keddie served in the First World War and was a life member of the Royal Canadian Legion, The Pas, also a member of St. Mary's Anglican Church.

Funeral service will be held Friday, March 21, 1980, at 11:00 a.m. in the Chapel of St. Mary's Anglican Church. Rev. M. Anderson officiating. Interment. Flowers gratefully declined, donations may be made to the Queen Alexandra Solarium or a charity of your choice. Arrangements through the Memorial Society of B.C. and First Memorial Services.

LIBERATORE — Benedetto, suddenly on March 15, 1980, in San Demetrio, Nei Vestini. Born January 1, 1916. He leaves behind his loving wife Amelia; sons Joe, Nino and Pat in Calgary, Alberta; daughter May and five grandchildren.

Funeral service was held March 17, 1980, in San Demetrio, Nei Vestini.

McCANDLESS — George Barlett of Sidney, B.C., formerly of Port Alberni, B.C., retired Captain of the M. V. Uchuck, peacefully at Saanich Peninsula Hospital on March 19, 1980. Age 69 years. Survived by his wife, Leone; five sons, David (Vancouver), Henry (Ottawa), Robert (Whitehorse), John (Toronto) and Richard (Victoria); one daughter, Joan Stevenson (Victoria); seven grandchildren; also one brother, Henry (Victoria); nephews and nieces.

Memorial service will be held Sunday, March 23, 1980, at 3:00 p.m. in the Chapel of First Memorial Services, 4725 Falaise Drive. Cremation. Flowers gratefully declined. Arrangements through the Memorial Society of B.C. and First Memorial Services.

The Lord is my Shepherd

I shall not want

He maketh me to lie down in green pastures

He restoreth my soul

He leadeth me in the path of righteousness for his name sake

Yea though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death

I will fear no evil

For thou art with me, thy rod and thy staff
 they comfort me

 before me in the presence of mine
 enemies

Thou anointest my head with oil

My cup runneth over

Surely goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life and I will dwell in the House of the Lord forever.

309 IN MEMORIAM

EDDIE — In loving memory of Colin John Perrin Eddie who entered into Eternal Rest March 20th., 1963.
Your smiling face and wonderful ways
Are a pleasure to recall,
You had a kindly word for each,
And died beloved by all.
—Always and Lovingly remembered by your Mother, Elsie and Jim.

LEE - In loving memory of our dear Barbara, who passed away March 20, 1972.
Your presence we miss,
Your memory we treasure,
Loving you always,
Forgetting you never.
Sadly missed by Mom and Dad, Norman, Janet and Grandma Margaret Lee.

POWERS - In loving memory of my dear husband Gordon, who passed away March 20th, 1979.
You left me, lost and lonely
One year ago today.
My heart is heavy
I miss you more than words can say.
Each day begins and end
With memories of you.
To me you were someone special.
Always loved and sadly missed by his wife Elisabeth.

God in his wisdom has recalled

The boon
 his love had given

And though the body
 slumbers here

The soul is safe in heaven.

Cleaning out the pampas

The Pampas Grass is rated as the most beautiful of the ornamental grasses. Improved forms with large rounded plumes are now available in addition to the older silver and pink plumes.

The genus is native to Argentine, Chile, and Ecuador, the tropical section of south America. Most gardening references list it not hardy in Canada. However is does well in gardens on southern Vancouver Island.

Its botanical name is Cortaderia (kor-ter-deer'-i-a), but many older gardeners still use its former name Gynerium (jy-neer'-ri-um).

Most gardening books dealing with perennials refer to "burning" the plants in February, but rarely mention that the part burned is the centre of the plant where the bases of old leaves appear as a pile of wood shavings.

These shavings can become a wet mass that rots new growths which come from the centre.

The books tell us it is possible to put two sheets of crumpled newspaper amongst these leaf ends and consume them in a flash fire lasting about two minutes without harming any new growths.

Because these instructions appear infrequently, gardeners have been known to pile tree prunings around and over the pampas and consume it in a bonfire, often destroying the plants.

We have learned from experience that locally the shavings are so saturated with rain in February they refuse to ignite with two sheets of newspaper. The only way to keep the centre clear is to pull out all shavings possible, but even this is not easy.

The leaves have sharply toothed edges which cause severe cuts to the flesh as the hands are withdrawn from the plant. They also take a firm hold on woolen or cloth clothing.

To work on a plant the gardener needs a smooth surfaced outer covering such as true waterproofs or heavy plastic rain clothes, including leggings, hip boots, or waterproof overalls, and a pair of heavy gloves for hand and wrist protection.

Young plants are comparatively easy to clean out, but large older plants two metres in diameter can present difficulties.

Handling a large specimen plant in a nursery I found it best to first cut off the lower outer leaves with hedge shears. These are the first leaves to wither, and remove as many flower stems as can be reached, cutting low into the foliage.

Next shorten the green leves to the centre of the plant, then with a long pole and an assistant on the other end, separate the foliage to right and left and hold it out of the way with a couple of 2 by 4's.

A four-pronged manure drag can then be plunged into the shavings to pull out masses which are loose. Lacking a manure drag a cultivator could be substituted but the prongs are not as long.

When the loose material is out, shavings still attached can be cut off with shears or pruners. If possible to get into the centre many old plume stubs can also be removed from among the foliage.

The Pampas is not too sensitive to soil. Since it grows on hillsides it needs good drainage. I have had excellent plants in a basic clay with plenty of compost added.

Full sun is needed for good flowering, the flower stems appearing quite suddenly above the foliage. Fertilizer is avoided except on small plants because it can cause excessive leaf growth and a paucity of plumes.

Electronic thefts charged to boys

Two juvenile boys have been charged in connection with the theft of more than $12,000 worth of goods stolen Jan. 28 from a fishing boat in the Inner Harbor.

The boys, aged 14 and 15, were charged after officers discovered the goods stored under the bed of one of the boys in a James Bay home.

Police said a number of items including a $5,000 depth sounder, $5,000 radio-telephone, and a $300 CB radio were stolen from the Cape Fairweather when she was in for refit at Lime Bay off Songhees Road.

A police spokesman said neither boy realized the value of the electronic equipment taken.

Black market mooring?

Lack of moorage in the Capital Regional District is causing a black market among boaters, North Saanich Ald. Jim Cumming claimed Wednesday.

Cumming made the statement after a regional planning committee meeting but refused to elaborate.

He would only say that legal advice is being sought on complaints within his municipality.

Regional economic planner Brian Weekley said in situations where there is more demand than supply, it is a fairly commonly accepted situation there are avenues of kickbacks to someone who has a berth and is selling a boat.

Weekley said as an example, the lack of pads for mobile homes in 1973-74 resulted in some mobile home park operators receiving a percentage when owners sold their mobile homes.

Saanich director Howard Sturrock said Wednesday he knows of a man in Tacoma who bought "a beat-up tub" — which he later junked — simply to get a berth.

Canoe Cove Marina Ltd. manager John Simson today said he has no hard evidence that people with berths up the ante when they sell their boats.

However Simson said the lack of berths could lead to a black market.

Victoria Ald. Bob Wright, who owns a marina, said it is becoming more and more difficult to get moorage.

He said later he would not allow any kind of black market in his marinas.

Simson said he is delighted that Weekley had stressed the need for more berths for transient boaters.

He said his marina sets aside 20 such berths from May until the end of September, renting them the rest of the year on a month-to-month basis on the understanding they will be vacated in May.

According to Weekley's report, 21 per cent of regional residents are boat owners and 19 per cent are sports fishermen.

Resident boat owners, Weekley said, spend a total of $30 million annually and visiting boaters spend an additional $3.6 million.

Economy at full tilt: Bouey

By CAROL GOAR
FP News Service

OTTAWA — The Bank of Canada says the national economy is running almost flat out — which may come as a surprise to the 950,000 Canadians listed as unemployed.

The bank's annual report says factories are pushing their men and machinery to the limit.

It says that even though the country's output has been stuck at the same disappointing level all winter, industries are churning out all they can.

It says that even though Canada has resources in the ground, thousands of unemployed looking for work and willing buyers lining up for its goods, the country cannot now produce any more than it is already turning out with the capital equipment available.

For this reason, the bank believes it makes little sense to come up with clever schemes to sell more — programs to make Canada more competitive abroad or to entice consumers into buying more. The only way out of the mess is to build new plants and buy new equipment.

This is the key premise in the annual report which the bank is worried people are failing to recognize in today's economic mess.

So determined is the central bank to preach its gospel that it broke a 45-year tradition of taciturnity Wednesday and invited journalists into its vault-like headquarters across the street from Parliament Hill to explain its views.

The central bank, an institution known around Ottawa for its impenetrability and jargon-infested announcements, released its yearly report to the minister of finance Wednesday with more noise and flourish than it had ever shown before.

Puzzled reporters were welcomed, given coffee and offered background information. The bank summoned its top officials to explain the report and give lessons in monetary policy.

The new openness came after months of adverse publicity. Gerald Bouey, governor of the bank has been unhappily in the public eye since mid-summer because of the hardship created by his frequent interest rate hikes. Now the bank is looking for every available chance to defend its painfully tight grip on the country's supply of money.

Bouey's position is that he has to keep the screws on. With the economy already producing practically all it can, it would be folly to encourage people to spend more money. They would merely end up paying more for what they're already buying.

He is concerned that Canadians seem to expect prices and production to surge ahead every year. This leads workers to push for higher settlements, consumers to buy like crazy before prices go up again and producers to keep raising prices. If the situation continues, says Bouey, inflation will never go away.

The bank, unlike many institutions, remains convinced that inflation not only can be beaten, but that Canada is on the path to doing it.

Although there may appear to be little reason for rejoicing with inflation running at 9.2 per cent and wage settlements running at about 10 per cent, the situation is a lot better now than during the country's last inflationary peak of 1975 when prices were rising by 10.8 per cent, explained a bank spokesmen.

Bank rate 14.79%

OTTAWA (CP) — The new Bank of Canada rate is a record-high 14.79 per cent, up from 14.19 per cent last week, the bank announced today.

The rate, pegged one-quarter of one per cent above the average interest paid at the weekly auction of 91-day treasury bills, reflects the continued rise in short-term interest rates in North America this week.

The new average yield paid on $650 million worth of three-month bills is 14.54 per cent, up from 13.94 per cent last week.

Analysts expected a higher bank rate — the interest charged on infrequent loans to chartered banks — because the central bank had been influential earlier in the week in pushing up the interest paid on treasury bills to 14.60 per cent from 13.94 per cent last week.

Normally, Canadian short-term interest rates are higher than those in the U.S. to attract foreign funds and to pay for the country's $5-billion deficit in international payments.

However, U.S. one-to-three-month commercial paper rates — paid on business borrowings — currently range between 17.25 per cent and 18 per cent compared with a range in Canada of 13.75 per cent and 15 per cent.

Bank of Canada governor Gerald Bouey said Wednesday interest rates are high in nominal terms — which include inflation — but not in real terms which exclude price rises:

"To arrive at the real cost of credit and the real return to savers these nominal interest rates must be adjusted to take account of the rate of decline in the value of money as the price level rises."

Thus, a consumer loan costs 16.75 per cent, for example, but with inflation of nearly 10 per cent, the real cost is 6.75 per cent.

"Interest rates that provide a real return, as they now do, are historically normal and are necessary to achieve and sustain stability in the value of money," the governor said.

Bouey warned in the report that price shocks such as sharp increases in the price of oil must be contained by shift in demand for other goods so that the over-all rate of inflation does not rise.

Norm got his card 47 years too soon

Seniors card ages youth in a hurry

Norman Gabriel would like to thank the human resources ministry for the nice, green-colored Pharmacare card they sent him.

It isn't often an 18-year-old is treated like a senior citizen.

Norm's father, Kenneth, who is in his mid-40s, is a bit miffed. But he'll just have to wait another 25 years, like most of us.

Norm, who is an apprentice meatcutter with Graham Meats, says the card was mailed to his home at 4957 Cordova Bay about three weeks ago.

It was stuck to a notice instructing him to throw away his old, blue Pharmacare card and keep the new one in a safe place.

"Please sign it at once," the message ended.

Norm said he did.

Who's to refuse such an order from on high?

He says the card contained his proper social insurance number and correct address and postal code.

It erred in only one respect. The card was made out to N.N. Gabriel. Norm's middle initial is J for Joseph.

Norm says his friends have just laughed but his mother told him he should send it back.

The problem is where?

"I've asked around and no one seems to know where I should go," he says.

Meanwhile, he's waiting . . . and perhaps musing, too 'Will they still want me, will they still need me when I'm sixty-four (or five)?'

Juvenile letter pulled

By DEREK SIDENIUS

The corrections branch has withdrawn a controversial letter which asked Greater Victoria government agencies for the names and addresses of known and suspected juvenile offenders.

Hal McGillivray, director of the southern Vancouver Island region, admitted today he erred in asking for the information and apologized if it had offended some people.

He said another letter was sent out 10 days ago asking for only the numbers of known and suspected offenders and their general areas of residence.

The data is for a demographic survey to find out where problem youths live and what resources are available to help them.

McGillivray said he sent out his first letter Feb. 20 and wanted names and addresses for cross-reference purposes to prevent duplication.

He promised the information would only be used for the survey and that the lists would be destroyed after the data was recorded.

But that wasn't good enough for Jacob de Villiers, president of the Victoria Bar Association.

He called the letter sinister and said the request was highly improper.

"Once such information gets into the hands of any government agency it is open to abuse," he said.

De Villiers said today he's pleased the letter has been withdrawn but said the incident points out the need to be vigilant of civil liberties.

McGillivray maintains however his motives were honorable and that there was nothing sinister about the survey.

He said the corrections branch is hoping to expand programs and services in areas where problem kids live.

"The difficulty is identifying the areas where the need is greatest," he said.

McGillivray noted many of the juveniles who cause problems in the city are from outlying districts and municipalities.

The branch feels one of the reasons the kids flock to the city is a lack of facilities for them closer to home.

Won $1M but lost the ticket

BURLINGTON, Ont. (CP) — Gary and Barbara Hackett have been tearing their hair and their apartment apart since they discovered they won $1 million in the Super Loto draw Sunday — but can't find the ticket.

The couple has been searching since Monday morning with no luck.

"We haven't found it yet and we have no idea what to do," Hackett said.

An Ontario Lottery Corporation spokesman said the winning ticket must be produced to get the prize.

All the couple knows is that Mrs. Hackett wrote the number down on a piece of paper and then put the ticket in her wallet.

As she walked by the television during the draw, she thought she heard her number being called and a check of the newspaper proved her right.

If the ticket cannot be found, the couple has to put in a claim at the Ontario lottery offices in Toronto. The board of directors will rule on the claim after a year. If someone else claims the money it would be held in trust until the courts decide ownership.

$10 tickets may replace lot towaways

Gordon's Towing went to city hall today to ask for an increase in the parking lot towaway charge from $16 to $25 but the finance committee voted instead to investigate ways to end entirely towaways from commercial lots.

A motion by Ald. Robin Blencoe was passed instructing the city administration to look into ways of replacing towaways with a system which would have commissionaires place a $10 ticket on offending vehicles.

The owner and general manager of Gordon's Towing, Hans Hartwig and son Gerald, appeared before the committee to plead their case.

Gerald Hartwig said Victoria now has the lowest towaway charge of any Canadian city and a $25 fee would help eliminate some of the complaints about his company.

When questioned on this assertion by Ald. Frank Carson, he said that the tow-truck drivers — who now work a straight commission and get $4.25 for every towaway — would be more careful in their work.

The general manager said a higher towing charge would also discourage the lsrge number of drivers who repeatedly refuse to pay for their parking in commercial lots.

Mayor Bill Tindall said council needs more information on the whole issue, especially concerning the extra cost to the city of hiring more commissionaires to work evenings. Now they work only in the daytime, ticketing cars for parking violations only on city streets.

Red ink for credit union

Surrey Credit Union — the second largest in the province — lost $29,411 last year and for the first time in its 33-year history is unable to pay members a dividend.

However, Vancouver Island's two largest credit unions — Westcoast Savings and Saanich Peninsula — will report profit positions although Westcoast's net earings show a $400,000 dip because of spiralling interest rates.

Saanich Peninsula, the second largest on the island, recorded an increase of $40,000 more in net revenue for a total $280,000.

The Surrey organization's 1979 balance sheet shows a deficit of more than $250,000 at two of its eight branches and more than $500,000 at its administrative office.

Its annual report attributes the loss to members investing short, at high interest rates, and borrowing long, at lower interest rates,

The credit union lists assests of $6.6 million, almost double the previous year's estimate. Personal loans came to almost $21 million while mortgage loans rose by more than $30 million to $225.6 million.

The credit union reported a profit of $1.1 million in 1978 and paid a dividend of 8 per cent.

West Coast, ranked third in B.C. and sixth in Canada, had a net return of $1.1 million in 1978, compared with $765,559 last year.

Vogel cleared and back at work

By JAKE BANKY

Deputy Attorney-General Dick Vogel is back at his desk in Victoria today after being cleared by the government of allegations that he interfered with the justice system in order to help out his friends.

Vogel was put on indefinite leave following a March 6 CBC television report accusing him of unwarranted interference in three court cases.

His boss — Attorney-General Allan Williams — personally undertook a review of allegations made by CBC reporter Chris Bird.

In a lengthy statement to the legislature Wednesday, Williams completely exonerated his deputy of any wrongdoing and said he has asked Vogel to resume his duties.

Williams said he will also make an official complaint to the federal minister responsible for the CBC, Francis Fox, and to the Canadian Radio-Television and Telecommunications Commission.

"The allegations, inferences and innuendoes in the CBC evening news telecast of March 6, 1980, constitute a direct but unwarranted attack upon the integrity of Deputy Attorney-General Vogel," Williams stated.

Indirectly, these same allegations constitute a similar attack on the integrity, performance and responsibility of those judges, Crown counsel and members of the ministry also involved in the three cases, he said.

Even more serious, said Williams, is the possibility that those who saw the telecast or heard about it afterwards may have, as a result, a lower opinion of the administration of justice in B.C.

Vogel has said he intends to sue Bird and the CBC for libel.

Williams said there was no connection between his report in the house and Vogel's announcement a few hours earlier that a libel suit would be launched.

NDP critic Gary Lauk, however, said Williams' statement will not completely reassure the public.

"It is clear that full public confidence in the administration of justice has not been restored by the attorney-general's assurances," Lauk said.

"The only way it can be restored is through a full public inquiry, where evidence is tested by cross-examination under oath."

Lauk said the Williams

New York

The New York stock market headed lower again Thursday, resuming its February-March slide amid recession worries.

The Dow Jones industrial average, which has fallen more than 100 points since mid-February, made a stand at 800 on Tuesday and held there Wednesday, posting only a fractional decline.

But then it slipped into the 790's again Thursday.

Analysts said the market was beset by spreading concern that the economy was heading into a recession that could hurt corporate profits and dividends considerably.

They also said a rebound in commodity prices this week had dampened hopes for any early progress toward bringing down the inflation rate.

Phillips Petroleum dropped 2⅜ to $44⅝. The company lowered its estimateof peak reserves of oil and gas in the Ekofisk area of the Norwegian North Sea.

London

The London stock market was higher near the close of quiet trading Thursday.

The Financial Times index gained 1.2 to 433.2.

Golds rose, industrials were mixed and banks were lower.

Canadian stocks were lower.
